Bank hikes prime loan rate to 10%

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The prime lending rate rose to a record 10 per cent today in the 300 branches of Wells Fargo Bank.

The one-quarter per cent boost, if followed , as is expected, by other banks, will be the sixteenth so far this year in the interest rate charged top corporate borrowers.

"The prime rate has not moved since Aug. 27 and continues to be out of phase with other money market rates," said Executive Vice President James K. Dobey Thursday in announcing the increase.

The rate paid on federal funds already has increased to 11 per cent, he said, and certificate of deposit rates are approaching 11 per cent.

He said government officials "indicate that restrictive monetary policy will be continued until there are definite signs that inflationary pressures are receding.

"The combination of all these influences on the money market forces this increase in Wells Fargo's prime corporate lending rate."

High-speed freeway chase ends in death of B.P. man

WEST COVINA — A Baldwin Park man was killed here early today when his sports car was struck by a sedan being chased by a Montclair police unit.

The fatal crash occurred on the San Bernardino Freeway while three West Covina police cars were attempting to stop the chased motorist with a "rolling" roadblock.

Merritt Donald Finch, 30, of 3822 N. Kenmore St., Baldwin Park, was dead on his arrival at Queen of the Valley Hospital. The collision caused his small sedan to roll over and land on its top.

Thomas James Stogden, 26, of 1012 W. Elgenia Ave., West Covina, driver of the other car, reportedly suffered a broken leg. He was taken to San Bernardino County Hospital and booked on suspicion of manslaughter, assault with a deadly weapon and felony drunk driving.

The three West Covina police cars were lined across the westbound freeway lanes and moving slowly in an attempt to progressivly slow down the oncoming car, officers explained.

The chased vehicle approached the rolling roadblock at a speed of about 90 miles an hour, they added. His car struck the sports vehicle from the rear, veered off and collided with two police cars before hitting a van truck, they added.

The driver of one police car had accelerated after the first collision in an attempt to avoid a collision, said investigators. All three police units involved in the rolling roadblock had their red lights turned on.

The chase began about 1 a.m. in Montclair when officer Glen Tarin, a city policeman, observed two vehicles speeding on Central Avenue near Kingsley Street.

He attempted to stop the cars with his red light and siren, but both entered the freeway, where one stopped and the second continued on at a high rate of speed.

Tarin called for assistance, and was soon joined by a highway patrol unit at Monte Vista Avenue.

Both pursued the sedan at speeds of 60 to 70 miles an hour to Indian Hill Boulevard, where the fleeing motorist accelerated to 100 to 115 miles per hour, said Tarin.

The motorist attempted to run the highway patrol car off the road at Towne Avenue but glanced off the center divider and nearly lost control, he added.

At Kellogg Drive the sedan nearly struck a large truck, but the driver veered and hit the left center divider, again nearly going out of control.

The highway patrol car dropped back at Via Verde Avenue while three Montclair police units continued the pursuit, officers said.

When the chase reached Barranca Avenue, a West Covina police officer joined the pursuit and initiated the rolling road-block.

The roadblock started at Vincent Avenue and continued at about 20 to 25 miles an hour. There were three vehicles behind the block — the chased vehicle, the sports car and the van.

The collision demolished both the sports car and the chased vehicle and caused minor damage to the other vehicles.

Finch was identified by his parents at the West Covina hospital. His body was later taken to the Custer and Christiansen Mortuary in West Covina where funeral arrangements are pending.

Police said the suspect may not be arraigned until next week because of his broken leg.

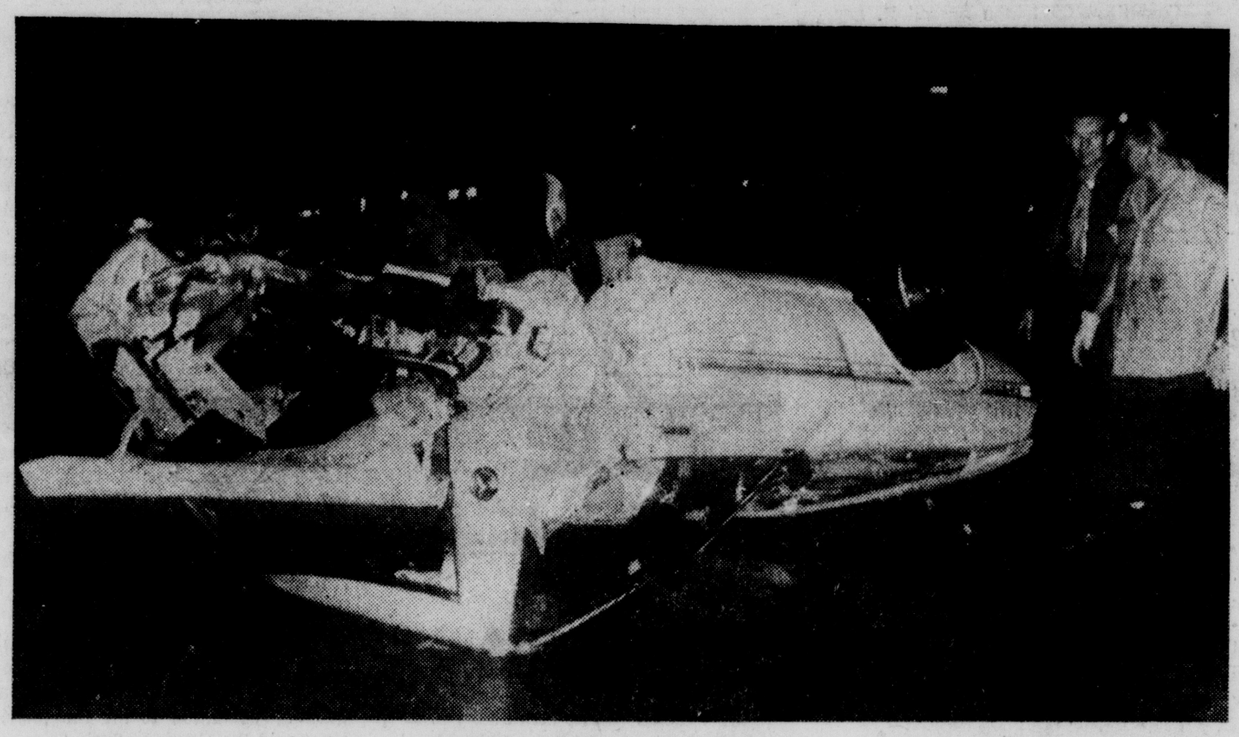
Press auto talks; deadline midnight

DETROIT (UPI) — Top Chrysler Corp. and United Auto Workers negotiators sought to iron out the major issues of wages and voluntary overtime today and reach agreement on a contract before an 11:59 p.m. strike deadline.

Chrysler bargainers, including William O'Brien, vice-president for personnel, and William F. Bavinger Jr., director of industrial relations, met at 9 a.m. with UAW representatives Leonard Woodcock, UAW president, and Douglas Fraser, vice president and head of the union's Chrysler division.

Among the problems facing the negotiations, which began last July 18, was not only a wage increase but tailoring it to meet the guidelines of the Cost of Living Council.

The company also has opposed the union's demand for voluntary overtime, contending that it would disrupt production schedules if union members were allowed to decide whether or not they would work overtime.



AN INNOCENT VICTIM

Blast hurls 8 through plate glass window

LAFAYETTE, Ga. (UPI) — Eight persons, some with their hair and clothes singed off, were hurled through a plate glass window Thursday when a downtown hardware store exploded and burned to the ground.

Officials said a car ran into the gas meter behind Pennington Hardware, and gas that had leaked into the store exploded when someone lit a match.

The injured persons, one in critical condition, were taken to hospitals in Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga. and Chattanooga, Tenn.

Capt. Robert Busby, a firemen who was next door to the store when the blast occurred, said it appeared the blast had knocked the victims through the front windows of the store.

"People were lying all over the street," said Busby, who arrived at the scene about a minute after the explosion. "People were running around everywhere, their hair burned off and everything else. They were just pitiful."

Margaret Arnold, a spokeswoman for the police department, said she saw one victim whose clothes had been burned off her body. "I saw her run out, she was in her underclothes, and they loaded her into an ambulance."

Firemen searched the rubble for several hours after the blaze was brought under control, looking for other victims. Paint cans and ammunition in the store exploded, hampering rescue efforts.

A spokesman at a Chattanooga hospital said Jimmy Ray Craig was in "critical" condition. Four other victims, J.W. Hobbs, 30 the owner of the store, Elsie Williams, 56, Bobby Lee Craig, 24, and James Albert Narrmore, 41, were in "serious" condition with second and third degree burns.

The three other victims, Janice Gober, 16, Cornelia Patton, 35, and Gerald Harelson, 16, were listed in "guarded" condition at a Ft. Oglethorpe hospital with first and second degree burns.

All the victims were from the Lafayette area.

Motorist killed at Ganesha ramp

POMONA — A motorist was killed shortly before noon today when his car hit a guard rail at the Ganesha Avenue off-ramp of the San Bernardino Freeway.

The victim, not immediately identified, was dead on his arrival at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The vehicle hit the guard rail "dead center," highway patrolmen said. There were no skidmarks.

Dreary conditions to give way over weekend at fair

The 46th edition of the Los Angeles County Fair opened today with hazy sunshine and warm temperatures in prospect for afternoon visitors on this opening weekend.

National Weather Service Office forecasters said "fair" weather will prevail throughout the weekend. A high of 78 degrees is forecast for today and 80 degrees Saturday.

Some of the low cloudiness and dreary weather conditions will still be evident when the gates at the fair open to visitors at 10 a.m. Saturday, but this is supposed to burn off by late morning. The weather will be ideal for visitors who plan to tour the 478 acres and view the thousands of attractions and exhibits.

For those who don't care to walk, tram and the monorail service provide tours of the fairgrounds.

Persons who plan to attend the fair this evening and watch as one of 10 fair princesses will be crowned 1973 Fair Queen at ceremonies at 7:45 at the grandstand, should bring along a sweater or light jacket to be comfortable as temperatures cool down.

Following coronation of the queen, the Polack Bros. Circus will begin its 13-day run through Sept. 26.

A four-day run of the Rodeo Cowboys Association championship rodeo will close the fair Sept. 27-30.

Special activities at the fair today included a Welsh mountain sheep shearing contest.

Godfrey Brown will give two demonstrations daily of how he sheared 559 Welsh mountain sheep in a nine-hour period.

The fair will offer something for every member of the family, including the youngsters who can attend activities at the Fun Zone that features the world's largest ferris wheel and rides, games and shows.

Catalina ship captain faces loss of license

SAN PEDRO (UPI) —The skipper of the S.S. Catalina faces possible loss of his license for allegedly carrying more than the ship's limit of 2,240 passengers on a 27-mile run to Catalina Island.

The Coast Guard Thursday accused Lloyd S. Fredgren, captain of the ship for 38 years, of carrying 43 passengers over the legal limit last Aug. 5. Fredgren faces a hearing on the charges next week, the Coast guard said.

Howard E. McKee, the shipline's chief purser, was also cited for maritime violations in connection with allowing too many passengers aboard the ship.

Volvo to build huge factory in Virginia

NEW YORK (UPI) —Swedish auto maker Volvo announced plans Thursday to build a $100 million plant in Virginia, which would make it the only foreign car manufacturer in the United States.

Officials said the proposed factory could start production in 1977.

Volvo President Pehr G. Gyllenhammar said a fifth of his firm's cars were sold in America last year, and "We would like to establish ourselves even more firmly here.

The U.S. plant, to be built in Chesapeake, Va., would yield up to 3,000 new jobs, and Gov. Linwood Holton called Volvo "a most welcome invader to Virginia."

Court asks Nixon, Cox to seek tape compromise, avoid ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The U.S. Court of Appeals has proposed that President Nixon and Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox settle the issue of the President's Watergate tapes between themselves "without the need for a constitutional ruling."

Cox is willing. The President hasn't replied.

The seven appeals judges proposed in a surprise move Thursday that Cox, the President "or his delegate," and the President's lawyer, Charles Alan Wright, review the tapes and try to reach agreement on turning portions of them over to a grand jury.

If such a voluntary agreement were reached, neither the appeals court nor the Supreme Court would have to decide the major constitutional issues raised by the case—whether a president can withhold information from a criminal inquiry, the extent of his right to official privacy and even the extent of the power of the courts over him.

Meanwhile, Senate Watergate committee chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., who is seeking the same tapes in a separate court suit, said Thursday night in Newark, Del., that he would be willing to compromise by having three committee members listen to them privately with Nixon.

Garden series by Poly coed starts in today's P-B

POMONA — A Cal Poly coed, studying history, is making garden news.

Mary Lynne Olson has prepared a series of articles for the California Association of Nurserymen, distributed throughout the state, about the interesting facts of gardening, ancient and modern. A North Hollywood resident, she has been enrolled at Cal Poly in horticultural education following history studies at Cal State Los Angeles.

Her articles, beginning today, will appear for six weeks on the P-B's home and garden page Fridays. The material is the result of her own freelance studies into the subject, since no college courses are offered on the history of gardening and gardening practices.

Ghost sees red, haunts Denver house

DENVER (UPI) —Katinka Parker says the thing that goes bump in the night in her home is a ghost. Skeptical neighbors say it's bad plumbing.

"I can't explain away my personal feeling that there is something evil in this house," said Mrs. Parker. "I can feel it. I can sense it. I'm very skeptical by nature. I'm not the type of person who sits around and dreams up these sorts of things."

The ghost has pushed Mrs. Parker down the stairs twice, once because it was angered at the new red wallpaper in the master bedroom. Both times, Mrs. Parker wrenched her back.

The malevolent spirit, she said, mumbles to itself as it glides through the eight-room house built in 1908 and occasionally knocks on walls in the dead of night.

"One night, I was awakened by a man's voice calling from the foot of the stairs. The voice said 'Mother' or 'Brother.' I couldn't understand which it was. When I looked there was no one there."

Mrs. Parker, 52, blames the ghost for causing the couple that sold her and her husband the house to break up after 22 years of marriage. She says it also almost ended her marriage.

"I couldn't wait to move in after we bought the house," she said. "But as soon as we did I became very depressed. I began to hate the house and hate my husband. I told him I hated him. The spirit just didn't want anyone to be happy here."

Mrs. Parker said she and her husband saved their marriage by talking about the sense of evil in the house but she came to despise the home so much they moved away for two years. The couple returned in May after Mrs. Parker decided, "I was going to fight the ghost. It was my house."

The house, gabled and surrounded by a shaded veranda, was built on the site of an old farmhouse. The first owner of the house walked onto the front lawn in 1912 and put a bullet in his head in an unsuccessful attempt at suicide.

Mrs. Parker said she didn't know who the ghost might be but that it could have been someone "who lived in the old farmhouse. I've heard spirits often remain with the land. Maybe it was upset that the old farmhouse was torn down."

She said she fell down the front stairs twice because she lost her footing on the 12th step. Each time she had her hand on the wooden wall railing.

"The second time it happened was right after I did the master bedroom in red," she said. "The ghost doesn't like red."

Hostile to tax hike proposal

Congress sticks pins in Nixon trial balloon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's trial balloon for a temporary, and refundable, boost in income taxes has received so negative a reception in Congress it may never be heard of again.

Republicans and Democrats on the tax-writing committee of both the House and the Senate expressed skepticism and hostility to the concept of siphoning excess spending capacity out of the economy through temporarily higher taxes.

As outlined to reporters Thursday by Nixon domestic adviser Melvin R. Laird, income tax rates for individuals and corporations would be boosted by 10 per cent—for example, a $2,000 tax bill would become $2,200.

In three or four years, when the economy presumably could stand a stimulus, the money would be returned to taxpayers with interest, probably through a reduction in paycheck withholding.

Laird said Nixon is also considering asking Congress for authority to raise or lower the investment tax credit, now fixed at an inflexible 7 per cent.

The credit, permitting businesses to subtract from federal taxes owed 7 per cent of the cost of new equipment, is a spur to business expansion, even in times like these when the economy is beset with inflation.

Laird said Congress would not be asked to act until next year, raising doubts that the President would ever propose such legislation.

Economists say a tax increase next year would do nothing about this year's inflation. Some believe inflation has peaked and stagnation or recession is a greater worry.

From his hospital bed in Arkansas, where is recovering from back surgery, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee dictated a statement saying he was "unalterably opposed" to surrendering Congressional power to fix the investment tax credit rate.

Mills also said he imagined most taxpayers would view the refundable tax increase not as an inflation-fighting form of compulsory savings but as a tax increase, pure and simple.

His Senate counterpart, Finance Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., expressed skepticism.

"I would not have any confidence that it would be returned to the taxpayers when the time came about," he said of the "refundable" tax.

"A refundable tax increase!" scoffed Rep. James C. Corman, D-Calif., a liberal. "Refundable when? Just before an election?"

Republican Harold R. Collier, Ill., another Ways and Means member, said he and most businessmen oppose "on-again, off-again, Finnegan" business taxes, which disrupt essential long-range corporate planning.

Arthur M. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve and a former Nixon counsellor, is father of both ideas.

He argued as recently as Tuesday before the House Banking Committee that too much of the burden of fighting inflation had been put on the Fed's monetary policy, leading to tight money and heavy interest rates, and not enough was borne by tax policy.

Burns' complaint may have spurred Nixon to placate his adviser by suggesting that he was at least considering Burns' tax ideas.

As recently as Monday, in his special State of the Union message, Nixon said, "This administration continues its strong opposition to a tax increase."

GAS PRICING PROTEST

Thousands of gasoline retailers from across the nation rally at the U.S. Capitol Thursday to protest the Nixon administration's pricing and energy policies. They are particularly angry over the recent Cost of Living Council rulings barring them from passing along price increases.

Shultz blasts Laird: 'keep your cotton-picking hands off'

TOKYO (UPI) —U.S. Treasury Secretary George Shultz lashed out today at White House adviser Melvin R. Laird, telling him to "keep his cotton-picking hands off economic policy."

Shultz, who also holds the title of economic adviser to the President, was particularly blunt in his remarks and visibly irritated.

The outburst came when Shultz was asked about reports from Washington of Laird outlining Nixon administration tax policy, including a possible rate increase.

"Laird always gives press conferences on these subjects when I'm away," Shultz said. "He did this to me when I was over in Paris. You had better ask him about it."

Shultz then declared, "I think the President's adviser on domestic affairs can keep his cotton-picking hands off economic policy."

In answer to another question, he said, "When I left (Washington) the policy was to hold down taxes, economize and balance the budget."

Last resistance dies out with gunfire in Santiago

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — The sporadic gun battles between the ruling military junta and snipers loyal to deposed President Salvador Allende died out today and the army removed tanks which had surrounded the presidential palace.

Gunfire could be heard throughout the city overnight as the army moved to crush the last remains of opposition to its coup on Tuesday in which Allende was thrown out of office and died.

The junta released a communique today denying that a column of pro-Allende soldiers and armed workers led by Gen. Carlos Pratts, former defense minister, was advancing on Santiago from the south.

Two of the country's largest political parties, the middle-of-the-road Christian Democrats and the right-wing National party-both of which acted in Congress to block many of Allende's efforts to reform the Chilean economy-Thursday declared their support for the junta.

In today's communique, the junta said the situation this morning was "more peaceful than the night before."

It said "foreign radio reports" that Allende was alive, but wounded, were "completely without foundation. He committed suicide in La Moneda Palace Sept. 11 and interrment was carried out privately the following day with members of his family present. We will soon make public documents to prove this."

Machine gun and rifle fire broke out at midnight with bullets smashing through windows of buildings near the battered La Moneda presidential palace where Allende reportedly killed himself Tuesday as army troops moved in to seize him.

The ruling military junta led by Gen. Augusto Pinochet, the army commander, refused to release details on casualties in the fighting, but unofficial reports told of up to several thousand dead since the armed forces overthrew the three-year-old Marxist government.

The unofficial reports told of massive roundups of Allende supporters across the country with 3,000 held aboard ships in Valparaiso harbor.

Capitol protest

Gasoline dealers pump anger

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Service station operators, angered over Phase IV gasoline pricing restrictions, brought their frustration to the steps of the Capitol Thursday, and got a receptive ear from House Speaker Carl Albert.

One after another at the hour-long rally, they denounced the government refusal to allow the dealers to pass along to the consumer wholesale price hikes imposed by major oil companies.

Capitol police estimated the crowd at upwards of 2,500.

"We're not going to be pawns in their economic chess games," shouted Charles Binsted, president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers.

Albert told the group it was "completely unfair" that they were being caught in the cost-price squeeze.

"Bring your petition to Congress," he said. "We will listen."

Some of the dealers, many of them wearing their colorful work uniforms, came from states as far away as Oregon, Washington, and Louisiana.

Unlike the anti-war rallies that dominated Capitol rallies in the past several years, there were reminders of patriotism, and an American flag in front of the podium.

But the dealers' spokesmen said they felt they were being short-changed by the Cost of Living Council.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., who along with Sen. Birch Bayn, D-Ind., and Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., are pushing legislation to lift the restrictions, said the Council allows "one rule for the 'fat cats' and another rule for the little guy."

"It's high time we have this kind of mass protest against government policy dictated by the oil barons of this country," Conte said.

Kennedy urges impeachment if Nixon balks

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In his strongest statement yet on the Watergate scandal, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Thursday Congress will have no choice but to impeach President Nixon if he defies a Supreme Court order to release his Oval Office tape recordings.

Kennedy, a possible contender for the presidency in 1976, said failure to impeach the President under such circumstances would result in "a bloodless coup" for Nixon. "It would be Chile, really, without the bloodshed," he said in a Senate speech attended by fewer than a dozen colleagues.

But after the speech, Kennedy said he does not expect Nixon to defy the Supreme Court, which may ultimately decide the question of separation of powers—whether Nixon must obey a lower court order to turn over tapes of Watergate-related conversations to a U.S. District Court judge, who would then decide if they could be given to the special prosecutor or to the Senate Watergate Committee, or both.

All Nixon has said so far is that he would abide by any "definitive" high court ruling, refusing to define "definitive."

Kennedy said: "If President Nixon defied a Supreme Court order to turn over the tapes, a responsible Congress would be left with no recourse but to exercise its power of impeachment."

Allende widow not allowed to see him

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) —The widow of former Chilean President Salvador Allende said in an interview published here today that she was not allowed to see her husband when he was buried.

Mrs. Hortensia Bussi de Allende, in an interview published by the newspaper Cronica, said:

"I asked to see him, to touch him, but they would not let me".

The interview was given to Manuel Mejido, a correspondent for the Mexico City newspaper Excelsior, inside an automobile in Santiago Thursday.

Mrs. Allende is currently in the Mexican embassy in Santiago and, according to reports from Mexico City, had planned to fly to Mexico City today.

But she told the Mexican correspondent: "I appreciate the exile that Mexico has offered but I will not leave Chile."

Mejido wrote Mrs. Allende's voice broke as she said:

"Let the world know the truth of what has happened. President Allende was betrayed and overthrown by a facist coup and he was buried in the most complete secrecy.

Mrs. Allende, the interview said, saw her husband for the last time at a dinner Monday night.

"At 7:40 a.m. Tuesday (the day the coup broke out) I received a call that awoke me. It was Salvador who said, 'I'm speaking to you from La Moneda (Presidential Palace)'."

Mrs. Allende said her husband told her: "The situation has become grave. The navy has revolted. I'm going to stay here. You stay in Tomas Moro (the pesidential residence)."

"He practically prohibited me from leaving the residence," Mrs. Allende said in the interview.

Mrs. Allende said she had listened to her husband for the last time during his final radio speech which was cut off shortly after the coup began.

Mrs. Allende said bombardment of the presidential residence began around 11:30 a.m. after a helicopter flew over the house.

"The airplanes arrived and shot their rockets, then they would return to their bases to reload. After every attack there was a shootout that was madness.

"The residence became a mass of smoke, of the smell of powder, of destruction", Mrs. Allende said.

She said that during a lull in the attack, she had her driver take her out of the residence grounds through a driveway in the back.

Mitchell also seeking tapes for trial; Nixon says fight it

NEW YORK (UPI) —Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell tried to subpoena secret presidential tape recordings Thursday to use in his forthcoming perjury-conspiracy trial. The White House promptly asked government attorneys to fight the subpoena.

Mitchell's defense attorney, Peter Fleming Jr., asked for any tapes of conversations that might have occurred regarding his client's case between Nov. 1 and Jan. 31. The request was unlike other requests, which have cited particular single dates.

Thomas J. Edwards, chief of the U.S. attorney's criminal division in New York, called the subpoena a "broad ranging blunderbuss fishing expedition" and filed a countermotion to have it thrown out.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John R. Wing said his office was asked by the White House to fight the subpoena and try to get it rejected. The trial judge, Lee Gagliardi, did not render an immediate decision.

Mitchell and codefendant Maurice Stans, former secretary of commerce, are charged with perjury and conspiring to obstruct justice last year when they were both top officials in President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Bikini top sale fine is suspended

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) —Wendy Berlowitz, 25, who tried to auction off her bikini top near the University of New Mexico campus, was fined $50 Thursday for conducting a sale in a public park without a license.

Magistrate Judge Jarry Robins fined both Wendy and her song-writing husband $50, but suspended the fine and wished them well on their trip to Hollywood.

Spanish treasure on missile range?

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Attorney F. Lee Bailey has asked the governor of New Mexico to help him gain access to the White Sands Missile Range to look for an old Spanish treasure his clients believe is there.

A spokesman for Gov. Bruce King said Thursday "the governor said he would do what he could." Bailey represents about 50 clients claiming ownership of the alleged cache, which they say contains 100 tons of gold.

King's press secretary Pete Pence said the governor is "rather doubtful" that a treasure does exist on the range, but said that "as far as he's concerned, it might be worth a check." Military officials have resisted any attempts by civilians to go onto the land to search for the treasure.

He doesn't laugh at UFO stories

STATESBORO, Ga. (UPI) — Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter said Thursday he and a group of friends were coming out of a dinner meeting one night several years ago, when they saw a big, shining light in the shape of a flying saucer hovering overhead.

"I don't laugh at people anymore when they say they've seen UFO's," he said, "because I've seen one myself." Carter said all the men in his group were in agreement that they had seen the object, which he said moved away several hundred yards and then came back several times as they stood watching it.

There have been a rash of UFO reports across the South in recent weeks. The most recent two came from Chattanooga, Tenn., where two Hamilton County policemen and a security officer for a motel said they watched a UFO early Thursday.

Scott hits Ervin as TV fund raiser

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott says Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., is trying to "exploit" his national exposure as chairman of the Watergate committee by appearing on an upcoming Democratic fund-raising telethon.

"I would deplore very much the reported plan to have Ervin appear as a Democratic fund raiser," Scott, of Pennsylvania, told reporters Thursday.

Ervin is one of many Democrats who will appear Sunday on a nationally televised telethon to raise more than $3 million to pay off the party's remaining debt. Scott said Ervin was attempting to "exploit his new found exposure. I hope Sen. Ervin will reconsider."

Doctor who killed wife up for parole

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) —Carl Coppolino, a medical doctor serving a life term for administering a fatal dose of drugs to his wife, still is a "depraved" murderer and should not be paroled until he has served about 25 years, Florida Attorney General Robert L. Shevin said Thursday.

Coppolino, 42, described as a model prisoner during his 6-½ years at the DeSoto State Prison at Arcadia, is up for annual parole consideration.

He was convicted in 1967 of killing his wife, Carmela, in 1965 in Sarasota, although he denied administering a lethal dose of succynal choline chloride to her.

GI critic of Nixon to get treatment

DENVER (UPI) —Air Force M.Sgt. Grant A. Schulke, who wants President Nixon courtmartialed because of Watergate, can be transferred to a Texas military base for psychiatric care, a federal judge ruled Thursday.

U.S. District Judge Sherman G. Finesilver denied Schulke's request to prevent the military from sending him to Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, Tex.

Finesilver said he was making the ruling to insure the 23-year veteran of "immediate, consistent and adequate" psychiatric treatment. Schulke was ordered to undergo psychiatric tests at the Fitzsimons Army Medical Center near Denver last month after he suggested the court-martial of Nixon.

Jail, probation for wife who killed husband

POMONA — A Rowland Heights woman has been granted probation in the December 1971 slaying of her husband but will serve six months in jail.

Mrs. Rita Cortez, 31, was placed on probation for five years by Pomona Superior Court Judge Glenn M. Pfau when she appeared for sentencing on a plea of guilty of voluntary manslaughter. She originally was charged with murder

Pfau ordered that Mrs. Cortez spend six months in the county jail as a condition of probation.

Mrs. Cortez of 18949 Cardona St., stabbed Dennis Cortez, 30, to death with a five-inch kitchen knife during a quarrel at 4 a.m. after the Cortezes had returned home from a party. Mrs. Cortez said she stabbed her husband to protect their children and claimed Cortez was heading for the children's bedroom with the intention of harming them. The children were 3, 4 and 8 at that time.

Prison episode

3 in slaying receive life

ONTARIO Three California Institution for Men inmates convicted of killing a fellow inmate and seriously wounding another Dec. 17, 1972 at the Southern Reception-Guidance Center have been sentenced to life imprisonment, consecutive to the life terms they are already serving.

The trio, Frank Phillip Mendoza, 25; Juan Figueroa Colon, 23; and Raymond L. Contreras, 34; in August were found guilty by a jury of second degree murder in the death of inmate Rudolph Cadena, 29, and guilty of assault with intent to do great bodily harm on inmate Gilbert R. Sandoval following a three-week trial in West Valley Superior Court Thursday, after reviewing probation reports Judge James Cunningham passed sentence on the inmates.

Judge Cunningham ordered the three to be imprisoned for life terms on the second count of assault with intent to do great bodily harm upon a prisoner by another life prisoner that will run consecutive to their other life prison terms. The three inmates convicted of the assault and murder all were serving life terms for conviction of crimes ranging from robbery and escape to marijuana for sale when Cadena was stabbed to death and Sandoval wounded.

Judge Cunningham stayed sentencing of the three inmates on second degree murder convictions pending the outcome of appeals. The sentencing for the inmates on the assault charge means that they will not be eligible for a parole hearing for at least nine years.

Prison officials believe that the trio are members of the New Family, an underground prison group battling for control of prison rackets with another group called the Mexican Mafia. Cadena was though to be a leader of the Mexican Mafia.

Youth booked in kidnap, rape attempt on 2

MONTCLAIR — A 17-year-old youth was in custody of juvenile authorities this morning after he allegedly kidnaped two Montclair girls from the Mayfair Market at Central Avenue and Benito Street and forced them to drive to Fontana where he attempted to rape them.

Montclair Detective Bill Goff said the incident occurred about 1 a.m. as the two girls, one 16 and the other 17, were walking to their car in the Mayfair Market parking lot. The girls told police that the youth asked them for a ride to the K-Mart store several blocks away and they refused After a moment of hesitation the youth then asked the girls to take him to the corner of San Bernardino Street and Central Avenue.

The girls let him in the back seat of their car and began driving out of the parking lot. The youth then pulled a knife on the girl passenger and ordered the driver to drive into Fontana, said Goff. En route to Fontana, Goff said the youth ordered the girl passenger into the back seat of the car and forced her to disrobe. When the girls and their abductor reached a remote area of Fontana the youth told them to stop.

Goff said at that point the youth apparently became confused and then ordered them to drive him back to Upland where the girls let him off at Seventh Street and Benson. The girls reported the kidnaping and attempted rape to Upland police about 2:01 a.m. Montclair police later arrested the youth in the area where he left the car.

New summer session receives high grades from O-M school parents

ONTARIO — Based on the assessments of parents, students, teachers and administrators, the Ontario-Montclair School District's new approach to summer school appears to have met with success.

That is the conclusion contained in a report presented by Bill Smead, the district's Northwest Area director, to the school board Thursday afternoon.

Smead said that he had received "very few negative comments" about the program, and he recommended that the district follow the same format next year.

In a survey to which 212 out of approximately 700 parents responded, 95 per cent indicated that their youngsters would be back in summer school again next year, Smead said.

A similar percentage also indicated the summer session had accomplished its reading and math objectives, and that the four-hour-a-day schedule was "just right, he said.

The report also noted a significant rise in attendance compared to the previous year. The largest attendance for one day during the past summer was 5,580, whereas the highest for one day in 1972 was 3,196.

This year's summer schedule was divided into two sessions. The first session ran from June 25-July 27, while the post session went from July 30-Aug. 24. In both sessions, Smead said, student participation increased based upon first day to last day attendance figures.

The combined highest attendance for both session was 6,351, which is almost twice that of the previous year.

Smead also said there was a surplus of funds remaining after teacher salaries and other expenses had been paid. The money, he said, would be given back to the school. The exact of amount of the surplus funds was unavaliable because the budgets of the various schools participating in the program had not been audited.

In its summer session, the district had attempted to develop a program which would have wide appeal to the largest number of students, offer a wide range of learning experiences, be fiscally sound, and utilize decentralized decision making processes.

Instruction was offered at every neighborhood school, and special offerings such as a school for mentally gifted minors, a fine arts school, swimming and golf instruction, and use of industrial arts and home economics facilities were also available.

Administratively, the district was divided into five areas, with an administrator responsible for developing and implementing the instructional program in each school.

In business action Thursday, the board:

— Authorized that Richard Burkhart be assigned the duties of a "helping teacher" at Vina Danks Junior High School in addition to his other duties. The action allows Burkhart to be released from two periods of teaching to assist in organizing various student programs and office routines that normally would have been performed by an assistant principal. (The school does not have an assistant principal this year due to a limited enrollment.) The position provides Burkhart with an annual stipend of $300 in addition to his regular salary.

— Authorized district administrators to enter into inter-district attendance agreements with 20 school districts, including Pomona, Chino, Claremont, Bonita and Upland, for the education of regular students for the school years 1973-74 through 1977-78. In the past, the district in which a student attended school would receive average-daily-attendance money from the state. However, with the passage of Senate Bill 90, the district in which the student lives will now get the money. The district which educates the student will be reimbursed by the district of residence based upon an agreed based revenue limit.

Adapter to enable group to use new telephones

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hard-of-hearing telephone users will have an adapter by 1974 that will allow them to use a new type of phone receiver, according to American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

In a statement, the company said the unit, to be sold at cost, "will work with any of the present Bell System phones or those of the future. It will also work with independent telephone company and foreign phones."

The question came up recently before the Senate Aging Committee, which is conducting an inquiry into hearing aids for the elderly.

Mrs. Virginia Knauer, White House Assistant for Consumer Affairs, told the committee that conversion to a new type of telephone receiver would be incompatible with hearing aids which require magnetic leakage from the receiver to produce a good signal. The new receiver, first used in the "Trimline" phones, lack such energy, she said.

"As a result, upwards of one million hearing aid users stand to be deprived of the use of the telephone upon conversion to the new type," Mrs. Knauer said.

A spokesman for the Office of Consumer Affairs said it would take a wait-and-see attitude toward the new devices.

Cop on house call wards off knife attack

ONTARIO — An Ontario man was booked in West End Jail this morning after he allegedly threatened to burn his house down at 1715 Plaza Serena and attacked a police officer with a butcher knife Thursday night.

Victor Maletic, 55, was booked in the jail for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer after being subdued by Officer F. Cypher about 5:15 p.m.

Cypher said that he went to the address to investigate a report that a man was attempting to burn a house down. Cypher said Maletic had been arguing with his wife earlier in the evening. During the argument the suspect went outside and got into his car parked in the driveway of the home and rammed it into the rearend of another vehicle parked inside the garage.

Cypher reported that Maletic then went back into the home and began throwing furniture around and threatened to burn the house down. Cypher was allowed in the home by Mrs. Katherine Maletic. Cypher said he was confronted by the suspect holding a butcher knife. Cypher said he drew his baton and pistol, ordering Maletic to drop the knife. Instead Maletic lunged at the officer with the knife. Cypher said he used his baton to hit Maletic's wrist making him drop the knife, and then knocked him to the floor where he finally subdued him.

Fuel-started fire damages living room

POMONA — Mrs. Dana Johnson lit a fire in the fireplace early this morning to take the chill out of the house and warmed things up much more than she expected.

Firemen called to the scene report that Mrs. Johnson, 567 Randolph St., put wood in the fireplace and poured liquid fuel on it to ignite it. She placed the can of liquid fuel on the carpet near a sofa and struck a match.

A flash fire erupted in the fireplace and spread to the can of liquid fuel, igniting the sofa, the wall and a nearby window.

The damage to the living room, the furniture and the exterior of the house is estimated at $1,300. No one in the house was injured. The occupants fled the house when the fire started, and neighbors called the fire department.

Firemen rescued the family dog from the inside of the house when they arrived.

Fire Marshall Tom Clark warns residents that they should be cautious about starting up furnaces and fireplaces that have not been in use for long periods of time.

He said furnaces should be cleaned out and filters changed before use. He said fireplace chimneys should be cleaned out also.

Clark said a flammable liquid should never be used as a method to ignite fires in a fireplace.

He said his department is ready to assist citizens on fire prevention methods and information may be obtained by calling his office at 620-2215.

Peace pact ends 10 years of war in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Government and pro-Communist Pathet Lao negotiators, shaking hands and clicking champagne glasses, signed a peace pact today to end more than 10 years of war in the Kingdom of Laos.

Diplomats from the United States, China, North Vietnam and South Vietnam witnessed the brief, five-minute ceremony at the home of Prince Souvanna Phouma, the 72-year-old Laotian prime minister.

"With your support this agreement has been signed," Souvanna said to the diplomats. "I hope all friendly governments will support us after this war."

Ngone Sananikone, the government's chief negotiator, and Gen. Phoun Sipaseuth, the top Pathet Lao representative, signed the accord at precisely 9:40 a.m. on the advice of Souvanna's personal astrologer

The peace pact, penned under an oil portrait of 66-year-old King Savang Vatthana, provides for the third attempt at a Laotian coalition government in 20 years.

Previous coalitions formed in 1954 and 1962 broke down when leftists and rightists failed to work together in this mountain kingdom of 2.5 million.

The Pathet Lao and Souvanna's supporters will get charge of five ministries apiece in the new government with two posts going to "non-political" figures.

Prince Souphanouvong, head of the Pathet Lao and Souvanna's half-brother, missed the ceremony, remaining at Sam Neua, leftist headquarters 30 miles from the North Vietnamese border.

"There will be difficulties ahead," Souvanna predicted. "I hope my compatriots will accept this protocol which will lead to the end of the war and the beginning of national development and reconstruction."

Souvanna, who mediated the agreement, told newsmen he hoped the new coalition would be formed before Oct. 10.

Nations adopt 'declaration' launching trade rules talks

TOKYO (UPI) — Delegates from 82 countries adopted a landmark "Tokyo Declaration" today launching a new round of negotiations to rewrite the rules of international trade.

U.S. Treasury Secretary George Shultz played a major role in the talks and predicted a separate draft agreement on world monetary reform may be ready by 1974.

More than 600 high financial officials attended the Tokyo talks on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which sets the framework for foreign trade among non-Communist countries.

The officials of GATT countries approved the "Tokyo Declaration," which provides for the trade talks, expected to last two years, and lays down ground rules for them

"The negotiations shall aim to achieve the expansion and ever greater liberalization of world trade and improvement in the standard of living and welfare of the people of the world,'' the declaration read.

The actual working-level talks, which probably will be known as the "Nixon Round," are scheduled to open the last week in October at the GATT headquarters in Geneva. GATT's last previous round of trade negotiations from 1964-69 was known as the "Kennedy Round" in honor of the late American president.

At a news conference before leaving for Washington, Shultz said that draft language for an agreement on a reformed world currency system may be ready by the time of the 1974 meeting of the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

"No one can say it will turn out that way, but there is a lot of sentiment that it might, Shultz said.

The Tokyo Declaration adopted today divides the developing countries of the world into two groups depending upon their state of economic progress. One group, mostly African countries, will be called "least developed countries." They will be treated on a different basis from nations like Brazil and Mexico which are further along the path toward economic modernization.

Demos seek 2 votes in final hours to hike welfare aid

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Facing a midnight adjournment of the 1973 legislative session, Democrcats searched for two more Republican votes in the Senate today to pass a bill boosting welfare payments for 500,000 aged, blind and disabled.

It was the last major issue Democratic legislative leaders hoped to resolve before adjourning until Jan. 1.

The bill (AB18) by Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, would increase monthly welfare payments from an average of $212 to $235 for 486,000 elderly and disabled and to $255 for 14,000 blind.

The Senate sponsor, Democratic leader George Moscone of San Francisco, said he probably would take up the measure in his house this afternoon. Moscone said he had 25 "firm, hard" votes. He needed 27.

The measure, the product of a two-house conference committee, was rejected Tuesday by the Senate, but granted reconsideration. The Assembly approved it Wednesday.

Gov. Ronald Reagan opposes the bill and has vowed to veto it if passed. The governor intends to implement his own program, without legislative authorization, increasing monthly payments to $221.

Unless the state takes some action, the payments will drop to $130 on Jan. 1 when the federal government takes over administration of welfare programs for the aged, blind and disabled.

Moscone and Burton hoped to build enough public pressure on Republican opponents to obtain their votes before the midnight adjournment.

Meantime, state Health and Welfare Secretary Earl Brian issued a statement Thursday contending two provisions of the bill were not in conformity with federal law. He said this could cost California up to $200 million in federal aid.

Brian said federal regulations limit the value of a welfare recipient's home to $25,000 and allow him only $1,500 in personal property. Brian said the Democratic-backed bill placed no limit on either a home's value or personal property.

Two quakes registered in Southland

EL CENTRO, Calif. (UPI) — A pair of earthquakes, one rather hefty and the other light, were registered in several Southern California counties Thursday.

The first, larger quake occurred at 10:31 a.m. PDT and the epicenter was approximately 50 miles east of San Diego. It registered at 5.0 on the Richter scale but did not cause serious damage.

It was followed at 2:06 p.m. by a light temblor at Sylmar, north of Los Angeles, with a magnitude of 1.8. No damage was reported. A spokesman at the California Institute of Technology Seismological Laboratory at Pasadena said it was an aftershock of the destructive Feb. 9, 1971, San Fernando quake.

One of those who felt the first quake Thursday was James Shaw, a farmer in the Imperial Valley about 50 miles from the epicenter. He said he heard a rumble and then several pictures fell from the wall. He looked outside and saw the ground rolling.

Nixon thinks income taxes personal affair

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, like most Americans, believes his income taxes are nobody else's business.

Responding to a report earlier this week that Nixon may have paid no taxes in 1970 and 1971, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Thursday: "The President and I have had some rather detailed discussions on this matter. The President made it quite clear to me this is a matter that should not be made public."

The Baltimore Sun said that because of interest on loans Nixon took to finance his homes in California and Florida and a write-off for contributing his private papers to the National Archives, he may have been entitled to pay no taxes on his $200,000 annual salary in those years.

Other White House sources say privately that Nixon did pay income taxes, but they did not say how much.

Reserve, police to spread word on theft prevention

MONTCLAIR — Members of the U.S. Army Reserve and the Montclair Police Department will be visiting a number of residents Saturday to explain the most effective means of home burglary prevention through the city's Operation PAL (Prevention Against Loss) Program.

Montclair Police Detective Dick Drake said that 10 men from the Army Reserve will be aiding the police officers in the door-to-door program in an effort to make residents aware of the different burglar alarms, locking devices and techniques used to prevent burglaries. The Army is lending the reserve officers to the city's police department in a new public relations program to aid in worthwhile community projects.

The reservists will have letters of authorization from the police department explaining their purpose in explaining opertation PAL. Working with the reservists will be Detectives Drake, Terry Belland and Russ Smith.

Drake said the program will give residents an opportunity to ask police officers and the reservists about the newest burglary prevention equipment and techniques available.

Seven killed in Texas crash

MARBLE FALLS, Tex. (UPI) —Seven persons, including four children, on the way to a football game, were killed Thursday afternoon when their car crashed with a truck in a blinding rainstorm six miles south of town.

Authorities identified three of the dead as Perty Falk, 33, of Elgin, his wife and an infant daughter. The names of the four other victims, whose ages ranged from 10 to 20 years, were withheld until their relatives could be told.

Authorities said the truck driver, John Pearcy, of San Angelo, was hospitalized but hospital officials would not release his condition.

Blessed events for 2 dummies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Two adult dummies, a male and a female, soon will have two children at the Ohio Transportation Research Center near East Liberty.

The state Controlling Board allocated $10,500 Monday for the manufacture of a pair of lifelike dummies to simulate children in crash analysis at the center.

"We studied them for awhile and determined there was no way they were going to reproduce," quipped James Leckrone, representing the center at the meeting in its request for the money.

Picketing ban at Capitol is repealed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The Senate Wednesday night voted final legislative approval to a measure repealing a law which has sent a "sweet, little old man" to jail at least 248 times.

He is 93-year-old Robert H. Simpson, dean of Capitol protesters.

On a 23-14 vote, the Senate sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan the bill (AB964) by Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, ending a 1969 law banning picketing in the Capitol.

Since then, Simpson has paraded through the historic, golden-domed structure —which is only 11 years older than he is —with signs complaining about the law and censuring officials from Reagan on down.

The anti-picketing law also resulted this year in a group of preschool children being warned to put away their signs pleading for state assistance for their program.

Sen. Donald L. Grunsky, R-Watsonville, said the law is "impossible and embarrasing to enforce."

He pointed out that although Simpson is arrested he rarely is prosecuted.

Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, DLos Angeles, also urged support of the measure, describing the venerable picketer as a "sweet, little old man."

Opposing the proposal was Sen. George Deukmejian, RLong Beach, who said the law was needed to help protect lawmakers from protesters flooding into the Capitol with their signs.

"Since this law was passed," Deukmejian declared, "we have not had this kind of activity."

Grunsky countered that there were other laws to prevent disruptions.

"If we're going to be threatened, it's not going to be by some little kids or Mr. Simpson," Grunsky stated.

Early this week, Simpson's count of his own arrests stood at 248.

Lead poison charged to Vernon plant

VERNON (UPI) — Union leaders have charged that workers at a lead smelting plant here are being poisoned by lead fumes and that government efforts to improve the situation have failed.

Jeff Cooper of the Steelworkers Local 2018 said Wednesday that medical tests on workers at the NL Industries Inc. plant confirm that more than 100 "are in various stages of lead poisoning." Cooper said lead emissions at the plant were 17 times the legal limit.

The Environmental Protection Center, a group backed by the steelworkers union, said the plant has furnished respirators to workers in certain sections of the plant but that "their use is not properly supervised and it is questionable whether the workers are protected."

Officials for the Department of Labor confirmed that the firm has been cited for failing to control lead pollutants.

"And the case is not closed, which means the conditions have not been abated" said Gilbert Garcia, the Department's regional safety director.

NL, a conglomerate which does a $1 billion business annually in scrap metal, declined comment on the charges.

Attorneys for the union have filed 32 demands for workmen's compensation based on alleged lead poisoning, and the firm is also being hounded by the Air Pollution Control District. APCD director of enforcement Ralph George said NL has been cited 18 times for illegally emitting smoke and dust into the air.

Cinches five, seven's there

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Some people like to barge ahead recklessly without paying any attention to warning signals. Sometimes they go a long way; on other occasions they wind up in the hospital.

South ruffed the heart lead in dummy and remarked, "We may have missed a grand slam. Still I suppose I had better try to make five."

He ruffed the heart in dummy while making his speech. Then he led dummy's 10 of spades. East played low and South let West score his singleton queen.

West did the best he could by cashing his ace of diamonds, but that was the last trick for the defense.

Of course, South could have made seven if he had wanted to play for it and know the trump situation. After winning the first spade he could have returned to dummy with a low club; finessed against East's jack of trumps and splashed down.

How should he have played the hand if he had been in six? Just that way. It was both the best percentage and the play that would work.

Fire-damaged records to be restored

ST. LOUIS, Mo (UPI) — Millions of military records damaged by fire and water in a blaze at the U.S. military personnel records center are being restored through spaceage techniques by McDonnell Douglas Corp.

The soggy records of former servicemen are being put through a freeze drying technique in one of the company's space simulation chambers. The chamber was built to simulate the temperatures and pressures encountered in manned-space missions.

The records were among those of 56 million servicemen kept in the two-square-block building in suburban Overland. Many of the records were damaged when fire swept the sixth floor of the building July 12. The fire smoldered for four days.

The General Services Administration, which manages the record center, thought some of the records were unsalvageable because they were charred, soggy and a green and black mold had formed on the exposed surfaces.

However, the records come through the process legible and ready to go back into use in helping veterans establish their eligibility for various government programs. The process has been used to restore water-soaked rare books.

18-month-old stricken with encephalitis

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) —An 18-month old Hammonton, N.J., child has contracted Eastern Encephalitis—a severe illness transmitted from animals to humans by infected mosquitoes, the state Department of Health reported.

The department said the unidentified child contracted the disease Aug. 22, and has been hospitalized.

Five cases of horses infected with the disease have been identified in New Jersey, the department said, but the chance of individuals contracting the disease is "infinitesimally small."

She changed; will new boy accept her?

By JEAN ADAMS

PAST: (Q.) I am very developed for 14. I've gone out with a lot of boys and have gone all the way with most of them. Some people know about me and I do not have a good reputation.

I have changed, though. I have met a boy who is also 14 and whom I really like. I want him to like me as a nice girl but he doesn't because he knows about me.

How can I tell him I have changed? —Not Now in Connecticut.

(A) It is good that you have changed because the path you were on is very dangerous for any teen-age girl.

Be very frank with your new friend about your past and your future. Tell him you have made many mistakes but have changed and want to stay changed. Ask him to help you.

He may not be willing or able to accept you and all the facts about you. But if you still stay on the new road you have taken you will eventually find a good boy or boys who will like you and respect you. It may not be easy, but it will be worth it.

MATURITY: (Q) My parents say I can't do anything for myself. They say I have to be led around by the hand. They say I am immature. I am 14 and I know that some of my friends who are 13 and 14 act older than I do. Why don't I act more maturely? —Trying To Grow Up in Indiana.

(A.) Ask your parents to compliment you when you show signs of maturity rather than criticizing you when you show signs of immaturity. This is being positive. It is the right way to be.

Also ask them to show you how they want the jobs done and then check to see that you do them properly.

As you learn to assume responsibility, you move ahead towad maturity. At 14 you are ready to start taking on responsibilities.

'Lost tribe' learning to use tool, trap

MANILA (UPI) —The man in charge of the Philippines' national minorities said today the stone age Tasaday "lost tribe" has learned to use bladed instruments and to trap animals but remains a peaceful people ignorant of war.

Manuel Elizalde Jr., a millionaire-philanthropist and cabinet member who is secretary of Philippine National Minorities, spoke of the latest situation about the loincloth-wearing cave dwellers at a fund raising campaign.

"In the past year, the Tasadays have learned the use of bladed instruments and have been taught how to hunt and trap. But to me, we really don't have to teach them anything. Up to now, they don't even know that men are capable of killing other men and they don't even have a word in their alphabet for fighting," Elizalde said.

He said the Tasadays, who were discovered in limestone caves in a rain forest of South Cotabato about 500 miles south of Manila in June, 1971, now total 28 with the birth of a boy last July.

A private foundation is assisting Elizalde in his work to preseve the welfare program for the Tasaday and other tribal minorities. One of the members of the foundation is famed aviator Charles Lindbergh, who discovered the Tasadays with Elizalde.

Elizalde reviewed the tribe's situation since April 1972 when President Ferdinand E. Marcos declared 48,117 acres of public forest as a preserve for the cavemen and the Manobo-Blit tribe.

It was a Manobo tribesman, identified as Dafal, who led the Elizalde-Lindbergh expedition to the Tasadays two years ago and introduced bladed weapons to them.

Nice Jewish boy is Arab in Newsweek

NEW YORK (UPI) —How did a nice Jewish boy end up as an Arab in full desert regalia on the cover of Newsweek Magazine?

Well, it was like this. Steve Kaye, a 33-year-old full bearded and mustachioed talent agent with a Madison Avenue ad agency had a call for an Arab model. He couldn't find one.

So Kaye got out the Kaffiyeh (headdress) he brought back as a souvenier from Israel, rented some robes from a photo agency and found an agreeable gas station owner in Queens Borough.

And there he is on the cover —features forbidding, arms folded as he stands next to a gas pump, nozzle at the ready, symbolizing Newsweek's cover story "The Arab Oil Squeeze."

Kaye said he hasn't had any complaints from his family so far.

"I have a family in Israel. My brother is in Kibbutz Yizrael, near Jerusalem, and I sent him a copy of the "He's probably jumping up and down at the moment, taking it as a big joke.

"When I told my mother I'm on the cover of Newsweek she ran out the door to the newsstand. She's floating now and considers it a great hoax. I've got a grandmother who might be offended. She's a Zionist, so nobody's told her."

Kaye said he had received a lot of calls —"Jack Parr wants me on his show and a lady in Connecticut phoned and proposed. She said "I saw your picture, I want to marry you'

"I hope I'm not typecast," he added, "so I can go on to bigger and better things—maybe Moshe Dayan."

Newsweek Executive Editor Kenneth Auchincloss said he "was not aware" that a genuine Arab hadn't been used on the cover.

"In retrospect it doesn't bother me," he said. "We picked the model we liked best, without questioning as to race, religion or national origin."

New election assured on gas taxes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California voters will get another chance next year to decide whether gasoline tax revenue should be diverted from highway projects to development of rapid transit systems.

The Senate has voted final legislative approval to the proposed constitutional amendment (SCA15), thus placing it on the June 1974 ballot.

In 1970 voters rejected a similar ballot measure.

Final passage of the new ballot proposal by Senate President Pro Tem James R. Mills, D-San Diego, came when the Senate accepted Assembly amendments on a 32-7 vote.

The proposal would divert about $50 million year in gas tax funds for use for rapid transit. The state Constitution now requires such revenue to be used exclusively for highway-oriented projects.

Mills said the measure contains safeguards against loss of highway construction revenue in rural counties which were not included in the 1970 proposal.

Sen. James E. Whetmore, R-Garden Grove, argued against the proposal, saying "people who want rapid transit should go directly to the people for their money" through local property or sales taxes

The Reagan administration supports the proposal. Opposing it are the state Chamber of Commerce and the Automobile Association of America.

Students burn buses protesting services

NEW DELHI (UPI) —Police said Delhi University students protesting irregular bus service hijacked eight of the vehicles recently and set three of them on fire.

Police said the rampaging students also set fire to a police radio control van.

We really auto know better

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Wheezing and belching my way down Towne Avenue recently (in my car), adroitly avoiding teen-age lovers, drunks, and highway patrol check points, I fell to musing on the automobile as we know it.

It is one of the wonders of the mechanical age that I, who cannot change the ribbon on a typewriter or shave without cutting myself (with an electric razor), can maneuver a 2,000-pound chunk of precision steel to work and home again with hardly more than a grazed fender.

Many years ago some unsung genius — Mr. Ford or Mr. Buick or Chief Pontiac or Monsieur Chevrolet — invented an internal combustion engine that, properly harnessed to a chassis and four radial-belt glass-and-steel tires, shoves our cars along highway and byway with speed, if not safety. The piston engine has caused more deaths than the atom bomb. This is called progress.

Once having unleashed this automotive monster on the world, the powers-that-be in Detroit have run a strong but losing race to catch up to their four-wheeled golem with safety devices.

Brakes were a natural first, fortunately, but brake lights did not come along until much later. Can you imagine driving on the freeway during the rush hour with none of the cars equipped with brake lights? Then came taillights — a useful addition.

Early cars didn't have even windshield wipers, much less defrosters and tape cassettes. How primitive! The mature types among you will remember when turn-indicators were non-existent.

The horn, of course, was an early adjunct to cars, usually a rubber bulb that lets out a blast like solo trumpet in the symphony, frighting farmers' horses into the fields. Later the horn was centered on the steering wheel so you could let go a blast like Gabriel's horn when the guy ahead of you was day-dreaming at the green light.

Seat belts — clear admission that you were risking your life when you climbed into a car — came along after my time, but my kids couldn't pass driver's training in high school without strapping themselves in like astronauts re-entering the earth's atmosphere.

I'm all for these safety devices, mind, but it does strike me as something of an anomaly that this modern miracle of transportation, designed for man's convenience and comfort, should need such a battery of lights, horns, and harnesses to keep him alive and well and living in Southern California.

It's called progress . . . I suppose.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are susceptible to flattery today. One who knows how to use this skillfully will get you to make concessions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's best you keep certain confidential information to yourself. A nosy friend shouldn't be told at this time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will find yourself, in the middle today when friends take definite positions on an issue they deem important.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be asked by another to assume some of her responsibilities. You'll accept reluctantly. Your heart isn't in it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It will not be easy to get your ideas across to others today. If you have important points to make, be explicit and patient.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep accurate records and receipts of transactions for anyone else that involves their money or property.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not a good day to enter into agreements or assume new obligations. You'll make a better deal later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Some of the tasks you've left undone will be begging for completion today. Pace yourself. Don't overdo.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have any qualms about going to a social function, it's best you stay home. It won't be any fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're likely to start several projects around home without completing any. You'll inconvenience yourself and others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be wary of anything you put in writing today. Also guard your conversation, for it will be difficult to retract.

Erma Bombeck

I have always said if the Good Lord had meant for me to speak in the mornings, He'd have put a recording in my chest and a string in the back of my neck.

I don't understand people who can hop out of bed and synchronize their lips with words to form sentences and communicate ideas. I don't reach this point until after lunch.

I have a basic morning vocabulary of 20 words: No. I don't care. It's in the dirty clothes hamper. What's your name? Mustard or catsup? In your father's billfold. There have been no subtractions or additions in 21 years.

The other morning I shuffled to the kitchen and mechanically did my thing. My daughter said, "I need to buy . . . "

"In your father's billfold," I interrupted.

"Where's my favorite V-neck sweater?" said a son.

"In the dirty clothes hamper."

"Can I wear it?"

"No."

"Then I'll sit by an open window and probably die before lunch."

"Mustard or catsup?" I muttered holding his sandwich.

"Catsup."

As I opened the sandwich and tried to force the catsup out, the phone rang . . .

"Hello," said my daughter. "Just a minute. It's for you, Mom."

"I shook my head."

"She can't come to the phone now," she said tartly. "She's hitting the bottle."

"What's your name?" I asked my youngest. He told me and I scribbled it on his lunch bag.

"Wilma Whiplash called," said my daughter pressing a message in my bathrobe pocket. "She'd like to meet you for lunch at one of the House of Chicken."

I nodded mutely. All morning I thought about Wilma Whiplash. Who was she? Had I met her and couldn't remember? Was she an old schoolmate? An Avon lady? A program chairman? An editor's wife? One of my children's teachers? A secretary trying to pedal underground pictures of the office Christmas party?

"I'm Wilma Whiplash," said a voice at 1 p.m. at the House of Chicken. "I know you don't know me, but I read your column in the newspaper and figured you'd be a scream at lunch."

"What'syour name?" I asked dryly.

"Wilma Whiplash," she smiled. "Your dress is darling. Where did you get it?"

"In the dirty clothes hamper."

"Ah . . .what are you drinking?"

"I don't care. Mustard or catsup."

"Where do you get all your wild ideas?"

"In your father's billfold," I said numbly.

I felt sorry for her, but it served her right.

U.S. heard of Chile coup shortly before it occurred

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States apparently heard of plans for the overthrow of the Allende government in Chile shortly before the coup occurred, but the White House said today President Nixon had no advance knowledge of it.

Administration sources, who declined to be identified, said information about the attempt to oust Chile's Marxist president, Salvador Allende, reached some high-level U. S. officials about 10 hours before a fourman military junta seized power Tuesday. A decision was made that the United States should not become involved, the sources said.

The White House, questioned about U.S. policy regarding the coup, said "we have been receiving reports of unrest in the military (in Chile) for more than a year" and that some of the reports included specific dates for action to depose Allende.

"Beyond these rumors, the President had no advance knowledge of a specific coup and therefore could not and did not make a decision one way or another about communicating with the Chilean government," said the deputy presidential press secretary, Gerald L Warren.

The U.S. embassy in Santiago, he said, had instructions "to have nothing to do with anyone approaching them about possible plans for a coup and these instructions were followed carefully."

At the State Department, a spokesman said the department received hints of a coup plan for three different dates over the past five days —including Tuesday —but insisted there was "absolutely no way of knowing" that a military takeover was going to occur Tuesday.

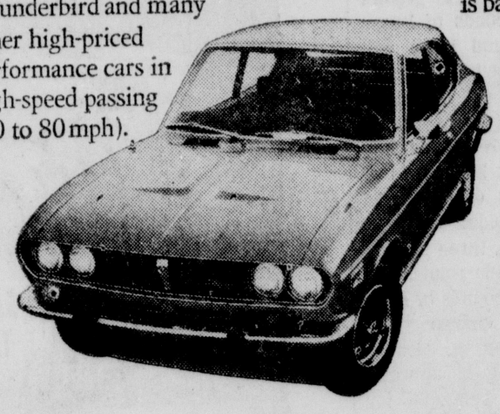
If you've heard that most new cars have a performance problem, drive a rotary-engine Mazda.

Many people are finding out that new cars don't run as well as the ones they traded in.

With complex smog devices, they're harder to start and more reluctant to move. They conk out in traffic. They're anemic passers and hill-climbers. And new models have been using more gas.

But there's one car that's not suffering from all these problems. Mazda. With its rotary engine and thermal reactor system, Mazda has proven it can run clean and still run strong.

One proof of strong performance is high-speed acceleration—so important to your safety when passing a truck or a line of traffic on the highway. According to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration figures, the Mazda RX-2 with standard transmission beats Jaguar XJ6, Thunderbird and many other high-priced performance cars in high-speed passing (50 to 80 mph).



And Mazda makes long trips seem shorter, less tiring. Its rotary engine runs with uncanny smoothness at speeds faster than you'll ever drive. (It'll do over 120.)

You can pay a lot more for a car and still not get Mazda's kind of performance. With the rotary-engine Mazda, the thrill is back.

Mazda performs.

The thrill is back.

The doctor comments

Atromid-S can cause some side effects

DEAR DR. LAMB— How valuable is Atromid-S (Clofibrate) to the health and elimination of excess cholesterol in a woman's body? I am in my 60s and my doctor says I must take Atromid-S twice every day in order to keep my cholesterol level down. I also have hardening of the arteries and have had dizzy spells at times. When I leave Atromid-S off my dizziness goes away. Do I get toxic to it or what? I also take a nicotinic acid tablet when I need it for dizziness. It helps some.

Is there anything else I could take to lower my cholesterol and help with my hardening of the arteries that's better than Atromid-S and which would not cause me to be dizzy? I do not mind taking medicine, but I do not want any if I do not need it, and especially when it causes me to be dizzy. I can't even focus my eyes. That is true. Otherwise, I am in very good health, enjoy living and what work I'm capable of doing.

Dear Reader — Atromid-S is a very good medicine and has been useful in lowering the cholesterol in many people. Like most other medicines, it can cause side effects in some people.

Atromid-S can cause dizziness, but I do not know whether your dizziness is caused by Atromid-S, or whether it's caused by your hardening of the arteries itself, which can also cause this problem. Your statement that you don't have dizziness when you don't take Atromid-S and that you do when you take it, strongly suggests that it is the Atromid-S. You should talk to your doctor about this and, perhaps, with a period of testing off the medicine, you can find out for certain whether the Atromid-S is related to your problem or whether it's really caused by your atherosclerosis and its affect on the blance centers and mechanisms responsible for dizziness.

You didn't mention your weight, but in general anyone who has any significant amounts of fat deposits under his skin can decrease the cholesterol and blood fat level by adequate weight reduction, This often is not as successful as it could be because patients never really lose all of their excess fat.

To achieve the maximum benefits from fat reduction it's necessary to lose almost all of it. Otherwise, it's like trying to treat a severe diabetic with a very small dose of insulin. Although insulin is a wonderful medicine, small doses will not control severe diabetes, and similarly, eliminating only a small amount of obesity will not significantly decrease blood fat and cholesterol levels. If you have evidence of fat around the small of the back or around the navel underneath the skin, there are pounds you could lose.

Despite the value of medicines in lowering cholesterol, I don't believe that they are replacement for proper prevention of obesity and adjustment of the diet along the lines that have been recommended to prevent atherosclerosis. If these measures are properly carried out, medicine is often not necessary. Doctors sometimes give medicine in desperation because their patients will not stay on the type of diet which will control their obesity and blood fat or cholesterol levels. Unfortunately, it is easier to give a pill than to teach people proper nutrition. Many patients would rather take a pill than do something about their eating habits.

Although I am happy to endorse the proper use of medicines, I am not in favor of using them as a substitute for correct living patterns, which include proper diet, body fat reduction, proper physical activity, and elimination of harmful habits.

Livestock for sale at fair's auction

Prices won't be frozen, but Southern Californias who are tired of the meat shortage can have some frozen and delivered freezer-ready if they buy an animal at the junior livestock auction at the fair Wednesday.

Champion, reserve champion and blue ribbon beef, lambs and hogs will be offered at the sale by 4-H members, Future Farmers and college agriculture students.

Champion and reserve champion normally are bought by commercial concerns who pay considerably more than market value for the publicity benefit. Prices paid generally are enough above the live weight market to help the students with their projects, but still give buyers substantial savings from retail prices while getting superior quality meat.

Market animals entered in the junior livestock division are 211 steers, 341 sheep and 189 swine. All of these will not be offered through the sale though. Normally, between a third and a half of the market animals shown end up on sale.

Brochures giving detailed information sale procedures and buying tips are available from the Los Angeles County Fair office: P.O. Box 2250, Pomona, 9766.

An easy rule to determine what processed meat will cost is that steers and lambs finish at about 45 per cent of live weight and hogs finish about 65 per cent.

A 1,000-pound steer will yield approximately 135 pounds of steaks, 125 pounds of roasts, 95 pounds of ground meat and 95 pounds of lesser cuts. A 100-pound lamb will yield about 11 pounds of legs; 11 pounds of chops; 13 pounds of shoulder and 10 pounds of lesser cuts. A 200-pound hog will yield about 26 pounds of ham, 20 pounds of chops, 26 pounds of shoulder cuts, 24 pounds of bacon, three pounds of spareribs, 16 pounds of sausage and 15 pounds of lard.

Processing charge for slaughtering, cutting, wrapping and freezing is approximately $90 for a steer, $45 for a hog and $5.50 for a lamb.

Arrangemens for processing can be made at the time of purchase.

Purchases can be paid for by BankAmericard, Master Charge, cash or personal check. Bank of America is providing personnel to clerk the sale.

Families who do not have freezer facilities for an entire animal may join with friends to share one or more animals.

Besides individuals and businesses, service clubs, lodges and unions can buy animals for barbecues, to give to charities or to use as fund raisers by selling packaged cuts to members.

U.S., Canada air accord opens routes

OTTAWA (UPI) —Transport Ministeryean Marchand annuonced the United States and Canada have reached agreement in principle on a major new air agreement that would open up 46 new routes between the two countries and permit customs preclearance of passengers in both directions.

The minister said there was only one major obstacle reamaining before ratification of the agreement—U.S. insistence on a new arrangement to cover charter flights between the countries, most of which now are made by Canadian carriers. He said he thought an agreement could be reached on charters within the next few days.

He said the agreement, reached Monday after four years of sometimes tense negotiations, would take effect as soon as it was ratified and signed by both governments. The new routes would be phased in gradually by airlines over a seven-year period.

Under the agreement, U.S. airlines would get 28 new routes to Canada in addition to their present 21, and Canadian airlines would get 18 new routes in addition to their present 14.

Pre-clearance arrangements, which allow passengers to clear customs at their point of departure, would be established in both countries wherever the airlines requested and there was sufficient volume to justify hiring the personnel, Marchand said.

Previously preclearance had only been available at a few locations and Canada cancelled those arrangements earlier this year during a breakdown in the U.S.-Canadian negotiations.

Marchand said he expected preclearance would probably be established in Canada at Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal, Halifax, Edmonton and Calgary. He said U.S. points would depend on the airlines but he expected Miami and New York City will be obvious early choices.

Marchand termed the tentative agreement "perhaps the largest and most complex in world aviation history" and said it was "a little like the auto pact" which established free trade in automobiles six years ago.

In 1972 there were 3.9 million one way air trips by passengers between the United States and Canada. Canadian airlines carried slightly more than half the travellers, the majority of whom were Canadians.

For Canada, the new air routes would be: Calgary-Winnipeg-New York; Calgary - Chicago; Winnipeg - Chicago; Montreal-Toronto-Los Angeles; Toronto-Dallas-Fort Worth - Houston; Montreal - Cleveland; Montreal-Toronto-San Francisco; Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle; Edmonton-Calgary-Los Angeles; Edmonton-Calgary-San Francisco; Vancouver-San Francisco-Los Angeles; Hamilton-Pittsburgh; Quebec City-New York; Halifax - Bangor - Portland - Montreal; Montreal-Boston; Toronto-Boston; Toronto-Hamilton-Pittsburgh; Sydney-Boston.

For the United States, the new air routes would be: Chicago-Minneapolis-St. Paul-Winnipeg Edmonton-Anchorage; Milwaukee-Duluth-Superior Winnipeg; Chicago-Vancouver; Los Angeles-Toronto - Montreal; Rochester-Buffalo-Montreal; Milwaukee-Detroit-Toronto; Cleveland-Toronto; Chicago-Montreal; San Francisco - Toronto-Montreal; Houston-Dallas-Fort Worth-Toronto-Montreal; Detroit-Montreal; Cleveland-Montreal; Houston - Dallas - Fort Worth-Calgary-Edmonton Anchorage-Fairbanks; Denver-Great Falls-Calgary-Edmonton; Honolulu-Vancouver; Spokane-Vancouver; Los Vegas-Calgary-Edmonton; Spokane Calgary-Edmonton;

San Francisco - Calgary-Edmonton; Los Angeles-Calgary-Edmonton; Pittsburgh - Toronto; Albany-Burlington-Montreal; Boston-Toronto; Philadelphia-Toronto; RochesterToronto; Philadelphia-Montreal; Fairbanks-Inuvik; Bismark-Minot-Winnipeg.

The original amusement parks in 17th century England and France were known as "pleasure gardens."

Roosevelt joins tax limit move

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — James Roosevelt, son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, is among 12 prominent Californians named to a special committee to oversee the campaign for Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax limitation initiative

The appointments to the "blue ribbon" committee were announced Wednesday by Californians for Lower Taxes, the group formed by Reagan earlier this year to qualify the measure for the Nov. 6 ballot and promote it across the state.

Roosevelt, 66, is a former Democratic congressman and the unsuccessful Democratic gubernatorial candidate in 1950, losing by a 2-1 margin to Earl Warren. He also is a former Democratic national committeeman from California.

Also named to the committee was Ben Swig, 80, owner and operator of a string of hotels, including the Fairmont in San Francisco. He also is a prominent Democratic party financier.

The other 10 appointees were:

—David Packard, 60, former assistant secretary of defense. A Republican, he is a partner in Hewlett-Packard Co. of Palo Alto.

—Mack Easton, 56, president of the California Taxpayers Association. A Republican, he is manager of the Pacific Coast Territory Tax Department for Sears, Roebuck Co.

—Newton Steward, 53, a Republican and president of the State Board of Education.

—Former State Sen Hugh M. Burns, 71, Fresno, president pro tem of the Senate from 1957 to 1969. A Democrat, he is presently chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board.

—Allan Grant, 66, president of the California Farm Bureau Federation and State Board of Agriculture. A Republican, he also is a voting member of the University of California Board of Regents.

—Dr. J. Clayburn LaForce, 44, a Republican and chairman of the Department of Economics at UCLA.

—Phil Watson, 48, Los Angeles County assessor for the past 11 years. He is a Republican.

—Vernon Orr, 56, Republican director of the State Department of Finance.

—Rabbi Edgar Magnin, 83, a Los Angeles Republican and an officer of the National Service Organizations and the National Council of Jews and Christians.

—Moon Lee, 69, a member of the California Highway Commission. A Republican, he is a retired Weaverville businessman.

Oakland mayor urging trade with Russians

OAKLAND (UPI) —Mayor John Reading said that tremendous trade possibilities exist between Russian and the Port of Oakland.

Reading recently returned from visiting Nakhodka in the Soviet Union. The port development in the city is bigger than all Bay Area ports combined, he said.

Reading said trade could be increased because of the improved port conditions and a new Russian attitude of openness.

Reading said he was impressed with the Russians' technical abilities but not the Communist system.

"If anyone has to be impressed with the capitalistic society, let them visit a Russian city," he said.

The mayor said housing was "minimal" and workers had to put in a 48-hour week with no right to strike.

Reagan inks grand jury age measure

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill declaring that a person is competent to serve on a Grand Jury if he is 18 years old rather than 21 or older was signed recently by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The measure (AB67) was authored by Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades.

The Spectrosonic design philosophy is simple: each model is designed to provide the best receiver value in a particular price range, be it low, medium or high. One way this is done is by using the same tuner section in all the models, a tuner section with some pretty impressive readings, like a 63 dB signal-to-noise ratio, harmonic distortion (stereo) of .4%, and alternate channel selectivity of 63 dB. This Spectrosonic 110's direct-coupled amplifier section produces a healthy 20 watts (RMS) per channel across the entire audible bandwidth with impressively low accompanying distortion levels. Convenience features on the front panel include a headphone jack, main/remote speaker selection, and a loudness contour to compensate for the ear's decreased sensitivity to bass notes at low volume levels. The Spectrosonic 110-4 regularly sells for $239.95; the walnut case is extra.

Garrard's 42M is an updated version of their very popular 40B model and it adds an anti-skate control to the total reliability of its predecessor. A base and a Shure M75ECS elliptical cartridge are included in the very reasonable $64.95 price.

Quadraflex 22's are small speakers but they sound just fine. They're two-way acoustic suspension systems with a six-inch bass and three-inch treble speaker in each handsome walnut veneer cabinet. The Quadraflex 22's normally sell for $99.90 a pair.

Join Our Bose Huddle

Bose speakers are worthy of a little explanation and now seems a most appropriate time since our demos are being offered at substantially lower prices. Bose speakers utilize a special design to bounce the sound off the walls of your listening room so your ears receive much the same proportions of direct and radiated sound as they would in a concert hall. The result is these speakers offer a sound that is startlingly realistic.

The larger 901's have nine identical speakers in each cabinet and the system comes with an equalizer that helps these speakers reach as far down the scale as you can go; the equalizer also lets you adjust the frequency response to suit your particular room. The 901's are fair-traded at $496 a pair (including equalizer) but our demos are now just $416.

Bose's second system, the 501, offers much of the sonic realism found in the 901 but at a significantly lower price. This system uses a pair of mid-range/treble speakers angled to the rear for the reflected sound, and a 10" speaker is used for the bass; no equalizer is used but these speakers still give an uncanny concert hall "presence." The fair-trade price for a pair of the 501's is $248 but our demos are just $104.50.

This Bose demo sale is a great opportunity for the serious listener but you'll have to hurry if you want a pair; our limited supply of demos is bound to go fast.

The Sony PS-5520 is a fine machine for playing your records. You can get a good idea of its quality from the fact that we match it with an ADC 10E Mark IV elliptical diamond cartridge, a near flawless performer that normally sells for $39.95. See the Season in Full Color

We realize that it's a bit unusual to see a television set in a stereo component store, but this Sony Trinitron color TV is something very special and deserving of special mention. All the Trinitron sets use a single electron gun (instead of the usual three) to produce what's easily the best color picture we've ever seen: it's even bright enough for viewing in broad daylight. All the Sony Trinitron color sets have an advanced solid state circuitry that is both remarkably reliable and easily serviced. Lots of new fall specials and plenty of good football, plus the price of $399.95, are a couple of good reasons to give this Sony 15" (diagonal) color set a long look.

60-Day Exchange Privileges and a One-Year Speaker Trial

Sometimes it's hard to know how well a system will work out until you get it home. We want you to have equipment you can live with, so if you're not happy with what you bought from us you can bring it in and exchange it within 60 days of the time you bought it. The one-year speaker trial lets you keep within your budget now by getting a system with relatively small speakers; later you can trade up to more expensive speakers with no financial loss at all. You get a full year to apply your full purchase price (on any speakers costing up to $200) in trade toward costlier speakers at their regular price.

Block Dust Damage

With the increased use of the new light-tracking cartridges, proper record care has become doubly important. Dust is attracted to your records by static electrical charges in the vinyl; this dual-sided record cleaner will not only remove the dust but also reduce the charge so proper care becomes a less frequent chore. Our price is a mere $1.52; it's a small amount of money but well spent if you really care for your albums.

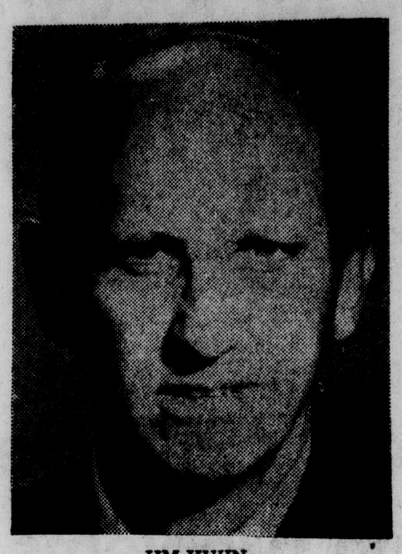
Meals on Wheels program taking shape



JIM KUHN

POMONA — With Nov. 5 set as its starting date, Pomona Meals On Wheels has elected officers, arranged for the preparation of food and provided a distribution center.

The next steps include seeking funds from the community, recruiting volunteer workers and registering recipients for the noonday meals.

Pomona Meals On Wheels is the second branch of Pomona Valley Meals On Wheels, with the Claremont MOW established in September 1972. A third branch is planned in the La Verne-San Dimas area.

Other Meals on Wheels have been established in Ontario-Upland and Chino.

Officers of the Pomona MOW elected last week are Jim Kuhn, president; Ruth Wallis, vice president; Louise Pavey, secretary; and Beatrice Grossman, treasurer. Also on the board are Mary Cross, Barbara Graves, Lillian Greene, Martha Hartshorn, Claire Lortie, G. Nelson Lortie, Jennie Ramirez, Anne Shotwell and Satina Smith.

Pomona MOW is a nonprofit, all-volunteer community project planned to provide a nutritious midday meal to shut ins who are unable to prepare well balanced meals for themselves.

Persons recuperating from serious illness or surgery will be eligible for the meal service during their recovery. The meals will be delivered throughout Pomona each week, Monday through Friday.

Pomona Valley Community Hospital will supply the prepared food at cost. Vounteers will take the bulk food to the Pomona Presbyterian Church where other teams of volunteers will pack the food into individual containers, separating the hot and cold portions.

Costing $1.80 per day, the meal will include a meat, two vegetables, salad, bread and margarine, a dessert and beverage. Recipients on state aid can obtain special food allowances if they need MOW. The project is planned as a self-sustaining program once it is established.

Teams of volunteers will deliver the food to the shut-ins who have signed up for the service. Hot servings will be carried in special heated boxes and cold foods, in an ice chest.

Funds are needed to purchase hot boxes, cold chests, meal containers and other equipment. Donations to Pomona Meals on Wheels are tax deductible.

Approximately 80 to 110 volunteers are needed in November. It is planned to have different teams of volunteers working each day, with most men or women working about an hour, two or three times a month.

As projected for the beginning of the program, 50 persons can be accepted to receive the meals. Applications are now being taken and can be made by calling 623-0010.

Persons interested in volunteering their time, donating funds or wishing to know more about MOW may also call 623-0010 or write to P.O. Box 684, Pomona, Calif., 91769.

Planners propose Ganesha Hills controls

By L.T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

POMONA — More city control over development of a section of the Ganesha Hills may soon be imposed.

The Pomona Planning Commission has recommended a hillside overlay zone be applied to 37 acres at the west end of the Ganesha Hills, generally bounded by Ganesha Boulevard, Gillette Road and Val Vista and McKinley avenues. The action was opposed by one property owner.

That area, now zoned for single-family residences, contains two reservoir sites, the Castaway Restaurant, four single-family homes and vacant land.

Applying the overlay will give the city additonal controls over development by limiting the amount of "cut and fill" and also specifying the type of ground cover to prevent erosion, said James Lighfoot, city planning aide. The present zoning will remain.

"There are no developments proposed now for that area, and the reason we seek the overlay is to prepare for any future developments," he explained.

Joel Baldwin, who owns 6.5 acres near Ganesha Boulevard and the San Bernardino Freeway, said his property is planned for highway commercial use. "But this overlay will put too many restrictions to interest anyone in developing it," he added.

The city could require a "green belt," which if applied here, would leave only a small amount of property to develop, said Baldwin.

"Also, I would have to go through another layer of government to get anything done. I don't see any reason why I should be included in the hillside overlay and put extra stress on any developer who wants to develop the property."

In a staff presentation, officials reported the overlay is intended to encourage the orderly development of the hillside areas by regulating the number and distribution of buildings so the terrain would suffer minimum disfigurement and scarring.

Regulations are also intended to minimize danger to life and property from the hazards of flood, fire, erosion and slippage.

Sanford Sorensen, city planner, said the additional requirements are reasonable and he didn't believe they would hamper any development.

Jerry Case, a trustee of the Ganesha Hills Property Owners Association, said the group had first believed this overlay was to open the area for higher residential density.

"We did not want that to occur. We are convinced this will not do that. We have no objections to the proposal."

Commissioners voted 7-0 for the overlay. Their recommendation will go before the City Council Sept. 24 for final action.

Forum opens with film on famed road

POMONA — Film producer and narrator Gene Wiancko will open the 1973-74 Pomona Forum season Monday at 7:45 p.m. in the Education Center auditorium with a film entitled "Magic Road: Kyoto to Tokyo."

Wiancko spent a year in Japan makin the film.

It features life along the Old Tokaido Road, for centuries the most famous thoroughfare in the Orient.

He also shows ancient castles, woodblock artistry, Shinto traditions, Buddhism, the kite battle of Hammatsu, Nikko, women's life today, a Shinto wedding ceremony and the children of today's Japan.

Talent agency search for child seen as cruel appeal

I received a letter from National Talent Associates which stated, "Your child has recently been brought to our attention . . . it is possible we might be quite interested in your child."

This letter distressed me greatly as my child, had he lived, would have been only six months old now. He died when he was only four days old. I feel this is a cruel cut and should be stopped from happening to anyone else.

I would appreciate any help you could give me in stopping this form of advertising. — Mrs. J. M.,Chino.

You enclosed the letter from the talent agency, which stated, in part: "Information and referrals come to us from parents of our children who feel some other child may have the necessary qualifications for the commercial advertising field, and other available sources."

The same day you wrote to us, you wrote to the talent agency, saying, "If you are going to snoop into other people's private lives, you should do a better job."

We followed up your letter with one of our own to the agency regarding your concern. J. P. Ashfield, executive vice-president, sent us a copy of a letter of apology to you.

He wrote that " . . . this error has never occurred before. Our business requirements do cause us to turn to commercial lists of children of specific ages since they grow so rapidly and so very few do qualify. We believe that your name was included on just such a list.

"We do get many names from people of children they think should be in this business, but it is inconceivable to me that anyone would deliberately do such a thing."

This is in regard to the property next door to mine. The occupants have moved away.

The grass is dry and knee deep. The house itself is being demolished. Not only is it an eyesore, but a potential fire hazard.

I have written to the Veterans Administration, but they say they are no longer owners of the property. Then I called the fire department and was promised someone would be out to inspect the grounds and house but no one from that department has been out.

Perhaps you can help me as I am greatly afraid that someone might set the place afire. — D. W., Pomona.

We referred your problem to Maggie O'Donnell, Pomona's housing coordinator. She referred the weed problem to the fire department and assures us it will be taken care of.

She learned that the house is in the process of foreclosure, which takes at least six or seven months.

Now that she knows about the house, the city can order it boarded up and will do so.

Abandoned houses in Pomona number 648. The greatest number, 328, are owned by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) under the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) titles.

Mrs. O'Donnell said the owner has the primary responsibility for maintenance of empty houses but the city can board them up when that responsibility isn't met.

She hopes other citizens will let the city government know when such a problem exists.

The high cost of food is too much.

Where is the nearest consumers cooperative?

How much does it cost to join and how much do members save on their food bills?—R.M., Claremont.

Jerry Voorhis, former congressman and an authority on cooperatives, answered this for you and Action Line, remarking that he wished he had a better answer.

The Santa Monica Consumer Cooperative is the closest, he says. The address is 2021 S. Barrington Ave., Los Angeles.

Voorhis couldn't tell anyone with absolute assurance how much they would save on their food bill by trading at a cooperative.

"What I can say," he told Action Line, "is that whatever earnings the cooperative makes belongs not to the cooperative but to its members and are returned to them in patronage refunds at the end of each accounting period.

"It is also true that one can be quite certain in a cooperative of getting honest quality and honest pricing usually in the form of unit pricing and that the members have something to say about the policies of their store."

We wrote to the Santa Monica organization to try to get some figures but so far its members have been too busy cooperating to answer.

NEW BANK BUILDING

Artist's rendering depicts new office building to be constructed at 255 W. Mission Blvd. across from the Pomona Civic Center. When completed in mid-July 1974, more than 16,000 square feet of the new building will house the Bank of California's Pomona office, now located at 101 S. Main St., and an additional 7,000 square feet of office space will be available for lease. Building was designed by Kurt Meyer and Associates and the builder is Casner Construction Co. of Temple City. The building is part of an office-financial center planned on two downtown blocks by Pomona Development Co.

3-day paving project slated for Indian Hill

POMONA — Indian Hill Boulevard, from American Avenue to Holt Avenue, will be paved starting Monday, a project that will take three days to complete.

A slurry mix previously was applied to that section of Indian Hill to seal cracks in the existing pavement.

The paving will start at American in the southbound lanes and proceed south.

During the three days, northbound and southbound traffic will be restricted to one lane of travel in each direction. and the eastbound and westbound traffic at the intersecting streets will be diverted until the finish of the daily paving operation.

Upon completion of the paving operation, city striping crews will restripe Indian Hill in patterns to provide for left turn lanes, with two lanes of travel in the northbound direction and two lanes of travel in the southbound direction.

"The city public works department recommends that those persons who regularly travel on Indian Hill utilize alternate routes if possible in order to avoid the resulting traffic restrictions caused by the paving operation," said Traffic Engineer Richard Barrera.

School lunch, milk prices are increased

POMONA — Public school children will pay $2.50 a week to eat in school cafeterias this year.

And those who bring a sandwich and an apple in a brown bag will pay more for their milk than they did last year.

This year it will cost 50 cents a day to eat in the "cafe," up from 45 cents last year. This meal will include a half-pint of milk.

The child who buys milk separately will pay 10 cents for a half-pint, up from five cents last year.

Older pupils who buy a third of a quart of milk will pay 15 cents this year, up from seven cents last year.

Higher food prices and discontinuance of the government milk subsidy made the increases necessary, school administrators said.

School cafeterias will begin serving food Monday.

Young Pomonan arrested in rape of Ontario girl

ONTARIO — Ontario police have arrested a 17-year-old Pomona youth in connection with the rape of a 15-year-old girl in the Linda Vista Elementary School yard last Friday morning.

Detective Dave Simpson said the youth was arrested in Pomona following an investigation. Two other youths were questioned about the rape and later released without charge.

Last Friday the girl was driven from Pomona to the Ontario school yard at 1556 S. Sultana Ave. against her will. She was raped in the school yard and then freed by her abductor.

Police said the name of the suspect youth would not be released because of a State Supreme Court ruling prohibiting police departments from revealing the names of juvenile offenders.

Public support sought

Group expresses faith in cultural center goal

By TONY NAVARRO
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — A group of public spirited citizens, spurred by faith more than anything else, got together again Thursday night as part of a campaign to drum up public support for a Pomona civic auditorium and social and cultural center.

No specific plan of action has yet been drawn on how to make the proposed social and cultural center a reality, but the group nevertheless is moving ahead — from the organization standpoint — to push for completion of construction in time to celebrate the nation's bicentennial in 1976.

"I think it's a great privilege to have the opportunity to work for something I know is worthwhile," said Mrs. Harry Williamson, one of two temporary co-chairmen of the group, called The Citizens' Committee of '76.

"If we make up our minds to get that building, we're going to get it," she said. Fred Graff is the other temporary co-chairman.

The committee plans to achieve nonprofit corporate status under state and federal laws and 22 members met Thursday at the groups second public meeting at the Great Western Savings and Loan Association building to review proposed by-laws.

The by-laws, drafted by a subcommittee made up of Graff, C. Mack Gilliland of the Valley Community Theater, and Parks and Recreation Commissioner Richard Owens, were placed on a first reading and will be submitted for final approval at another meeting Oct. 30.

The October meeting will be held in the school district auditorium. Mrs. Williamson said she was hopeful individual citizens and organizations would get behind the move by circulating petitions and resolutions, available from the committee, for subsequent presentation to the City Council.

She was also hopeful the October meeting would attract a large turnout.

One of the purposes of the Committee of '76, according to the proposed by-laws is:

"To initiate, encourage, generate, and actively support coordinated and properly executed efforts that have the intent of building a social and cultural center to serve all the people of Pomona, to be presented to the citizens of this city as a memorial of the bicentennial celebration of the birth of the nation on July 4, 1976."

SHE'S A CLOWN

Happy, one of the leading female clowns in the state, will be at Pomona Valley Center Saturday at noon for a fiesta celebration. Happy the Clown will sign autographs and make balloon animals for children. There will also be arts and crafts exhibits, musical groups plus free soft drinks and balloons for children. Happy has appeared on several TV shows.

A shield law for the press?

Last summer the U.S. Supreme Court by the narrow margin of 5 to 4 held that members of the press cannot refuse to testify before a grand jury if they have been supboenaed to do so.

The act seemed to cheapen the guarantees of the First Amendment and its provisions for a free press.

Expectedly, the response to the high court's decision was swift, and the outcry against it was well articulated by people in and out of journalism.

The critics were fearful that the effect of the decision would be to deprive a reporter of his most precious tools — sole control of his notes and research material and his right to keep the identity of his sources to himself. And ultimately, went the fears, the public's right to know would be drastically mollified.

Legislative bills were not long in coming, and they are known as "shield laws" designed to protect the reporter from subpoena.

No such legislation now exists, for until the Supreme Court's ruling last summer, the First Amendment had been assumed to provide adequate protection for the press and its business of gathering and disseminating news.

At the outset, the shield law concept seemed simple enough — certainly a noble idea founded on the solid logic that the right of this nation to a free press should be infinitely defined and strengthened.

A total shield law was proposed in the Senate by Alan Cranston of California. But Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina held that a "complete shield" would extend beyond reasonable legislation, and he introduced a bill that would provide for a "partial shield."

The Ervin bill would recognize subpoenas of reporters under certain circumstances.

In the House, Rep. Tom Railsback of Illinois introduced a bill containing even less protection for newsmen than is contained in the Ervin bill.

The dialogue resulting from the proposed legislation has proved that the shield law precept is far more complex than it initially was believed to be.

There are weaknesses in it. Weaknesses, we believe, that are profound enough to render the proposed legislation excessive, and an ominous threat rather than a protective blanket over the freedom of information.

Item — Who is the press, and just who would be shielded? Anyone, even a publisher of a pamphlet or an underground publication, could call himself a news reporter.

Writing in the Wall Street Journal, Vermont Royster said, "If this proposed law creates a blanket shield to permit any newsman to decline to testify before grand juries or courts, then anyone — even a member of the Mafia — could hide behind it."

Royster further points out that if the law would require that a reporter be defined, it would be tantamount to licensing of newsmen — a suggestion generally repugnant to all concerned.

Item — Once the Congress extends itself into the area of a free press, where will it stop? One Congress may provide a shield law, but another Congress could take it away, or even pass laws that would prove to be even more restrictive. The area of free press has no room for legislation.

Item — Why should newsmen be given statutory protection not applied to others? Speaking before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington recently, Charles Bennett of the Oklahoman and Times said reporters should be treated as any other citizen. He questioned the wisdom of creating a class of citizens immune by reason of occupation.

We feel the shield law principle is too far-reaching, and poses a threat to the very freedom it is designed to protect.

The First Amendment, as weakened as it may have become recently, still represents the best hope for the preservation of the Free Press. The Supreme Court surely has not said the last word on the subject.

The First Amendment has withstood nearly 200 years of test, and has yet to be so maligned that it wholly fails in its mission.

We should, in the shield law debate, reject such legislation. We should let it be known we have faith in the U.S. Constitution — faith enough to believe it will sustain our basic freedoms as it has done since 1791.

A film for all

A controversial film project, "The Loves of Jesus Christ," has strained relations between the Danish government, which is helping finance the film, and the Roman Catholic Church before even a foot of it has been shot.

Pope Paul VI has denounced it, fire bombs have been thrown at the Danish embassy in Rome, threats have been made against the Danish embassy in Madrid and hundreds of protest letters have reportedly poured into the other Danish embassies and Ministry of Culture in Copenhagen.

Although the ministry maintains that there is nothing offensive in the script, the independent Danish Film Institute, which is putting up about $100,000 for the film, describes it as "pornographic, obscene and blasphemous." But, it adds, it is also "full of love, vibrancy, warmth and humanity."

Not to get involved in the argument, this would seem to be one picture that has something for everybody.

Stamping out world opium supply

WASHINGTON — The colorful Shan guerriilas have offered to sell the United States most of the Soutneast Asian opium crop and to wage war on any other opium convoys that may try to operate in the area.

In exchange, they want $12 million in hard cash and a U.S. promise to help them win autonomy from Burma.

This astonishing proposal was made in writing by two top Shan leaders who sent an emissary down from the hills to meet clandestinely in Bangkok with Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y. As chairman of a House narcotics subcommittee, Wolff is the House's leading expert on Burma-Thai-Laos opium production. He was in Bangkok last month on a survey with five other congressmen.

The signed Shan offer to destroy up to 400 tons of high-grade Asian opium, combined with the U.S.-sponsored crackdown on Turkish opium, theoretically could wipe out 75 per cent of the supply of heroin on America's streets. And $12 million admittedly would be cheaper than trying to stop the smuggling operation the hard way.

Dramatic encounter

As Wolff recounts his dramatic encounter in Bangkok, the Shan emissary, an Englishman, arranged by letter and telephone to meet with him in a hotel lobby away from his congressional colleagues. A follow-up meeting was held in a nook off a bustling Bangkok street.

The Englishman handed him the two-page proposal signed by Gen. Law Hsin Han and Boon Tai, the two rebel leaders, who also sent as evidence of good faith a handwritten list of all recent opium shipments by mule, backpack and trucks within the vast Shan state area.

Skeptical at first but eager to explore the offer, Wolff invited American diplomatic, narcotics and CIA officials in Thailand to a meeting, where he laid out the strange Shan proposal.

At this private session, the authorities confirmed that the Englishman was an authentic Shan contact and that some of the handwritten reports of opium convoys agreed precisely with their own secret information. Our own sources report that both the State Department and CIA had also been approached by the Shan insurgents but that the negotiations had been aborted by Washington.

Progress report

Wolff left it to the American officials in Bangkok to pursue the offer but asked for a quick progress report, fearing the unorthodox Shan gambit might become snarled in red tape and bureaucratic timidity.

When Wolff reached Hong Kong four days later, he was called by his Shan contact, who reported nothing whatsoever was being done about the Shan offer.

At our request, Wolff has now agreed to show us the proposal in hopes this might stir at least preliminary talks on the feasibility of buying up the Shan opium crop. After all, the United States has subsidized Turkish opium farmers with $35 million a year so they would stop growing the lethal stuff. The United States also secretly paid $1 million to Chinese traffickers and others in Thailand for contraband opium, which was burned. (A secret CIA report claims, however, that the U.S. authorities were deceived and really burned cheap fodder covered with opium.)

Wolff's document typed beneath the crossed swords letterhead of the Shan State Army, is titled "Proposals to Terminate the Opium Trade in Shan State." It begins:

"The Shan State Army and its allies will invite . . . the United States Narcotics Bureau, or any similar body, to visit the opium areas of Shan State and to transmit information about opium convoys on their own wireless.

"The S.S.A. and its allies will ensure that all opium controlled by their armies is burnt under international supervision. The opium will be sold at a price to be negotiated later, but the basis . . . should be the Thai border price." At present, this would amount to roughly $12 million for 400 tons of opium.

In return for these "temporary measures," the Shan armies want a "permanent solution" based on political self-determination for the Shans and agricultural assistance from the United States to "replace opium with other crops." If this is finally accomplished, promised the Shan leaders, they will "allow helicopters under international supervision to search out and destroy any opium fields that still remain."

In Wolff's view, the advantage of destroying 400 tons of opium far outweighs the ruffling of official Burmese feathers, which direct dealings with the Shans would cause.

Our own CIA sources confirm that the Shan State Army is a tremendous factor in the Southeast Asian drug traffic. One secret report by the CIA's Basic and Geographic Intelligence Office asserts: "The Shan State Army, the largest of several forces that have been fighting for Shan independence from Burma . . . is also heavily involved in the opium business."

Another CIA document tells of caravans of "up to 600 horses and donkeys and 300 to 400 men . . . carrying in excess of 16 tons" moving out of the Shan State. Classified CIA and Justice Department documents say 400 tons of the 700 to 750 tons of opium produced in Southeast Asia come from Burma, much of it from regions controlled or near the Shan State armies.

PAUL HARVEY

Turnaround in grain supply-demand

The callous queen, told that "there is no bread for the people," replied, "Let them eat cake!" For three generations Americans have been teaching a rice-eating world to eat bread. They've learned to prefer it. World consumption of wheat is increasing 2.5 per cent per year.

Now others are demanding ours. Despite widespread flooding in our nation's breadbasket affecting this year's crop, American farmers are outdoing themselves.

Total grain production will be up 5 per cent from last year and last year was a record. We will harvest more than ever before of wheat and corn; grain sorghums and soybeans. But we'll still not have enough to go around.

We've already promised 30 million tons of wheat to Canada and Argentina. Russia has bought 5 million tons from us and wants another 5 million.

Uncle Sam has suspended shipments of American farm produce for needy people abroad under the "food-for-peace" program, at least temporarily.

But the grains already promised to other nations under our gigantic overseas aid program will be delivered through September, including grain for victims of Africas's widespread drought.

The Administration is under pressure to curtail further exports of grains, but so far President Nixon has resisted that pressure. He considers the improvment in our trade balance and the leverage in foreign relations worth risking home-front shortages.

Just think—less than 18 months ago we were still paying American farmers "not to grow" some grains to avoid overproduction.

The supply-demand turnaround came so quickly it caught us completely off balance. Not all inflation is traceable to the food shortage, but that's where most Americans feel it most. You are now paying 6 per cent more for groceries than earlier this year and 15 per cent more than a year ago.

And the U.S. Department of Agriculture guesstimates that your food bill will advance another 7 per cent before the supply catches up with demand late this year.

No farmer now living has ever seen such a demand and such prices for what he sells.

And no consumer now living will ever see dime-a-loaf bread again. But the acute crisis in food prices will pass this year; the fever will break after Thanksgiving. Then Americans, with food supplies improving, will have to decide to what extent we want to resume feeding the have-not nations.

Our well-intentioned generosity has backfired in Indochina and India where lands which once produced rice have been idled. Reflooding riceland is tedious, takes time, is hard work. And they, like the rest of us, have less appetite for work having tasted cake.

Good in every man

I would like to thank all of the people who were so kind and helpful to us during the search for my son, Jamie Vlietstra.

First of all I would like to let the citizens of Pomona know what a dedicated group they have in the Pomona Police Department. All of the men on the shift which initiated the search volunterred to stay on the job until he was found — without pay. Our particular thanks to Sgt. Tom McCullough who stayed with us until 3:00 a.m., went to an early morning court appearance, came back to the scene until Jamie was found, and then drove up to Oxnard to tell Jamie's uncle what had happened.

The Police Explorer Scouts responded immediately to the call for help. They, together with all of the other teen-agers, kept walking all night until I told them to go home to rest. All of the young people were so willing, which demonstrates great hope for the future.

When we were out knocking on doors we found so many total strangers who joined in the search. I have no other way to express my gratitude. Thank you for showing the good which is in every man.

My everlasting thanks to my family and dear friends who are always there when the chips are down. I am grateful for all of the prayers which have sustained us.

Most of all I thank God for giving us Jamie who taught us to live every minute of every day. — Catherine Vlietstra, Apple Valley

Gossip for today

When you get right down to cases, scandals are all in the eyes of the beholder. Here in the United States, Watergate has become a nasty word although in many other countries throughout the world it is considered a mere political peccadillo.—So what IS a real public disgrace in the opinion of some of those other world powers? Well, in France as a typical example, the current scandal is that some unprincipled, unscrupulous individuals are serving old wine in new bottles.

INSIDE REPORT

Connally may give Reagan problems

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — In his debut as a Republican potentially seeking his party's presidential nomination, ex-Democrat John B. Connally showed last weekend how thoroughly and spectacularly he can sell himself to the most inbred and insular Republican true believers.

The reaction to Connally's stem-winding address to Saturday night's banquet session of the Republican state convention here was typified by one state legislative leader, rigidly conservative and long a faithful supporter of Gov. Ronald Reagan. Like many others, he arrived here curious but skeptical about Connally. After the speech, he confided to us: "If this guy is really running for President, I would say Ron has got problems." It was a frequently voiced sentiment Saturday night.

The fact that Connally was here at all removed one of the two great doubts about his prospects for the presidential nomination. Old Connally watchers doubted he would tear himself from the good life in Houston and Jamaica for the tedious Republican mashed-potato circuit. Yet, he not only came to San Diego in the first of many such party appearances but, in his press conference, sounded precisely like a presidential candidate three years before the convention.

The second and much more serious doubt concerns the congenital distrust of outsiders by fiercely partisan Republican regulars. But the regulars here were ready to be converted by convert Connally. In fact, it took only 30 minutes of Texas-style oratory.

No cross-section of GOP

Connally could not have picked a tougher debut then this convention. Scarcely a cross-section of California Republicans, those attending are hard-core conservative precinct workers fiercely devoted to Reagan's presidential ambitions. Undercurrents of doubt among California Republicans generally about their governor's qualifications for the presidency were certainly not to be found among the regulars here .

Moreover, Connally's intimate associations with Lyndon B. Johnson made him suspect. One California party strategist wondered aloud before the speech whether the old Conally-LBJ partnership might prove embarrassing in a presidential campaign. The link was underlined by the fact that Connally was accompanied here from Texas by his close friend and political adviser George Christian, President Johnson's last and favorite press secretary (and still a Democrat).

Counteracting this attitude was a masterful performance by Connally in his press conference (agreed to by him after some early balking), a 40-minute walkthrough of a $100-a-ticket cocktail party for him and finally the banquet speech itself. When Connally digressed during the speech into an impromptu lecture on international economics, some Republicans here suggested he might just be a little deeper than their own Ronald Reagan.

Although one prominent state party leader complained that Connally "sounds too much like a Baptist preacher," his evangelical conservatism delighted the rank-and-file regular from the moment he told them: "I left the Democratic party of my father's past to join the Republican party of my children's future."

Keeps discreet distance

Moreover, Connally maintained a discreet distance between himself and President Nixon without seeming anti-Nixon. At his press conference, he stressed he had not seen the president lately but implied that Mr. Nixon was belatedly taking his advice on how to handle Watergate. His prepared speech, echoing White House attacks on preoccupation with Watergate, was altered in delivery to make a more general inspirational appeal.

The sum total of this might well appeal to some influential California Republicans not here last weekend: moderate money men such as industrialist Leonard Firestone and entertainment executive Taft Schreiber who have grown distant from Reagan and are not enthusiastic about a last hurrah from Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

Indeed, singing Connally's praises behind the scenes here was one influential backroom figure in moderate Republican politics with significant money-raising talents. He was visible at Connaily's side, introducing him and his wife, Nellie, to the local fat cats at the $100 cocktail party.

However, barring the worst misfortunes befalling Reagan the next three years, it is hardly conveivable that he will even be challenged in the 1976 primary for this state's huge delegation. Reagan, lustily cheered in the convention windup Sunday morning, has no reason to fear Connally in California.

But with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew now consigned to political oblivion by head-shaking regulars here, Connally can rightly be called the second-choice in California following his triumphant debut. That's more than his most ardent supporters could have had any reason to expect after four months as a Republican and his first Republican speech.

PROBLEM PLACE, BEFORE . . .

A proposed school site in a future hillside development near The Hills in Diamond Bar—see arrow—poses an expensive problem for Walnut school planners. Even though the hilly area will be changed considerably by land moving, slopes around the school will rise about 90 feet.

. . . AND AFTER IMPROVEMENT

At Collegewood School, near Mt. San Antonio College, steep slopes surround the buildings and play area. These were planted a decade before with trees and ivy, and now present a lush appearance to the viewer. The question is should new sloped sites be similarly landscaped?

School maintenance can cost more than land in lifetime

Walnut slopes are making a mountain out of molehill

By LANGE WINCKLER
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — As home builders begin to fill in the crests and ravines of Walnut Valley, school district planners are faced with a problem: how to escape high costs for schools surrounded with unusable slopes.

Last week the district failed to convince county subdivision planners to approve a proposed school site in Diamond Bar that would give responsibility for slope improvement and maintenance to adjacent homeowners. Following established county policy, planners put the burden for maintenance on the property owner who will be looking at the slopes —the school district.

It is an expensive problem. At the elementary school site in question, in undeveloped area adjacent to The Hills housing development, slopes rise for nearly 90 feet, which district administrators say could force maintenance expenses of twice the land's value, when computed over the expected life of the school.

There are few benefits from costly slope maintenance, other than appearance. Plantings must be chosen with care, to avoid fire hazards and difficult gardening chores. The area must be kept stable to prevent slides or excessive runoff, while homeowners above represent a liability.

Children cannot use the slopes for play areas, and building into them would raise construction costs and cause problems for younger and handicapped students.

"The problem is the kind of hills we have to work with," district trustees were told at a recent meeting by George Hartnett, assistant superintendent of fiscal and facilities management. There are few areas left in the district without such high banks, he noted, asking the trustees for some guidance on a policy for working with developers to set aside areas for future school development.

Presently the district cannot afford to purchase future school sites outright, he explained. This means the schools have weaker bargaining power in negotiating for site locations — "We are forced into a leave-it-or-take-it situation," he related, not only because of money, but also because there are virtually no alternatives to the sites proposed.

If the district agrees it wants the land, Hartnett continued, then the developer will be using that information in his sales promotions. Furthermore, the district's decision affects how the property will be graded and laid out for construction, imposing something of a moral obligation on the schools to purchase the site.

In the case of the location under discussion, the property is a short distance away from an intermediate school site already owned by the district. However, trustees determined there would be no way to combine the schools together, because the land is too small. Anyhow, to do so would not be consistent with previous policy to separate elementary and intermediate schools.

So, placed in the position of accepting property considered undesirable, the district sought a way to diminish the impact of banks maintenance. But county policy would not allow placing property lines even partway down the bank.

Cost of the site was estimated at $300,000 — while maintenance over the 40-year life of the school would be $600,000, Hartnett said. Past practice, as demonstrated at Collegewood School, has been to improve banks with ivy and plantings.

Trustees will consider in the future different way to improve the slopes, possibly by leaving the areas in "natural" plantings. This would at least soften the blow of keeping up a 12-plus acre site that only offers nine usable acres.

Lecture for horse lovers attracts 120

LA PUENTE — Owners of horses are invited to attend a horsemen's lecture series each Monday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Fairgrove Elementary School cafeteria.

More than 120 persons attended the opening class last Monday.

Mike Carrigan, coordinator of the new Fairgrove Community School which is offering the series, said the purpose of the class is to tell people more about horses, their care and welfare and to answer questions regarding problems common to all who own or use horses.

Mrs. Cathy Mathews, main organizer of the series, said that in the future there would be live demonstrations on the proper way to groom a horse, correct methods of punishment and reward and safety methods for horse and handler.

Mobile class unit looking for teachers

LA PUENTE — The volunteer mobile mini-class program, sponsored by the La Puente Community Adult School, will begin its second year Oct. 1.

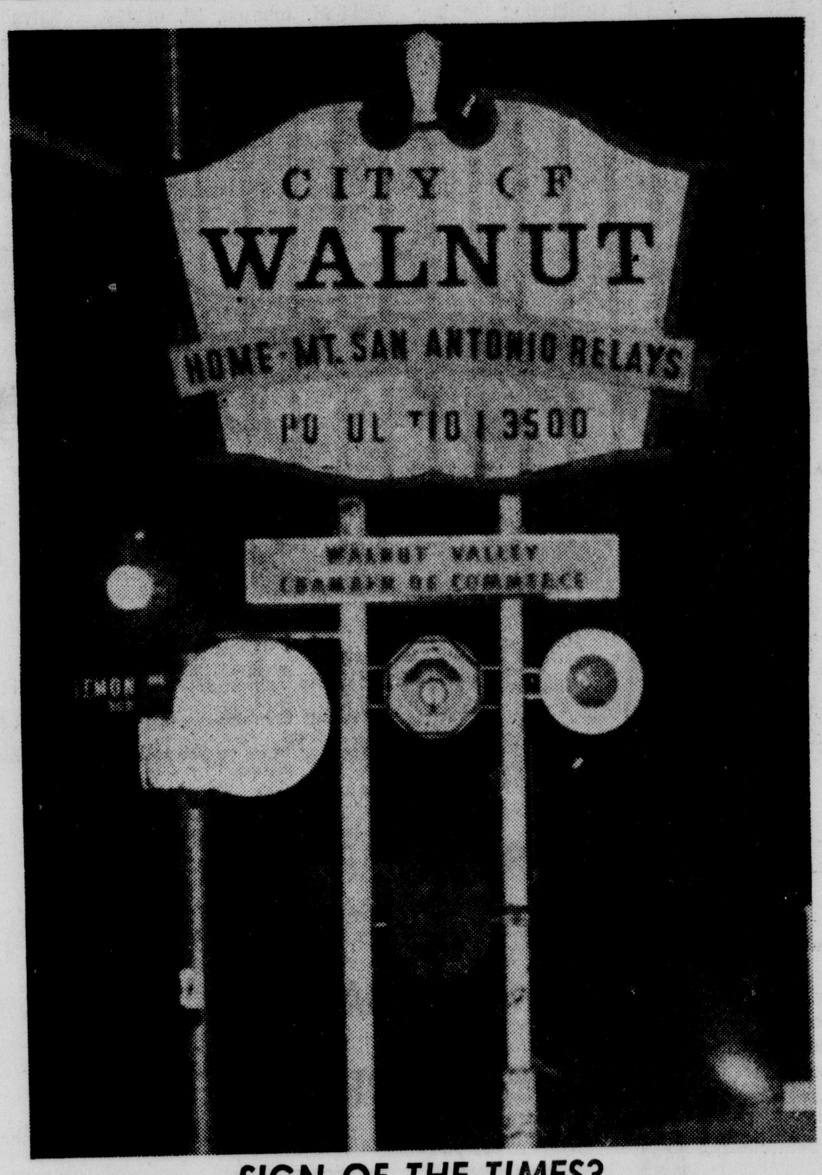
Volunteer teachers are needed to instruct one class a week for four weeks.

Coordinator Laurel Adler said instructors are needed who have a knowledge of grocery shopping to save money, crocheting, budget stretching, creative activities for children, how to make money, basic sewing, cake decorating, personal improvement, diet and exercise, what every woman should know about health education, patchwork quilting, home safety, first aide, clothing and home repair.

Anyone interested in volunteering is urged to call Miss Adler at the school office, 213 968-8452.

The mobile mini-class program utilizes two school buses for a portable classroom and a mobile childcare playroom. It travels to schools throughout the Hacienda Heights-La Puente area.

It is designed for those who would like to go to school but who, for various reasons, are unable to leave their immediate neighborhoods.



SIGN OF THE TIMES?

It's just about the most visible sign marking entry to Walnut, but this sign is in poor shape, and slightly inaccurate. City councilmen want to see it fixed or removed.

Walnut councilmen regard welcome sign as unwelcome

WALNUT — About nine months ago, the City Council here decided a sign proclaiming, "Welcome to Walnut, Home of the Mt. San Antonio Relays, pop. 3,500" was not only inaccurate, but embarrassing.

Wednesday night, the panel was reminded of its decision to give the Walnut Valley Chamber of Commerce, which donated the sign to the city, 30 days to fix it up or tear it down. The council decided to give the chamber another 30 days before removing it.

Councilman Joy Dyer raised the topic, noting the wrong population — over 5,000 now — and the dilapidated shape of the elevated placard at Lemon Avenue and Valley Boulevard. The sign is punched with holes, but a plexiglass cover makes it too much trouble to renovate. Dyer said he had received an offer to take it down in exchange for the materials in the structure.

"While I'm at it, how about coming up with a new sales slogan for Walnut," Dyer said. "I thought of 'A Hard Nut To Crack,' and 'The Lemon City,' but I don't think that quite does it."

Band Boosters in Walnut will meet

WALNUT — Band Boosters at Walnut High return to school Monday for their first meeting of the new year. The session will be held in the band room at 7:30 p.m. Interested parents are invited to attend.

Topless ban ordinance is held illegal

NEW YORK (UPI) —A federal court judge has ruled unconstitutional a North Hempstead, N.Y., town ordinance prohibiting topless dancing.

Judge John Bartels said the law, which prohibits any display of breasts in public, was so broad as to be "constitutionally invalid as an infringement on first amendment freedoms."

A suit challenging the law was brought by the owners of three taverns in the town. In a lengthy decision Bartels said the ordinance, passed earlier this year, would prevent the performance of the "Ballet African" or the musical "Hair."

Family Weekly puts spotlight on Garner

Actor James Garner, in an exclusive interview in the Progress-Bulletin's Family Weekly, Sunday says, "When I get mad, hold on to your hat!"

Hollywood editor Peer J. Oppenheimer transcribes a rare, on-location interview with Garner, a very private person off-camera, who says "I can't understand why anyone would want an opinion from me."

In frankness, Garner admits, "I have a high boiling point. Usually I boil over when I encounter dishonesty or when somebody kicks somebody else who can't fight back."

In the cookbook section, food editor Marilyn Hansen tucks in baking recipies for breads, cakes, cookies, easy doughnuts and even fried pie.

Also in Sunday's Family Weekly will be results of a poll among 625 newspaper publishers, editors and general managers who were asked: What are the issues troubling our society?"

The People Quiz, entitled "Fear and You," asks, Do people who have the most to live for have the greatest fear of dying?

Ask Dr. Brothers

In wrong career

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 30-year-old man and I'm having a bad time getting myself together in almost every way, but primarily in terms of my profession. I became lawyer because my father wanted me to, because he's a lawyer, I suppose. I now realize I loathe it. I think I knew it in college, but I'd never admit it to myself. I'd be a lot happier running a store, driving a truck or being a carpenter, which I happen to do very well. I could go into business tomorrow with a friend of mine and this would be very fulfilling to me. My wife and my father would scream themselves hoarse.

Money is not especially important to me, but it is to my wife. She feels she can't be happy without more money. She sees herself as having to live on a certain scale and she thinks everything about our marriage would suddenly be perfect if I made a lot of money. This whole question is really tearing me apart and I can't think of a solution that isn't going to upset somebody. — S. N.

Dear S N.: You have to be able to live with yourself and since you spend a good portion of your life at your work, it's essential that you please yourself in this matter.

If you could be happier being a carpenter, then by all means, follow your own feelings on this. Neither your father nor your wife can make this decision for you.

Your wife should know that money does not guarantee a happy marriage. It may help, but not if the breadwinner is discontented and anxious for the eight hours a day while the money is being earned. Studies conducted by Dr. Judson Landis, a sociologist, indicated that people tended to be the happiest during the time in their lives when they were working the hardest to make ends meet — not during the period when they were making the most money.

Money is the source of many arguments between husbands and wives and unless the couple takes time out to sit down, work out budgets and discuss attitudes about money, this subject can be a source of conflict and tension throughout their entire lives. Many disputes about how to spend money and how much money is needed to run a household could be settled by compromise. In your case, it is possible that your wife might be more contented if she earned spending money for herself or contributed to the family bank account.

The extra money you might make in a frustrating job may eventually cost not only your marital happiness but your health as well.

If you haven't already asked yourself why you feel as you do about the profession for which you trained, then it's time you try to analyze those feelings. Some men who enter the same professions as their fathers find that they have a special conflict in their career. On the one hand, they may have entered the profession to please a father they admire, and on the other hand, this very admiration may make them afraid of success for fear they will be placed in a position of competition with their parent. They may even choose failure rather than success in an attempt not to embarrass a parent, or tarnish a childhood image.

You are not alone in questioning what success means in your life. Recently, the American Management Association interviewed 2,800 businessmen and corporation executives and discovered an overwhelming 83 per cent agreed that their attitudes toward achievement and success are changing. Most of them said they feel their basic life objectives are personal, private, and family-centered. Success may really begin and end with finding out who you are, rather than what you do, or how much money you make.

Fatigue blamed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most accidents happen at midmorning and midafternoon. Many of these can be blamed on fatigue. That's why a University of Illinois safety specialist recommends the relaxation of a "coffee break."

Excessive noise leads to fatigue and hence helps cause accidents, says the expert, Ordie L. Hogsett.

Camp Fire Girls Offer new materials

This month, the Camp Fire Girls is releasing contemporary, action-oriented materials to the 400,000 members of the 63-year-old organization for youth.

The new materials for the Camp Fire Blue Birds and Adventures is in addition to the new books for Camp Fire Discovery Club and Horizon Club members published in 1971.

According to Miss Pat Bollin, executive director of Mt. San Antonio Council, the program for the 70's is completely new. Every major program book has been completely rewritten so materials are faithful to tradtional Camp Fire values, reflect the needs and interests of young people of today and help prepare them to deal competently and creatively with their futures.

Program revisions began three years ago, after consultation with leaders in education, youth work and human relations, Blue Bird and Adventure leaders, Discovery and Horizon Club members. The recommendation: An explicit re-statement of Camp Fire traditional forcus — to help young people learn what they need to know to become competent, caring and fulfilled adults.

The Camp Fire Program for the 70's is a program for adults of the future, dealing with contemporary concerns such as ecology, drugs, and family relations. It encourages self-development and self-awareness, builds skills in leadership, planning and decision-making; encourages the development of positive attitudes toward self and others and fosters a sense of community responsibility.

Outdoor activities are suggested on a year-round basis. Besides ecology, there is nature appreciation, outdoor play, camping games and skills, outdoor living, and community service. Other activities are designed to help children develop attitudes that oppose racism and sex-stereotyping. Girls are urged to develop ingenuity, creativity, initiative, perseverence, strength, autonomy, and self-confidence. Girls receive recognition for planning and decision-making as well as completion of projects.

Camp Fire Girls, Inc. was the first national, nonsectarian organization for girls in the United States. Founded 63 years ago, today's program is geared to different age levels—Camp Fire Blue Birds, ages 6 to 8; Camp Fire Adventurers, ages 9 to 11; Camp Fire Discovery Club, ages 12 to 13; and Camp Fire Horizon Club, ages 14 through high school.

Since 1971, membership in the high school age group has been open to boys. Group leadership is open to both women and men. The Mt. San Antonio Council serves 25 communities and 11,200 girls and adults in the Pomona-Walnut Valley, East San Gabriel Valley and west end of San Bernardino County.

Mt. San Antonio Council is a member agency of United Way, Inc. and West End United Way.

President says he's suffering from hay fever

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — President Nixon told reporters Thursday he is suffering from hay fever.

As a few reporters and photographers were admitted to the Oval Office for the start of a meeting by Nixon with some congressmen on trade legislation, the President remarked:

"The press is always interested in presidential health. If my eyes are swollen ... I'm having my usual bout with hay fever.

"It starts about the 5th of September and lasts till around the 3rd of October. I don't get it in the spring.

"It hits me in the eye. They say take shots. But I find the shots are worse than the hay fever."

The President did not say who they were who recommended shots. His doctors have insisted he does not have any allergies.

Beef dealer refunding $101,000 overpricing

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —A Philadelphia beef wholesaler will refund more than $101,000 to retail meat dealers as a result of violations of Phase III price regulations.

The Philadelphia office of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) also announced Tuesday that Kansas Beef Industries of Philadelphia, Inc., based in Wichita, Kan., would pay $20,000 in penalties for the same violations.

According to the IRS, the firm will refund $97,747 to retailers and make up the balance in price rollbacks. The company supplies about 5,000 customers in southeastern Pennsylvania, mostly small retail stores and restaurants.

The IRS said the action was the biggest such refund-rollback in this area, but a spokesman said it was not expected to affect consumers.

Marvin Kramer, president of Kansas Beef Industries, said some of the refunds already have been made.

The violations were discovered in July and August during inspections by IRS economic stabilization program investigators.

The violations involved the charging of wholesale prices in excess of the regulations issued by the federal government March 29.

Kramer said the overcharges were the result of "misinterpretation of the regulations."

Sock chewing may be foot in grave

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: Blacky, our young Labrador had developed expensive tastes. He has taken to eating socks in preference to anything else. He's not particular. They can be mine, my husband's or the kids'. Sometimes he simply chews the toe out or the heel, sometimes they simply disappear. Can you help a family with cold feet?—M.L.

DEAR M.L.: You'd better help yourself so that Blacky will quit helping himself—and soon. Blacky has been living on borrowed time since he started his stocking kick. A sock, stocking, or part thereof, will often become lodged in the stomach or intestines. The result is severe gastrointestinal disturbance, usually with continued vomiting. The stocking stuffer succumbs, usually, unless the doctor gets to him in time. Occasionally a series of enemas may flush out the footwear. More frequently, surgery is required to save the animal. (Surgery is no salvation unless it is brought in in time, of course.) The simplest solution is to stash stockings — ALL of them — away, so Blacky can't get to them. This is not only a money saver, it could be a dog saver, too.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Useless, my cat, loves to chew on these new food sticks. The people kind. I don't see any reason why they should hurt him. Is there? —O.L.

DEAR O.L.: Assuming the product you have in mind is not liberally laced with preservatives, it should be a very acceptable snack for Useless. A combination food product may occasionally contain an ingredient or two that a particular animal is allergic to or simply can't digest well. Obviously, Useless would show signs of indigestion in that case, and it would be prudent to discontinue the product or, at least, cut the consumption way down.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We think it would be kind of kicky to put a couple of baby turtles in our water bed. If we can get them in there, how would they do? —N.J.

DEAR N.J.: Poorly. If it is a heated waterbed they would be parboiled; if unheated, the water would be too cold initially and, in any event, too old and contaminated eventually whether or not you somehow managed to feed them. All in all, their survival time would be limited and prior to succumbing, their life would hardly be enjoyable. Better find some other way to make your waterbed kicky.

Agnew spokesmen deny V.P. got favored treatment in rates at hotel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and the ITT-owned Sheraton Park Hotel said Thursday Agnew paid "basically the same" rate as other celebrities while living in the hotel.

CBS Morning News reported that the hotel granted Agnew a special rent discount during the 4½ years he lived there.

"He enjoyed a good rate," general manager Nord Schweibert told UPI. "It wasn't necessarily less than what we could get for that apartment. It was basically the same thing we would give to any noted celebrity."

Schweibert said the Sheraton Park grants prominent persons special rates because their names help attract customers.

Neither Schweibert nor Marsh Thomson, Agnew's press secretary, would disclose what Agnew paid. CBS said the suite rents for $1,900 a month and celebrities pay about a third of that.

The Agnews lived in the five room Apartment G400, which Schweibert described as "one of the two or three finest" suites in the luxury 1,375-room hotel near Rock Creek Park

They were there from the time Agnew took office in January, 1969, until last June 1 when they moved into a home they are buying in suburban Kenwood, Md.

Schweibert said Lyndon B. Johnson lived in the same suite for a short time while he was vice president and paid a corresponding rate.

"It's a trumped up kind of story when it's made to appear that the vice president received some special, advantageous kind of treatment."

In Baltimore, a federal grand jury investigating alleged kickbacks to Maryland politicians reconvened Thursday, under tight security, for its first session in 15 days.

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has said he will decide whether the grand jury should investigate allegations that Agnew accepted kickbacks. Agnew is a former Baltimore County executive and Maryland governor.

"The purpose is to assure the grand jury secrecy," U.S. Attorney George Beall told reporters. "To protect that as best as humanly possible, certain steps have been taken to protect the privacy of the proceedings."

"There have been no decisions made by the attorney general today regarding the investigation of Vice President Agnew. There is no evidence being presented to the grand jury today concerning the vice president. The tight security is to preserve the privacy of the grand jury proceedings We don't want to have a duplication of the weak security around the Watergate grand jury."

MANAUS, Brazil (UPI) — Police authorities are considering the incineration of 40,000 skins of Amazon jungle animals. The skins were confiscated by government wildlife preservation agents and include pelts of several varieties of jungle wildcats.

Predict wine boom good for 5 years

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The wine boom is good for another five years, but will "peak out" about 1978, according to Bank of America experts.

In a report issued recently, the bank said wine consumption in the United States, which has been increasing at a rapid rate in the past few years, will double again by 1980.

However, R. Gene Conatser, Bank of America vice president, said a "leveling of prices" is foreseen about 1978.

Growers who have made heavy wine plantings in the San Joaquin Valley may feel the economic effect first when supply catches up with demand, the bank said. The fine wine district in the Sonoma-Napa area has little to fear, according to the survey.

The bank also noted that California cannot expect to hold onto the 70 per cent of the American market which it now has. By 1980, wine from foreign countries and other states is expected to have 37 per cent of the U.S. market.

Rimless glasses safer for driving

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Rimless glasses or spectacles with black narrow rims are safer for drivers than stylish glasses with wide rims that reduce side vision, the Society for Technical and Scientific Information of Essen reports.

The society said it based its conclusion on tests conducted by racing and rally drivers. "But whatever kind of glasses you wear, the most important thing is to make sure they are clean before you start driving," it added.

L.A. Kiddie Corps snaps slump, 8-6

LOCAL-NATIONAL Sports

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

HOUSTON — In Cincinnati, the newcomers from Indianapolis are getting most of the headlines.

But the Los Angeles Dodgers still have their Kiddie Corps from Albuquerque.

Tom Paciorek, Ron Cey, Charlie Hough, Davey Lopes and Steve Yeager were the Albuquerque graduates starring for the Dodgers Thursday in an 8-6 victory over the Houston Astros at the Dome.

With the victory, the Dodgers gain a half game on the idle Reds, moving to 4½ games behind the National League West leaders. It is significant since it's the first time in two weeks that L. A. has been able to gain ground on Cincy.

Thursday's win at the Astrodome also gives the Dodgers more hope they can win the flag the final 15 games of the season. The big goal is to gain some ground before the key three-game weekend series against the Reds at Dodger Stadium on Sept. 21-23.

"There's still time," Cey said. "We know how fast a four game lead can disappear. We have our backs to the wall but we mustn't quit."

"Even if we finish second, a strong finish will give us added confidence for next year," the Penquin added. "With our youth, we can't help but to improve in future years."

Cey broke out of his batting slump by belting a two-run homer, his 14th, and a double.

Paciorek, who has been unhappy with the lack of playing, continues to make full use of his latest opportunity.

He pounded out a double and single in five at-bats to extend his hitting streak to seven games. In the stretch, the former University of Houston football star has raised his average from .230 to .285.

"I've been trying to follow Manny Mota's style," Paciorek said. "I've been looking for good pitches and trying to hit the ball up the middle. I feel more confident at the plate. I don't worry any more when I'm down two strikes."

But Paciorek is still anxious to earn big money as a regular.

"Nobody on the Dodgers has said anything to me about my future," he said. "But something has to be done this winter. Either they must make room for me or get rid of me. I can't go through another summer like this."

Paciorek, who played football at the Astrodome, was drafted by the Miami Dolphins as a safety. But he signed with the Dodgers because he felt he had a better future in baseball.

"I've always felt I've had the ability and I think I've shown it in the minor leagues," Paciorek continued. "But I've been very discouraged by the lack of opportunity to show it. I am sure I could produce runs if I played everyday."

Hough, who had his problems at Cincinnati Wednesday, controlled his knuckleball Thursday as he blanked the Astros through the final 3 2-3 innings to save Tommy John's 13th victory.

Lopes added three hits including the go-ahead double.

John, who was sailing along with a 7-3 lead entering the bottom of the sixth, was shelled for three quick runs with Jimmy Wynn's double knocking in two to put John out of the game.

Hough got out of the jam and proceeded to strike out six Astros the rest of the way.

"It's a matter of getting a set windup," Hough said. "I've been changing it so much this year. Ninty per cent of it is control. When we're ahead, the other team has to hit it. When it's working, it's fairly effective."

Manager Walt Alston had special praise for Yeager.

"He did a heck-of-a-job catching that knuckler," the Dodger skipper said. "There's a lot of fight in him."

It looked like it would be another one of those nights for the Dodger when the Astros had scored single runs in the first three innings for a 3-2 lead. But L. A. took advantage of a couple of breaks in the fourth to score three runs and Cey followed with his homer in the fifth to build the lead.

Probably the biggest play of the game came in the fourth after Joe Ferguson and Steve Garvey singled to open the frame. Cey followed with a grounder to third baseman Doug Rader, who had a perfect opportunity for a quick double play but failed to touch third base as umpire Ed Vargo ruled that Ferguson was safe.

Houston lefthander Dave Roberts, who is usually tough on the Dodgers, struck out Yeager for the second out and intentionally walked Bill Russell to load the bases for John.

However, the move backfired when John drew a walk on a 3-2 pitch to force home Ferguson with the tying run and Lopes followed with a two-run double to give L.A. a permanent lead.

Bill Russell, who by-passed Albuquerque, belted a double in the second inning to score the Dodgers first two runs.

DODGER NOTES: The Dodgers won't have to face James Rodney Richards, the Astros' hard-throwing righthander. Richards, who was scheduled to pitch tonight, suffered a shoulder separation when he fell off of his motorcycle Thursday. He will miss the rest of the season . . . Lefthander Jerry Reuss (15-10) will face Andy Messersmith (12-10) tonight . . Astrodome officials say they have already sold 19,000 tickets with a forecast of a final 30,000 for next Thursday's battle of the sexes between Bobby Riggs and Billy Jean King. Prices for the tennis spectacular range from $6 to $100 . . . The Astrodome will be busy next week. There will be a baseball doubleheader Wednesday, the Riggs-King battle Thursday, and a University of Houston football game Friday with Henry Aaron and the Braves coming to town Saturday . . . Houston was mathematically eliminated from the pennant race Thursday. It has been a frustrating campaign for the Astros, who had figured to be a top contender . . . The Astros' Roger Metzger leads the National League in triples with 13.

Top jock, hot horse in feature

POMONA — Marion R. Frankel's eight-year-old Pataha Prince, running in the best form of his career, will make his debut at the Los Angeles County Fair Saturday when he heads a field of four in the $15,000-added Governor's Cup.

First post time for the initial Saturday program of the 14-day meeting is 1 p.m.

Steve Valdez, fresh from a brilliant season at Del Mar where he easily captured the riding title, will also be appearing here for the first time as he breaks Pataha Prince from the inside post position in the six-furlong event.

Named to face the Bobby Frankel-trained speedster are Busy Chief, Jeff David and Host Dream. With four starters there will be win and place wagering only.

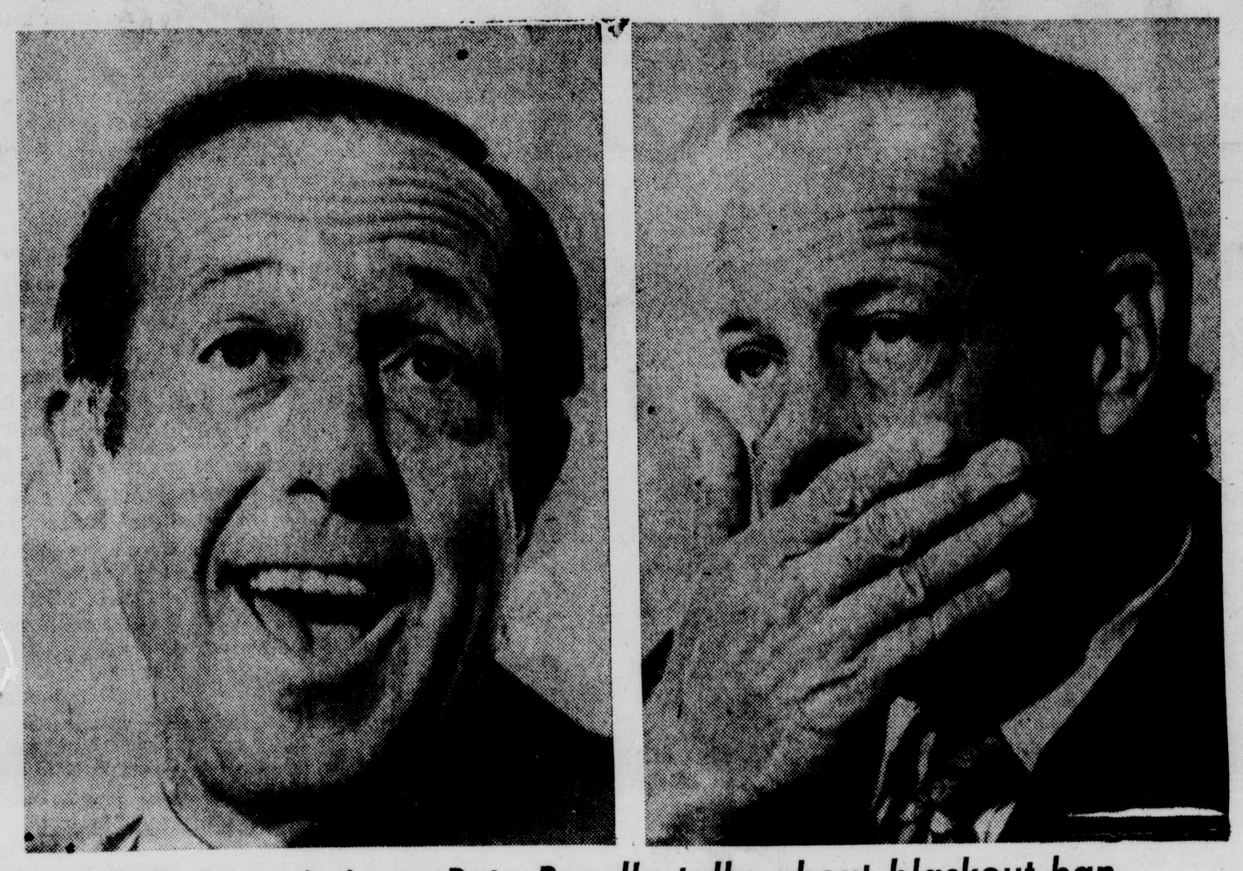
Pataha Prince raced in the claiming ranks during the early part of 1973, but since joining the Frankel barn he has shown sharp improvement. He tallied at seven and one-half furlongs on the turf in his first outing at Del Mar. Later came back to win the six-furlong Bing CrosbyHandicap in 1.08 and most recently lost a narrow decision to Silver Mallet in the Longacres mile in Washington.

Busy Chief, to be ridden by Larry Gilligan, is fresh from a game victory over Jeff David in a Del Mar sprint. The Chieftain colt chased Pataha Prince in the Bing Crosby Handicap in which each horse carried 114 pounds.

Busy Chief will pack 119 Saturday while Pataha Prince carries 122.

Although winless at Del Mar, Jeff David looked in good form with three straight runner-up efforts. The blocky little gelding won two races at the Pomona oval in 1971. Jerry Lambert has the jock on Jeff David.

Rudy Rosales was named on Host Dream who has been competing in the claiming ranks. He was one of the early leaders in the "Old-Timers Race at Del Mar.



NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle talks about blackout ban

Armchair QBs can rejoice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, an ardent sports enthusiast, was expected to sign into law today legislation which would enable pro football fans to watch on television the sold-out home games of their favorite teams. Congress, uncharacteristically, acted on the anti-blackout bill with the speed of a wide receiver. It took just one week for the measure to move through the committee process and gain approval by both the Senate and the House.

The bill, which passed the House on a rollcall vote of 366 to 37 Thursday and was approved by voice vote of the Senate minutes later, provides that any game sold out 72 hours in advance would be televised to hometown audiences, which have traditionally been blacked out.

The new law would apply only to sports events which are part of a national TV contract.

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., a former Buffalo Bills quarterback, said after the House vote, "I think the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution was the last thing that passed the Congress this fast."

In New York, National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle, a staunch opponent of the blackout ban, said the league would allow the televising of sold-out season openers Sunday, despite the fact that the 72-hour stipulation of the bill technically expired hours before final congressional action.

Although bowing to the congressional order, Rozelle warned the bill will ultimately have an undermining effect on the sport.

"We think football may become a studio show," Rozelle said. "We want people in the stands."

All games played this weekend in the NFL will be televised to hometown audiences, with four possible exceptions, Rozelle said.

He said that as of Thursday, Atlanta at New Orleans, San Francisco at Miami, Baltimore at Cleveland, and Buffalo at New England were not sellouts.

The lawmakers who approved the bill will be able to watch the defending National Conference champion Washington Redskins home game with San Diego in the comfort of their homes. Every ticket for each of the Redskins seven home games were sold by early summer. In the past, even many members of Congress had been unable to get tickets.

The speedy action Thursday was made possible when the Senate agreed to a House amendment of the bill to provide that the blackout cover a three-year experimental period. The Senate has called for a one-year experiment.

Secretariat may not be ready

NEW YORK (UPI) —Despite a sensational workout Wednesday, Secretariat still is a shade under peak physical condition for Saturday's $250,000 Marlboro Cup while Riva Ridge was as sharp as a razor, trainer Lucien Laurin said today.

"I would say Secretariat is within 90 per cent of peak form and I wish I had another week to go. But he is his old self, full of pep, eating every oat and eager to run. I expect him to run a good race and I think we will have a very fast race. I think they will go in 46 or better," said the man who has trained five of the last six Triple Crown winners in Secretariat and Riva Ridge.

Seven brilliant horses are scheduled to clash in the 1½ mile race. They will be shooting for a $150,000 winner's purse and the American record for the distance of 1:46 1-5, set by Figonero at Del Mar in 1969 and equalled by Canonero last year when he beat Riva Ridge in the Stymie Handicap at Belmont Park.

Laurin said he would not root for either of his horses but would try to remain neutral during the running of the race.

"Wouldn't it be great if they finished in a dead head?" he asked.

Laurin has another problem, telling jockey Ron Turcotte on Secretariat how to beat Riva Ridge and giving Eddie Maple on Riva Ridge instructions for the upset of Secretariat.

"It's a funny situation," he admitted. "I want both horses on their own and the best one to win. And they are pretty close right now. Secretariat is a bit below his best. Riva Ridge is like a tiger right now. I guess the jockeys will have to be on their own.

"If Secretariat had not worked that fast, five furlongs in 57, he would not have started. If he had come back in 58 or 59 I was not going to run him," Laurin revealed.

"As you know Secretariat gets away slowly but once he gets rolling no horse can stay with him. I would hate to see the two of them get tied up in a speed duel," he said.

"There's no chance of that," said Maple who will ride Riva Ridge for the first time in the Marlboro. He was aboard the colt for the only time in a workout Tuesday.

"There's not much difference between the horses right now," said Turcotte who had his choice of mounts. "I think Secretariat is the better horse. Riva Ridge has an edge in training."

The two jockeys, with the permission of Laurin, will split their share of whatever they earn.

Charlie Whittingham has the same problem with Cougar II and Kennedy Road, each owned by different persons. Willie Shoemaker rides Cougar for Mrs. Mary F. Jones with Don Pierce on Kennedy Road for Mrs. Arthur Stollery.

"Both jockeys have ridden these horses before and they know them," he said, adding, "besides jockeys don't pay any attention to what you tell them anyway."

Braulio Baeza, who knows Key to the Mint well, rides that colt for the Rockeby Stable, with Angel Cordero on Annihilate 'Em and Jorge Velasquez on Onion.

Billie Jean's blood disease tests postponed

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI)—Billie Jean King plans today to undergo a delayed series of tests that could show whether she is suffering from hypoglycemia, a blood disease that could stop her tennis match next week with Bobby Riggs.

Billie Jean had planned to have the tests Thursday but Anna Lee, her secretary, said Billie Jean's doctor wanted her to exercise prior to the tests.

Mrs. King plans to remain here until the weekend when she is scheduled to fly to Houston for a tournament prior to her Astrodome match with Riggs, billed as another tennis battle of the sexes.

She arrived last Sunday to tape a series of matches for television still suffering from influenza contracted during the U.S. Open tennis championships and began taking blood tests Monday.

Billie Jean had a mild bout with hypoglycemia, which is too little sugar in the blood, about three years ago, and doctors apparently have feared that she might have a recurrence.

She and her husband, Larry, have insisted the Riggs match will be played as scheduled unless the tests turn up "something drastic."

Injury fails to darken Kessler's bright future

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

HOUSTON — The Cincinnati Reds have a habit of bringing up rookies to help out in their pennant drives.

One of these years, Claremont's Brad Kessler may have his chance with the Big Red Machine.

That's the opinion of Ron Plaza, who managed Kessler this summer on the Reds' rookie club at Bradenton, Florida.

"I was quite pleased with Brad's development," Plaza said about the Reds' top choice in the June free agent draft.

"He did very well for a young boy of 17 just out of high school."

In fact, Kessler did so well at Bradenton, he was promoted to the Reds, farm club at Seattle, Washington in the Northwest League, first step up the ladder.

Unfortunately, Kessler's season at Seattle lasted only three innings. He returned to Claremont early with an ankle injury.

"We were hoping Brad could play winter ball but at the last report from Doctor Frank Jobe of the Dodgers indicated he isn't ready because of the swelling," Plaza said.

"We'll just have to wait and see."

Kessler played all three outfield positions for Plaza but he was best in right field.

"He seemed more comfortable in right," Plaza explained. "I also wanted to take advantage of his strong arm. "It got stronger throughout the season and he is accurate."

According to Plaza, Kessler's biggest asset is his strength.

"He has the type of bat any organization likes to have," Plaza added. "He is aggressive at the plate and can hit to all fields."

The Bradenton skipper was also impressed with Kessler's attitude. "He accepted everything very well," Plaza said. "It's tough starting out in pro ball expecially that far way from home. He's timid and shy off the field but aggressive in the game. It's like going to school again."

Pete Rose better watch out. Brad Kessler may be going after his job in a few years.

USC ready to open title defense

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — University of Southern California, a magnificent football machine that ripped through 12 opponents last season, opens defense of its national championship Saturday night and the No. I rated Trojans are three-touchdown favorites against Arkansas.

"I don't think these odds are in line," said USC coach John McKay, whose team whipped the Razorbacks 31-10 in its first game last year at Little Rock.

"I know Frank Broyles has a young team but I also know that Frank Broyles isn't in the habit of recruiting bad athletes. I expect a tough game."

McKay, 50, will find it hard to top 1972, a season his Trojans climaxed by smashing Woody Hayes and Ohio State into the ground 42-17 in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

Nebraska served notice last weekend that it wants to take away USC's national title by trouncing a highly regarded UCLA team 40-13 at Lincoln. The Bruins are expected to come in second to USC in the Pacific-8 race.

"To win the national title," McKay said, "you have to have the right people, have the right schedule, have people knocked off you don't play and be a little lucky.

"We have the age old worry about guys who played well as sophomores and juniors realizing that the reason they played well is because they worked hard.

"They can't stand still. They have to get better. We won't go too long with a player who's done it before and isn't doing it now. Complacency ruins football teams."

McKay's teams have won three national crowns in the past 11 seasons and the Trojans do have the nucleus of their 1972 squad back, including two second team All-Americas as sophomores —tailback Anthony Davis and linebacker Richard Wood.

In McKay's I formation, the tailback is practically the whole offense and Davis, a Heisman Trophy candidate, compares with two of USC's great runners of the recent past — O.J. Simpson and Mike Garrett, who were Heisman winners. He gained 1,191 yards and scored 17 touchdowns rushing as a sophomore, the first Trojan sophomore to hit the magic 1,000-yard mark.

Also in the backfield is Lynn Swann, a flanker who grabbed 27 passes for 543 yards and three touchdowns last season. Swann, a senior, is a Heisman Trophy candidate.

Pat Haden, who played behind the departed Mike Rae at quarterback last fall, takes over at quarterback for the Trojans and McKay calls him "the best passer, college or pro, I've ever seen."

In Wood, the Trojans think they have the best collegiate linebacker in the country. Wood called the defensive signals as a sophomore and led USC in tackles with 129, 30 more than any other player on the team. He also intercepted five passes and returned one for a touchdown.

"Richard will be improved this year, too," said McKay flatly.

For the first time in more than a decade, Arkansas isn't considered a championship threat in the Southwest Conference, a league which Texas is expected to take apart.

The Razorbacks are coming off a 6-5 season and their top returnee is all-SWC halfback Dickey Morton, who was the league's most productive rusher last year with 1,188 yards. Morton is only one of three returning starters.

"We have so many young players," said Broyles, the Arkansas coach, "that on the experience level we just barely rank above a junior college team."

Sports news in brief

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Jim Youngblood, rookie middle linebacker, was sidelined Thursday during the Los Angeles Rams' practice because of a pulled hamstring.

Youngblood, who plays behind Jack Reynolds, may not see any action against the Kansas City Chiefs, the Rams' opening opponent Sunday.

MIAMI (UPI)—All-pro defensive end Bill Stanfill was hospitalized Thursday with a recurring stomach ailment that will further deplete the defensive line the Miami Dolphins will field against San Francisco Sunday.

DENVER (UPI) —The Denver Broncos named four rookies and three veterans to the taxi squad Thursday. The club also announced the signing of two more players, leaving only punter Bill Van Heusen yet to approve a contract

SAN DIMAS, Calif. (UPI) — Playing in a drizzle, three pros shot 69s Thursday to tie for the first-round lead in the $25,000 Western Tournament Golf Association event at Via Verde Country Club.

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (UPI)— Although he will have to fly across the Atlantic Ocean twice to do it, Tom Weiskopf said Thursday he will enter the Ohio-Kings Island Open Oct. 4-7 at the Jack Nicklaus Golf Center.

Buckeyes favored by 19 over young, inexperienced Gophers

By United Press International

If Coach Cal Stoll is somewhat worried about his youth movement at the University of Minnesota, you can't really blame him.

After all, how many coaches would look with optimism at the thought of their team—half filled with freshmen and sophomores—opening the season before 86,000 screaming fans at Columbus, Ohio—home of the powerful Ohio State Buckeyes?

It's not a cheery thought and Stoll can be forgiven if he asks for a little patience for his youth program at this juncture of the season. "It's an uneasy feeling not knowing how your rookies will react before 86,000 wildly partisan fans in Columbus,' Stoll says.

"But," he adds bravely, "I believe our young men will react well. It's not the first time they've played before packed houses—although never 86,000."

The oddsmakers like Ohio State by better than 19 points— and that's without senior quarterback Greg Hare who is sidelined with a leg injury.

Ohio State isn't the only top-rated power picked to breeze by the experts in the first full week of college action. Defending national champion Southern California is a 25-point favorite over Arkansas, Alabama is rated 22 over California, Tennessee is 19 over Duke, Auburn is tabbed 20 over Oregon State, Michigan is a 16-point pick over Iowa and Oklahoma is rated 13½ better than Baylor.

Once again, Woody Hayes, that marvelous and congenial friend of all, has assembled a squad chock full of All-American candidates. Whether or not the Buckeyes can get past Michigan at season's end remains to be seen, but Stoll's inexperienced Gophers shouldn't pose too many problems for this Saturday

Hare, who quarterbacked last year's Buckeyes to a 9-2 mark, is out with a leg injury. In his place will be sophomore Cornelius Greene, the first black ever to call signals at Ohio State. Hayes is high on Greene, who impressed in spring drills and pre-season, but there's also the matter of Ohio State's devastating running game.

Led by last year's super frosh Archie Griffin (867 yards) and the methodical Champ Henson, who led the NCAA in touchdowns in '72, Minnesota's defensive unit will get a rude and unenviable test in this first encounter of the season.

Ohio State also has the horses on defense, headed by the trio of Randy Gradishar, Vic Koegel and Rick Middleton—perhaps the best linebacking unit in the nation.

With the majority of the nation's elite not expected to run into any obstacles this soon, much of the Saturday focus figures to center around two key intersectional matchups: Colorado-LSU and Penn State-Stanford.

The Colorado-LSU meeting, while maybe resembling a leftover from last New Year's Day, is actually a September rematch of two years ago. The Buffs won that one—also at Baton Rouge—31-21. And although two of the key Colorado performers in that upset are still around—quarterback Ken Johnson and running back Charlie Davis, Coach Eddie Crowder says they'll be on the bench for this one.

Still, the oddsmakers like Colorado by three. Perhaps maybe they've never been to Baton Rouge with a bottle of bourbon on the opening Saturday night of the football season.

Penn State, which looks very similar on paper to Coach Joe Paterno's previous Eastern powers, will go with Tom Shuman in place of the graduated John Hufnagel in the pivotal quarterback position in its nationally-televised game at Stanford.

The cross-country trip and the presence of highly-touted Mike Boryla at quarterback for the Cardinals haven't swayed the experts too far either as Penn State is listed as a touchdown favorite.

Blancas fires 66 in the rain to lead Heritage by a stroke

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI)—Not even rain could slow Homero Blancas, out front by a stroke going into today's second round of the $150,000 Heritage Open golf classic.

Blancas survived intermittent rain and two delays in play Thursday to post a 5 under par 66 that survived a late charge by big Jim Wiechers and winless John Mahaffey.

His putting gave him seven birds, including the last two with 30-footers, and he credited the plush greens of the 6,655-yard Harbour Town Golf links with soaking up the water and a lot of hazards.

"When you get spike marks and it rains, it washes them out," he said. "Every green has good grass on it. They're putting absolutely great."

Wiechers and Mahaffey, who each had a string of three consecutive birdies, were a stroke ahead of Bert Yancey, the West Point graduate who captured last year's American Golf Classic.

Gary Player, who posted his first victory of the season in last week's Southern Open, headed a group at 2 under 69 that included rookie Ben Crenshaw, Jerry Heard, Hale Irwin, Bob Wynn and Cesar Sanoudo.

Another stroke back were Arnold Palmer, Julius Boros, George Archer, Dewitt Weaver Jr., Forrest Fezler, Grier Jones, Sam Adams and Tom Watson.

Officials twice suspended play as rain and lightning plagued the tight little course that Player calls "the best championship golf course I've every played."

Yaz pulls for Hank

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) —He describes himself as "an angry 72 year old" in his letter, and what he's so fired up angry about, he says, is all this "partiality" Hank Aaron is being shown over Babe Ruth.

He's writing from Ashland, Ohio, but that in itself isn't significant, he might just as easily be doing so from Friendship, Tenn., Drumright, Okla., San Anselmo, Calif., or Baraboo, Wis.

The senior citizens around the country feel Babe Ruth is getting the short end of the bat and that nobody really is speaking up for him with Hank Aaron bearing down on his all-time home run record.

"Babe Ruth hit his 714 home runs in 8,399 at bats and Aaron has 710 in 11,247 times up, how can you even compare them?" asks the Ashland letter-writer.

"Ruth did it without helmets; without livelier balls; without better bats and without the longer season."

True enough, but if this isn't a private fight, Carl Yastrzemski would like to get a couple of words in.

Right up front he says he's a Hank Aaron man first and foremost

"If he breaks Ruth's record, and it looks as if he will, I say it has to be the greatest accomplishment in the entire history of sports," says Boston's sweet-swinging 10-time all-star.

"Ruth never had to play night ball. He never had to contend with the slider either. It's so difficult to pick up a good hard slider under the lights. The ball is just a blur. In the daytime though, you can pick up the spin on the ball, and if you don't think that makes a tremendous difference, go ask someone like Stan Musial. I think Musial said it all when he explained how the entire game has changed from the time when he broke in. Stan said all he used to see when he first came up was fast ball, curve. That was all he used to look for. But when the pitchers added the slider, he said there was a whole different concept. It made hitting the ball all that harder."

Yastrzemski comes into the Aaron-Ruth debate with some credentials of his own.

Since reporting to the Red Sox 12 years ago, he has belted 284 home runs of his own to put him 15th on the list among active players and 41st on the all-time list.

"Night baseball more than makes up for any advantage people say Aaron has over Ruth," says Yaz. "In my opinion anyway How many day games has Aaron played the past few years? Not very many. Ballplayers from the old days say riding the trains was much rougher than riding the planes we do today.

I don't know about that, and I've ridden some trains, too. I know a lot of players who don't like riding airplanes. I'm not that crazy about them either, but I know I have to do it. I think that makes for a little added pressure.

"I never saw Babe Ruth," adds the Red Sox 34-year-old superstar. "The only way I've gotten to know anything about him is through Mr. Yawkey (Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey). He told me what a great ballplayer he was and how he had a heart as big as a clubhouse. When I was supposed to go to the All-Star Game before I got hurt a little while back, Mr. Yawkey gave me a message to deliver to Hank Aaron, though.

"He wanted to make sure Hank got it personally, and since he knows most of the mail sent him ends up with his personal secretary, he asked me if I'd hand-carry the message. I said sure, but because of the injury, I never got to go to Kansas City. Mr Yawkey wanted me to wish Hank all the luck in the world and tell him he was pulling for him to break the record. I feel the same way. I check out Hank every day to see how he's doing. I hope he makes it this year."

49ers have new prospect

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—If confidence counts, then the San Francisco 49ers have got a good prospect in newly-obtained running back Randy Jackson.

Jackson, who survived a plane crash in which 29 out of 40 died while playing at Wichita State, was obtained from Buffalo in a trade that sent defensive tackle Earl Edwards to the Bills for Jackson anda draft pick.

"I think I can run inside or outside and consider myself a good blocker," said Jackson, who figures to see a lot of action Sunday at Miami.

Montview league scrimmage

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — After two weeks of conditioning and intrasquad practicing the valley prep gridders are anxious to get the new season underway.

The 1973 openers are still one week away for Montview League hopefuls Charter Oak, Nogales and Rowland. But these clubs will get an early indication as to the strengths and weaknesses of their teams Saturday when they engage in scrimmages

Charter Oak will get an early test from Bob Biaz' San Dimas club. The Saints, 5-4 last year and 3-4 in the Hacienda League, have some big holes to fill with the losses of Jeff Nelson, Wayne Moses, Bob Rollins, and Bob Diaz who moved along to the college ranks.

But SD will have 13 letterman returning and a host of players up from an undefeated junior varsity team.

The Lancers, who already know how good a blocker fullback Nick Howard is, will find out how good he is at carrying the ball. Head coach Wayne Fetters has already indicated the potentiality of a 1,000 yard season for Howard.

CO fans will also get a look-see at quarterback Tom Merrill and find out if he's as accurate at throwing a football as he is at throwing a baseball.

The scrum is slated for 7 p.m. at Charter Oak.

Archie Carter's Nogales team is looking forward to this morning workout with Garey, which will begin at 8 a.m. at Nogales, for some time.

"Our practices have been up and down, good and bad," said Carter. "I blame it on the sun. The weather recently has been mostly overcast. And on those days we seem to look real good. But when the sun comes out the kids seem to have bad days. I don't know what the problem is.

"We have been polishing up our offense and defense to where we're looking great against ourselves. Now we need to work against somebody else."

The Nobles will be trying to improve upon a 2-7 mark and have 15 returning lettermen to give the squad some experience.

Rowland will get a good workout at 8:30 this morning from Gladstone on the Gladiator field.

The Raiders, 1-6-2 last year, have a host of young talent and coach Gary Rawls is anxious to see them under fire.

"We have a lot of young kids we're trying to bring around fast," said Rawls.

These scrums will be the last opportunity for the coaches to view their players in game-type situations before the season begins next Friday and Saturday night.

UNK CATCHES ON — Alexander Fernandez finally has lost his Pincay image and has found himself on the California riding circuit.

Fernandez, who is Pincay's uncle, was the hotest reinsmen during the fianl stages of the Del Mar meeting. And horsemen are singing his praises as they prepare to head north for forthcoming action at Oak Tree.

Fernandez was at both the Santa Anita and Hollypark meets without much success. Why the sudden change?

I think it came about when he went north and rode a few on the fair circuit," said agent Pete Wilson. "He's a different rider now. He's not trying to follow Laffit's style or anyone elses. And he'll prove to be one of the best around, too," the former pro baseballer says with confidence.

49ers challenge Dolphins in NFL's feature opener Sunday

By United Press International

The San Francisco 49ers will be trying to do a little blackout lifting of their own Sunday.

The National Football League was forced by the government to withdraw its blackout policy on sold-out home games Thursday but the blackout the 49ers are most concerned with is the one the Miami Dolphins have thrown against opponents on the field.

The Dolphins take a 15-game regular season-winning streak against San Francisco in the National Football League season opener at Miami's Orange Bowl and hope to use the 49ers as a stepping stone toward tying the pro record of 17 straight victories the following week against Oakland.

Veteran John Brodie is expected to lead the 49er offense after his annual summer battle with reserve Steve Spurrier. Brodie threw for 611 yards and four touchdowns in pre-season.

San Francisco' running game has been hurting with Vic Washington, its big outside threat, bothered with a knee injury. The 49ers picked up speedy Randy Jackson earlier in the week from Buffalo but he may not have absorbed enough of the offense to get much time.

Miami returns much the same team that carried the Dolphins to a Super Bowl title last season and actually may be even stronger. Quarterback Bob Griese missed most of last season with a broken leg but is back healthy and Marlin Briscoe, a pass reception leader at Buffalo a few years back, is looking to unseat veteran Howard Twilley at wide receiver.

Larry Csonka, Jim Kick and Mercury Morris again will be the running backs.

In other openers, San Diego is at Washington, Oakland at Minnesota, Dallas at Chicago, Detroit at Pittsburgh, Los Angeles at Kansas City, Houston at the New York Giants, Baltimore at Cleveland, Cincinnati at Denver, Atlanta at New Orleans, St. Louis at Philadelphia and Buffalo at New England. The New York Jets meet Green Bay in Milwaukee in the Monday night opener.

George Allen's teams have never lost an opener—winning seven in a row—and the Redskins are favored to keep that string alive against San Diego. The running game is improved with the addition of Duane Thomas. Bill Kilmer will be the quarterback for Washington, having beaten out veteran Sonny Jurgensen, while 40-year-old John Unitas makes his first regular season appearance in a San Diego uniform at quarterback.

Oakland meets a strong Minnesota team that handed the Raiders their only preseason loss, a 34-10 drubbing. Both clubs are favored in their divisions and many say this could be a Super Bowl preview.

Joger Staubach will be the quarterback for Dallas against the Bears while Pittsburgh hopes to have star running back Franco Harris ready for Detroit. John Hadl makes his regular season debut at quarterback for Los Angeles against Kansas City while the Giants, unbeaten in pre-season play, try to keep their winning habits against a Houston team that won only once last season.

Rookie Bert Jones makes his first official start at quarterback for Baltimore against Cleveland.

RED HOT YOGI — New York Mets manager Yogi Berra jaws with umpires in vain. Berra disputed decision ruling Felix Millan out at the plate. Mets went on to win anyway topping Phils 4-2.

Major league roundup

Pirates finally make their move

By United Press International

The Pittsburgh Pirates may be making their move—finally.

The Pirates, kingpins in the shaky NL Eastern Division and pre-season favorites, won their third game of a four-game series with the Chicago Cubs 6-1 Thursday as Willie Stargell provided the punch, driving in two runs.

The win gave the Pirates a one-game lead over idle St. Louis and shoved the Cubs back into fifth place, 4½ games behind.

"Coming here and taking three out of four was the thing to do," said Stargell, who upped his National League leading RBI total to 107 when he doubled home two runs in the first inning.

"Even though it's great to be in first place, we still can't take anything for granted. We'll see what happens, but when you're in first place the other clubs have to catch you," added Stargell.

The Pirates are not about to claim anything yet, especially since the Montreal Expos are only 1 ½ games behind and the New York Mets, who topped Philadelphia 4-2 in 12 innings to get in the running, are 2 ½ out.

In other sparse major league action, Los Angeles topped Houston 9-6 and San Francisco downed San Diego 8-6 in the NL while in the American League, Baltimore nipped Milwaukee in 10 8-7, New York edged Boston 2-1 in 12 and Kansas City nipped California 5-4.

Taking advantage of three Cub errors in the first inning, the Pirates scored three runs. Bob Moose and Ramon Hernandez combined to handcuff Chicago on just six hits. Moose posted his fourth shutout, yielding five hits before Hernandez took over in the eighth.

"I didn't consider it any kind of a pressure game," said Pirates' Manager Danny Murtaugh as his club earned its' fifth victory in seven games since he replaced Bill Virdon Sept. 6.

Pinch-hitter Steve Ontiveros rapped a two-run homer, the rookie's first in the majors, in the top of the ninth inning to rally San Francisco over San Diego before a crowd of only 2,586.

Pinch-hitter Wayne Garrett singled home Lute Barnes to snap a 2-2 tie and help the Mets beat the Phils. Tom Seaver won his 17th and struck out 12, increasing his NL leading total to 237.

Bill Russell drove in three runs with a two-run double and a sacrifice fly and Dave Lopes and Ron Cey each drove in two runs to lift the Dodgers over Houston.

In the AL East, Baltimore is threatening to make a shambles of any pennant race. The Orioles upped their lead to seven games by beating Milwaukee

Rookie Doug DeCinces, who singled home the winning run, took high honors in the Orioles' "Kiddie Corps." Baltimore had eight rookies in its lineup and with the win, reduced their title-clinching magic number to 10 games.

Thurman Munson, who drove in New York's first run in the eighth, came through again with one out in the 12th to drive home Horace Clarke with the winning run against Boston and snap a four-game Yankee losing streak.

John Mayberry singled home two unearned runs in the fifth inning and pinch-hitter Lou Piniella knocked in a pair in the eighth as the Royals defeated California. The win put KC 4½ games behind the Western Division leading Oakland. The Royals have 16 games left while the A's have 17.

Robby belts HR No. 26

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Frank Robinson's 26th homer didn't produce enough to win for the California Angels but it brought him a club record and other statistics.

He beat Ken Hunt's old mark of 25 homers for a

angels

right-handed batter set when the Angels played in tiny Wrigley Field in 1961.

Robinson also tied Cap Anson, who played for the Chicago White Sox before the turn of the century, for 15th place on the all-time list of runs scored with 1,712. In total bases, he tied Mel Ott of the old New York Giants with 5,041.

Robinson's homer could have tied the game but the Kansas City Royals won it 5-4. They are second in the American League West 4 ½ games behind Oakland.

In the eighth inning, Mickey Rivers singled in a run, then went to second on Ken Berry's grounder but thought he was out. Umpire Bill Haller called him safe but Rivers had walked off the bag. He then bolted for third but was caught in a rundown. As a result Robinson's homer was good only for two runs.

An error by shortstop Rudy Meoli set the stage for two uncarned Royal runs in the fifth. John Mayberry singled them home to run his RBI total to 96.

The Royals got three more runs to make it 5-0 in the eighth on singles by pinch-hitter Lou Piniella and Cookie Rojas. Al Fitzmorris, 7-2, got the victory with help from Doug Bird.

Rich Hand, 5-6, took the loss. He had to leave in the seventh because of a stiff shoulder.

In the second game of a four-game series, Steve Busby, 14-13, faces rookie Frank Tanana, 0-1, tonight.

History of gardening is Cal Poly coed's interest

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Cal Poly coed Mary Lynne Olson has prepared a series of articles for the California Association of Nurserymen, distributed throughout the state, about the interesting facts of garden, ancient and modern. A North Hollywood resident, she has been enrolled at Cal Poly in horticultural education following history studies at Cal State Los Angeles.

Her articles, beginning today, will appear for six weeks on the P-B's Home and Garden page. The material is the result of her own freelance studies into the subject, since no college courses are offered on the history of gardening and garden practices.)

By MARY LYNNE ALSON

"Garden are the link between men and the world in which they live for men in every age have felt the need to reconcile themselves with their surroundings and have created gardens to satisfy their ideals and aspirations."

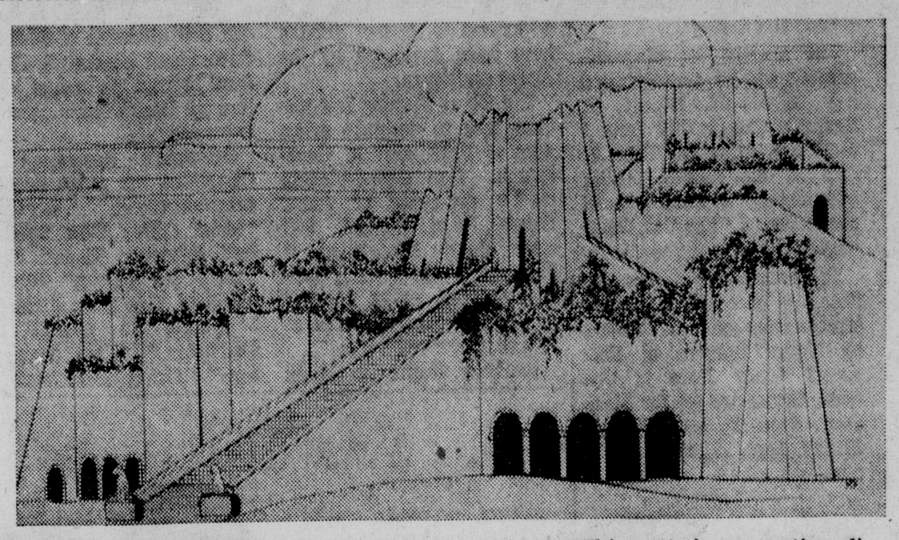
Silvia Crowe

GARDEN DESIGN

There are many interesting and romantic stories behind many of the famous gardens of history. The fabulous Hanging Gardens of Babylon, for instance, were built by King Nebuchadnezzar for his young wife who was homesick for the green hills of her home. And there was the Chinese Emporer Ginseng who carpeted the stepping stones of his royal gardens with lotus flowers so the feet of his Beloved need never touch the earth.

Kings, Queens, famous and wealthy people indulged their love of gardening on the grandest scale, often without a thought of the expense or the work involved. Emporer Kublai Khan (the fellow visited by famous explorer Marco Polo) had the most fabulous pleasure garden in the world of his day at a place called Xanadu. Louis XIV of France employed some 36,000 workmen to remodel the gardens at Versailles — the very same gardens that visitors see today. Emperor Justinian of Constantionople tore down a church to make room for a fountain in his garden. And one of the Biblicat kings—Ahasuerus—was so proud of his garden that he gave a garden party that last 180 days!

NEXT: How did all this garden-making business got started?



ANCIENT WONDER — Classified as one of the seven wonders of the ancient world, the legendary hanging gardens of Babylon were an act of love. This artist's conception displays the grand scale in which the temple-like gardens were made, for a king's wife.

A practical guide to best plants

Every gardener who plants a packet of seeds expects results. There's a group that helps insure that varieties perform as they should. They originated consumer protection in the horticultural field.

Every year for 40 years the All America Selections have been made. It takes long years to develop improved varieties of flowers and vegetables. Winners of the top honors must show high marks in beauty, yield, hardiness, adaptability and performance.

Here's how these selections are made and why they benefit home gardeners across America.

Trial gardens are operated in 56 locations. In addition, demonstration gardens are open to the public in 65 more locations. These test plots are in areas of all soil types, climate and geographical regions.

Every year, plant breeders from private, commercial and governmental organizations submit new seed for trial. Each new entry is evaluated alongside a comparison representing the closest equivalent existing variety.

Judges visit plots regularly. They evaluate new varieties according to their performance in comparison to the best present types. Scores are tallied and reported to the selection board.

Only the smallest percentage that are proved superior by dozens of judges that know flowers and vegetables receive awards. Medals are few.

A bronze medal is given for a definitely different and more desirable type. A silver medal is awarded for truly outstanding and superior type. The gold medal goes to new varieties that are distinctly different and vastly superior to anything available

Depend on it---nice color through winter

To list all the benefits of gardening in the Golden State would take volumes, for sure. A chief asset is the garden color to be enjoyed in the dead of winter. While an easterner dreams of it, California gardeners depend on it.

Perhaps this contrast is most sharply drawn in the ability of Californians to grow early flowering sweet peas and be cutting masses of fragrant, colorful bouquets for the Christmas holidays. This can be done almost invariably in mild winter areas. Given good fall weather, it is often possible to enjoy this color treat even in California climes where winters are less mild.

The first thing to know about growing Sweet Peas for winter is that you should plant them now, without delay. Wait much longer and an early cold weather spell could slow down or stop your color show for several weeks, or months.

The second thing to know is that you must plant early flowering sweet peas. Your nurseryman can steer you clear here; be sure to ask.

Next, the normal cultural rules apply. Sweet peas like a free and easy root run, says the California Association of Nurserymen, so the ground should be well prepared. This can be assured by creating a trench of 12 inches deep, or more, and a shovel's width at least. This requires little time compared to the rewards it pays.

In the trench, layer a liberal thickness of organic material or aged manure on the bottom — six inches is not too much. Then add about three inches of soil and sow the seed. By this time, the trench will still be some three to six inches deep — depending upon the original depth. As the plants sprout and grow, fill in around them with topsoil until the trench is nearly at ground level. This encourages sturdy, deep roots.

Chicken wire makes a good trellis for the plants to climb.

Some plants turn tables on insects

Every gardener knows that insects eat plants. But how many realize that a number of plants turn the tables and actually eat insects?

True enough. Insectivorous plants do lure, catch and digest live insects. They're basically bog plants, in sand or mossy soil with few nutrients. They need the insects to thrive.

Venus's Fly Traps are probably the best known among carnivorous plants. They attract insects to sweet-smelling traps. Once the bug or fly trips a trigger hair, the trap snaps shut and digests its dinner.

Others, like the sticky sundew, lie glistening in the morning light. Gnats, fruit flies, mosquitoes that alight on the plant are ensnared by tiny yet powerful tendrils. Butterworts have flypaper-like leaf surfaces to tangle the feet of insects walking across them.

The Purple Pitcher plant has a different approach. Its spine-lined mouth leads downward to a liquid-filled, hollow base. Insects enter easily, but few climb out again.

According to the Plant Oddities Club in Basking Ridge, N.J., there are dozens of such botanical wonders. Most are easily grown and popular with students for science study.

The Cobra Lily has a particularly strange growth habit. It has a flared hood, small mouth and forked, reddish, tongue-like appendage near the mouth.

Translucent spots cover the hood. Insects that venture inside fly toward the light, soon tire and fall into the soup inside the hollow stem.

CAL POLY AUTHOR — Mary Lynne Olson, before garden she cared for during summer at the 16-acre Harlod Lloyd Estate in Beverly Hills.

Gardener's checklist

1. Hurry to plant winter sweet peas.
2. As soon as the cool season annuals become available in nurseries, set-out the transplants into the garden. The flowers will provide a continuous color show into spring and early summer.
3. Bulbs have arrived in local nurseries; shop while the selections are at their best. Ranunculus and anemones will provide early spring bloom.
4. Feed lawns regularly to keep them green, healthy and disease resistent. Maintain a regular, thorough watering schedule.
5. Keep roses well watered and keep cutting faded blooms. A feeding is in order if it has been 30 days since the last time. Remember, Roses in late fall depend on the care the plants receive now.

Circus featured as fair attraction

For generations the circus has drawn fans of all ages, and still offers a spellbinding variety of acts today.

Starting tonight, and running through Sept. 26, the Los Angeles County Fair is featuring Polack Bros. Circus in the grandstand, free nightly at 8 p.m.; and on Sunday at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

The Polack Bros. Circus, which carries 20 acts representative of countries everywhere, presents clowns, fighting lions, trapeze and high wire performers, trained chimpanzees, and performing elephants. Donald Northdorft, announcer and ringmaster, directs the acts.

A comic combination of clowning chimpanzees performing feats on motorcycles and in mid-air are the Erik Adams Comedy Chimps Act.

The Alejandros, an act of two teen-agers, have perfected difficult balancing feats while juggling atop the slack wire.

The Arturo Twins offer an original high trapeze act, without the safety of nets.

Man vs. jungle beast is the theme of Bianco's nine fighting lions act. This Italian trainer induces kitten-like tricks from his lions, who are touring the United States for the first time.

Bill Brickle's poodle fantasy features 19 parading poodles in a mock Miss Universe Pageant. These poodles display expensive costumes with lady-like polish.

Riding a mortocycle high above the ground, the Dresler Brothers and Hedy spin and swing.

The Famous Esqueda Troupe from Mexico is a family balancing act. Brothers form a tower with a unicycle as their base.

Miss Francesca gives an aerial gymnastic performance on a single trapeze.

Also on the trapeze, the Flying Gibons perform stunts and routines classic to trapeze artistry.

The circus' performing elephants have a new star. "Mike," an 18 months old elephant is duplicating tricks he learned from "Opal," an established star, who appeared for Ed Sullivan 17 times. The herd, including "Kae," "Louie," as well as "Mike" and "Opal", is presented by Tom Donoho and his wife, Pompom.

From Paris, Danielle and wife, Michalene, present an aerial trapeze act, unassisted by nets in the Raymills act. the finale of their gymnastic exposition is titled "Dive of Death."

Ringmaster Donald Northdorft offers a ringmaster's magic act.

Mid-air gymnastics is the specialty of Miss Sarazochil.

From Spain, the Great Arturo Segura holds a world reputation on the bounding rope. His double somersault has never been duplicated.

The Tabaks, a husband-wife combo from Hungary perform stunts on a pole which rotates from a base.

The Amazing Les Weldons trio perform on their original pedestral ladder. Walking on their hands, one carries a lady wrapped around his body.

Three clown antics add comedy to the circus. These acts are The Three Andersons, Artemis John Conrad), and The Two Bills.

Cranston urges 90,000 troops be cut abroad

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., believes U.S. forces abroad could be cut by at least 90,000 men without imperilling the defense of the United States and its allies.

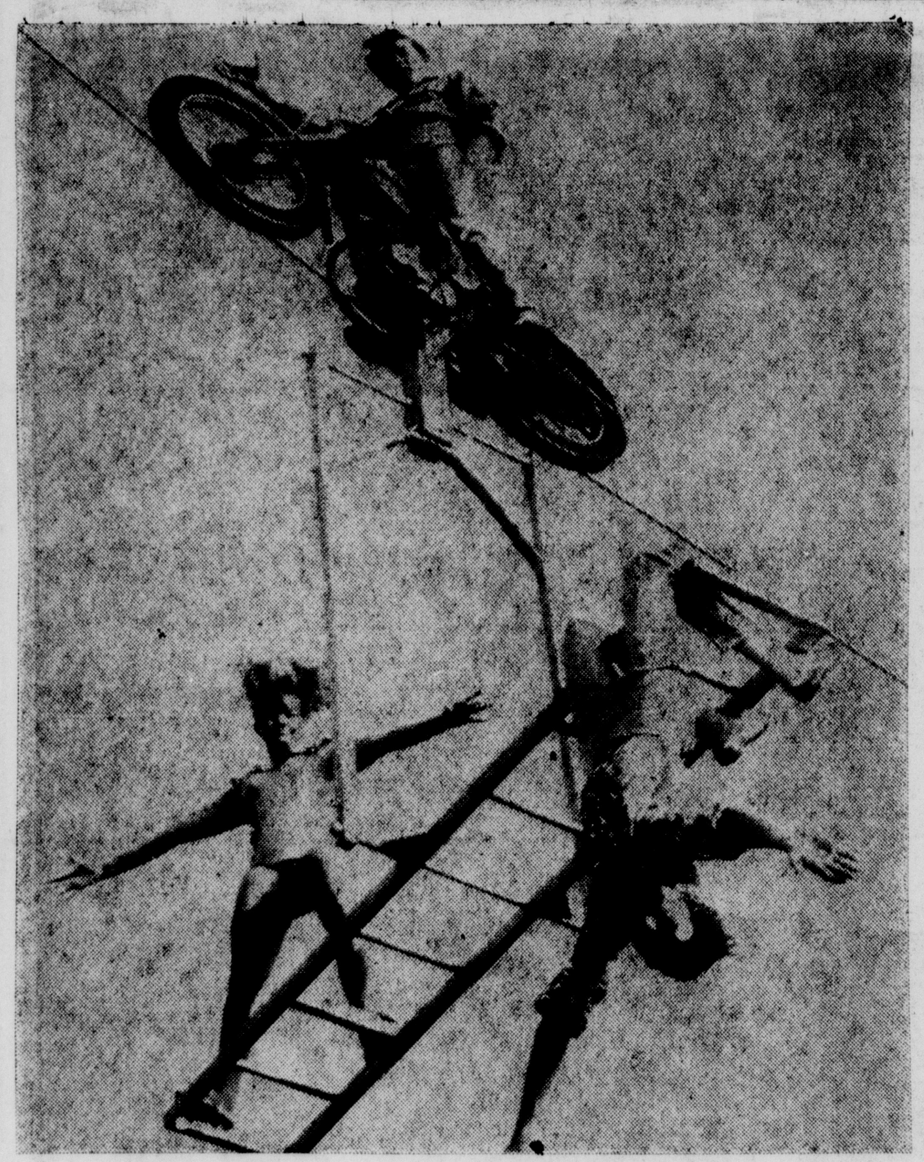
Cranston, testifying recently before a Senate armed services subcommitee, said Congress should order a cut in such overseas spending despite threats of a veto by President Nixon.

The overseas cut proposed by Cranston would be within a total 156,000 deduction already recommended by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The California Democrat said it would save $923 million a year "without in any way imperilling our defense or the defense of our allies."

"In fact, it will strengthen our economy and hence strengthen our defense posture," he said. "Keeping that money at home will help fight inflation through stabilizing the dollar and by reducing our balance of payments deficit.

NEW YORK (UPI) —Next to price, nutrition is the most important food-buying consideration, according to a study conducted for Hoffman-La Roche, Inc., vitamin producers. The research, based on panel discussions with women of widely varied ages, education and income, also indicated they believed breakfast is the most important meal and the one that most needs nutritional improvement.



HIGH RIDERS — The Fesler Brothers and their sister Hedy, show their skill and daring as they spin and swing in a unique motorized high-wire act, " Motorcycle in the Sky," just one of some 20 featured acts of the 12-day run of the Polack Bros. Circus.

Many facets

Fair much more than exposition

The Los Angeles County Fair is much more than just a fair. It is a exposition of international scope, attracting visitors and exhibitors from all parts of the country and the world, a city within a city, and, during its annual 17-day run, one of the largest businesses in the area.

With an annual average attendance of more than one million, it is the largest county fair in the world and the fourth largest of all fairs in the nation.

The first fair, held in 1922, attracted 49,461 people. An all-time attendance record was set last year with 1,268,446 visitors clicking through the turnstiles. This beat the previous record of $1,265,195 set in 1967.

This year's 46th presentation, is expected to attract at least 1.25 million patrons.

Attesting to its international scope, the fair regularly attracts from 20 to 30 foreign countries which send well over 200 exhibits featuring their cultures and products. In addition, many of the 2,000 photographic entries bear foreign postmarks.

During its 17-day run, the fair maintains all the facilities needed to operate a city of 75,000 population: police force, fire department, branch bank, post office, electric sub-station, telephone exchange with 25 main truck lines and 240 stations, first aid facility, nursery and playground, picnic areas, sanitation department, trailer park, garage and maintenance shop.

The fair's commissary supplies food for both employes and visitors, serving more than 40 tons of hot dogs, 36 tons of hamburger, and 1.2 million corn tortillas, not to mention innumerable snacks and beverages.

The fairgrounds cover 487 acres, landscaped with more than 5,000 trees, thousands of plants and flowers and acres of grass. All exhibit areas and walkways are blacktopped. Paved parking areas accommodate 45,000 vehicles. There are over 200 permanent buildings with a combined floor space of more than 1.5 million square feet. The entire facility is valuued in excess of $25 million.

With an annual budget of more than $4 million, the fair contributes heavily to the local economy. Nearly half the sum goes for ewages and salaries with the rest going for materials, services and cash premium awards. Nearly 6,000 people are employed during the fair period with more than 1,900 on the staff alone. The rest are employed by exhibitors, concessionaires and racing interests.

Any revenues above the cost of operation is used by non-profit fair association to maintain, expand and improve the facilities and pro grams.

And finally, the fair is perhaps one of the best entertainment bargains anywhere with admissions at a low $1.50 for adults; 50 cents for children under 12.

After 26 years

Fair career ends for Mrs. Saari

For Janet Saari, the 46th Los Angeles county Fair will be her last.

Mrs. Saari, currently fair office administrator, will wind up her 26-year career that ranged from office girl to what one co-worker describes as "chief troubleshooter for everything that goes on."

But she is much more modest about her work, pointing out that it's "nothing that anybody can't do."

Besides her daily supervision of an office staff of 100, Mrs. Saari is responsible for producing the nine-volume set of premium books that are the Bible of fair exhibitors.

Some 10,000 copies are sent out each year to give potential exhibitors the latest information on entry fees and requirements, details of judging procedures and scorings, amount and types of prizes awarded, and a complete run-down on what may entered in each division of the 15 competitive areas which include apiary, aquarium, cavies, dairy products, feature exhibits and agricultre, flower and garden show, gem and mineral show, home arts, junior fair, livestock, natural resources, photography, pigeons, poultry, rabbits and wine.

Mrs. Saari sees the project through from beginning to end each year writing letters to judges and various organizations to line up experts and update competitive requirements, coordinating and preparing the copy, doing the actual layout of the books and working closely with printers on the finished product.

And once an edition is completed, it's time to begin working on next year's book. So the project is really a year-round task, that she says is "the big thing" of he job.

As each entry comes in, she also scans the entry forms to see that all the appropriate information is included and in its proper place, and that the proper amount of entry fees is also included

When opening day of the fair rolls around, she sees to it that visiting judges are assured living accommodations, and also supervises the maintaining of judging records and scores in all the competitive events.

The first 10 days of the fair are always busy, she says, but after that, "Then you think of seeing the fair."

Her own perennial favorite exhibits include the flower show, the home arts exhibits and the livestock exhibits.

Her interest in livestock is only a natural extension of the years she spent growing up on her grandfather's farm in North Dakota. The experience, she says, proved helpful in her work at the fair.

Despite a certain wistfulness at leaving her many friends at the fair, she is excited about her retirement.

It's going to give her the opportunity to indulge in another favorite pastime: travel.

After the close of the fair this year, she'll depart her Montclair home for Mexico. After that she has plans to visit Japan, Scandinavia and some of those as-yet-unseen parts of the United States, notably Alaska.

L.A.-to-fair bus service during run

Non-stop bus service to the fair from Los Angeles will again be offered by Southern California Rapid Transit District buses throughout the fair's 17-day run.

Special line 40 Freeway Flyers will depart the downtown Los Angeles RTD station weekdays between 8:40 a.m. and 1:15 p.m., with return trips between 3:30 and 10:30 p.m. More frequent service is available on weekends.

Connecting serice to the fairgrounds will also be available from other points throughout the district.

Bill outlaws coin-tossing at ring events

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation outlawing fans from throwing money or anything else at the ring during a boxing match has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The bill (AB469) by Assemblyman Alex P. Garcia, D-Los Angeles, also provides for warning signs to be posted in English and Spanish at all boxing events. Conviction of the crime would carry a misdemeanor penalty.

Garcia said he introduced the bill because of the "extremely dangerous practice" of fans throwing coins at fighters for a good performance. "The last fight I was at I got hit in the head with a silver dollar," Garcia said.

Amateur wine tasters able to vie with pros

Amateur wine tasters will have an opportunity to match their palates and taste buds against those of recognized experts by sampling some 180 award-winning wines on display in the fair's Wine Cellar.

After sampling 452 wines, the 17-member judging panel awarded 61 gold medals, 70 silver and 59 bronze medals, with honorable mention going to 33 other top wines.

This year, Brookside Vineyard Co. of Guasti swept the field with 10 gold medals, 9 silver and 12 bronze awards.

Gold medalists among the company's bottling include Angelica, Black Velvet, Dry Vermouth, Guasti Chocolate, Guasti Mint, Muscatel, Rose Suave, Vino Rosso, Vin de Biane Fres Flor Sherry Creme and Vache Marsala Crema.

Silver medalists on exhibit at the fair are Guasti Cream, Tokay, Ruby Port, White Port, Vino Rosado; and the Assumption Abbey brand Cream Muscat, Sherry de Oro, Sherry Palido and Vache Pink Chablis.

Brookside's President Philo P. Biane attributed the sweep to the family's fourth and fifth-generation vineyardists and winemakers, and the varietal mine grapes from the 141-year-old firm's young vineyards in the Rancho California-Temecula district and from their long-established Cucamonga district vineyards.

The fair's annual wine-tasting event is now the only major open wine juding in the state. Competition has been held regularly in mid-August since 1935.

Heading the panel of judges for the seventh year was Nathan L. Chromon of Beverly Hills. Other experts, many of them recognized internationally as wine judges included:

Pan Am buys shorter 747s

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Pan American World Airways has ordered 10 of the Boeing Company's shorter but faster long-range 747s at a cost of $280 million, it was announced Monday.

The new plane, 747SP (Special Performance), will be manufactured at Boeing's 747 plant in Everett, Wash.

Boeing officials said the Pan American version would have a capacity of 280 passengers and would be used for the line's very long range, medium density routes.

Pan American was the first airline to order the 747SP which has a range of 6,900 miles. The airline also took an option on 15 more 747SPs.

Days of yore

Displays of antique farm machinery and equipment will invoke many memories for viewers of the exhibit at the Los Angeles County Fair, through Sept. 30. Several pieces of equipment date back to the 1870's, and others show the progress throughout the years.

CATHY BOYD

Cathy Boyd wants to work with retarded

Obtaining a master's degree in social work to enable her to counsel or work with mentally retarded children is the challenging goal of 20-year-old Cathy Boyd of Fresno, representing Azusa Pacific College in the fair queen contest.

A senior psychology major at Azusa Pacific, Cathy maintains a 3.9 grade point average despite her hectic schedule of activities. She has been active as a cheerieader for two years, a member of Alpha Chi, an honor club; and as a staff member of the school yearbook. In addition, she will serve as a resident assistant in the college dormitory next year.

And added to the social events, she works as a waitress at Holiday Inn restaurant in West Covina. Both her school and work activities give Cathy her desired opportunity to meet many interesting people.

Tennis, biking, skiing, reading, traveling, going to the beach, and working for the Christian organization, Young Life, also keep her busy year round. The mountains and the beach are favorite relaxing spots for Cathy, who rarely gets a moment to rest from her busy schedule.

"I like working with youth," says Cathy, who has worked at Pacific State Hospital and at an elementary school for children with problems in learning. Both jobs have allowed the Azusa Pacific senior to gain experience and knowledge in her chosen field.

Her philosophy, she says, is one of trying to bring happiness to other people's lives. "I'm a Christian, so I should spread my happiness that God gave me to others," she believes.

Cathy's position on the women's liberation movement is that women deserve equal pay for equal jobs, but "a girl should still be treated like a girl. I want my cake and still want to eat it!"

KATHY GROTHE

I'm what people made me, says Kathy Grothe

"Friendship, contacts and involvements with other people made me what I am. Everyone is a conglomeration of other people," says fair princess Kathy Grothe of Claremont, a 21-year-old Cal Poly student.

Kathy's involvements have led her into a very busy, active lifestyle. At Cal Poly she sings in the concert choir and is vice president of Sigma Phi Delta sorority.

Queen contests are nothing new to her: she has been a Poly Vue princess and queen's pageant chairman at school. She stays active in school and community activities through her sorority, while maintaining a 3.3 grade point average.

Spare time activities usually involve sewing, playing guitar and singing.

A liberal studies senior, she plans to go on to graduate studies at UCLA or San Diego State. She'd like to teach elementary school and hopes to eventually become a principal.

Occasionally she contemplates going into merchandising for a career as a buyer. She has already spent four years working at Bufums', now working in bridal, furs and fine clothes.

Other goals in this ambitious young woman's life include marriage and a family. She wants to remain active, and raise a strong family-oriented family. "The most important feeling in a family is the constant giving of the self. A family willing to give is close."

Although she agrees with some Women's Lib philosophies, such as equal pay for equal jobs, she says "I enjoy being a woman and want to be treated as a woman." She views marriage as teamwork, but adds that she's home-oriented and would want to stay home with her children.

She entered the fair queen contest because the idea of being active in the community and the fair appealed to her as being rewarding. She enjoys public speaking and meeting people, and would like to be queen to represent the fair all year. She feels she's learned a lot about human nature by working with the other girls on the fair court.

Optimism is her philosophy. She tries to look at the bright side of life.

"You have to make your own happiness. Don't dwell on the bad. Work hard and reach for happiness. It means a lot to be able to give happiness to someone else."

A BIT OF FRISCO — An original cable car from San Francisco's Sutter Street Railroad Co. will be a featured display at the fair in honor of the centennial anniversary of the railway.

Cable car anniversary

The centennial anniversary of San Francisco's famed cable cars will be celebrated at the fair with an exhibit of historic photographs and an authentic cable car from the Sutter Street Railroad Co.

The old car, normally stored in the cable car museum in San Francisco, was used on the city's second line from 1877 to 1929.

Because of the centennial celebration, it has been on tour in two Northern California county fairs and the State Fair at Sacramento.

Its last appearance will be at the Pomona fairgrounds.

The Sutter Street Railroad began operating on Jan. 27, 1877, and at its heyday in 1891, the company operated almost six miles of cable routes. The 1906 earthquake and fire saw all but the Pacific Avenue segment converted to electricity and the Pacific Avenue cars ran for the last time on Nov. 29, 1929.

The Sutter Street car is on permanent loan to the City of San Francisco from the Railway and Locomotive Historical Society.

Goods from four corners of world will be available to fair shoppers

How would you like to shop for four corners of the world without really leaving home? The fair's International Mart provides this luxury at no charge.

Some 20 countries will brinng their goods to market for fairgoers to buy during the fair's 17-day run.

French perfume, English cookware, Chinese pearls, wigs and art, and items from Africa, Yugoslavia, Scandinavia to Mexico, Malaysia to Jamaica will be on sale. Ecuador, Iran, Greece and India are just a few more flavors of foreign flare which blend into the international market place, here for its 13th year.

Panama will join the International Mart with a government tourist bureau. Unicef and "Action" of Peace Corps also have booths in the mart.

Student exhibits will be displayed

Geared for action with folk dancing, tumbling, choral groups, chees, art, and sculpture demonstrations and thousands of student project displays is the fair's Public Schools Exhibit, featuring the theme "Education Geared for Tomorrow."

More than 1,400 students from some 45 school districts in Southern California have submitted 3,400 items for display in the exhibit. Art work, ceramics, wood, wire, and nail sculpture, macrame, novelty weaving, models, murals, and batiks will be included in the non-competitive attractions.

Projects include work from kindergarten through adult education and all articles displayed receive a merit of award sticker.

In keeping with the theme of the exhibit, a bi-lingual kindergarten class will demonstrate new teaching techniques involved with youngsters in a bi-lingual classroom situation. Niemes School kindergarteners of Artesia, Bloomfield, and Cerritos (ABC) Unified School District will show how they translate words from one language to the other under the leadership of Vickie Lopez, teacher.

The exhibit offers teachers and students an opportunity to gain inspiration and new ideas for use in area public schools, in addition to showing fair visitors what and how students are now learning.

Explosive used to create fire breaks

LAKE ELSINORE (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service Thursday demonstrated a cord-like military explosive that will be used to cut fire breaks in Southern California mountain areas prior to the next fire season.

The nonflammable cord can be laid and exploded to cut breaks three to 10 feet wide eight times faster than hand crews can do the job. It can be laid in sections ranging from a quarter-mile to a mile long, the Forest Service said.

He gave shirt off back to pay taxes

LONG EATON, England (UPI) —City taxes were so high, thought Barry Thompson, that his local council might as well be asking for the shirt off his back—so he sent it to them.

Written on it was a check for $175. A bank spokesman said they were bound to accept it and cited a precedent—in 1970, someone cashed a check written on a cow at another branch.

Unruh gets post with hospitals

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pacific Coast Medical Enterprises named former Assembly Speaker Jess Unruh an executive vice president performing liaison functions in community affairs Thursday.

PCME owns Community Hospital in San Diego, Bella Vista Community Hospital in East Los Angeles, Community Hospital of Los Angeles, Century City Hospital of Beverly Hills, pharmacies and other subsidiaries.

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI) — Rebelious students are no more creative than their classmates, say Dr. Russell Chimento, principal of the American Legion High School in Sacramento after a study of 11th and 12th graders. Chimento made his finding after a year of research at the University of the Pacific in trying to develop new programs to help continuation students.

CHRIS JENNINGS

Chris Jennings hopes to be a stewardess

"I am but a traveler beteen many worlds . . . Yes, I will continue on my travels to destinies unknown" is a line from a poem written by and lived by, fair princess Christine Jennings.

Chris, an 18-year old Citrus College sophomore majoring in liberal arts, hopes to work as an airline stewardess and maybe later enroll in a university. "I'm just taking things as they come," she notes. "I'm enjoying what I'm doing now, but I still don't know what I want to really do."

Snow skiing, swimming, water coloring, arts and crafts and cooking are just a few of many activities she enjoys. This summer, she is helping maintain her home while her parents are at work. Chris enjoys doing housework and cooking. She loves to cook Italian food and many other dishes with her sister, Keily. "I experiment a lot with my cooking," she says.

Chris feels some of today's trends are "really fun." She says, "I don't criticize people for what they do."

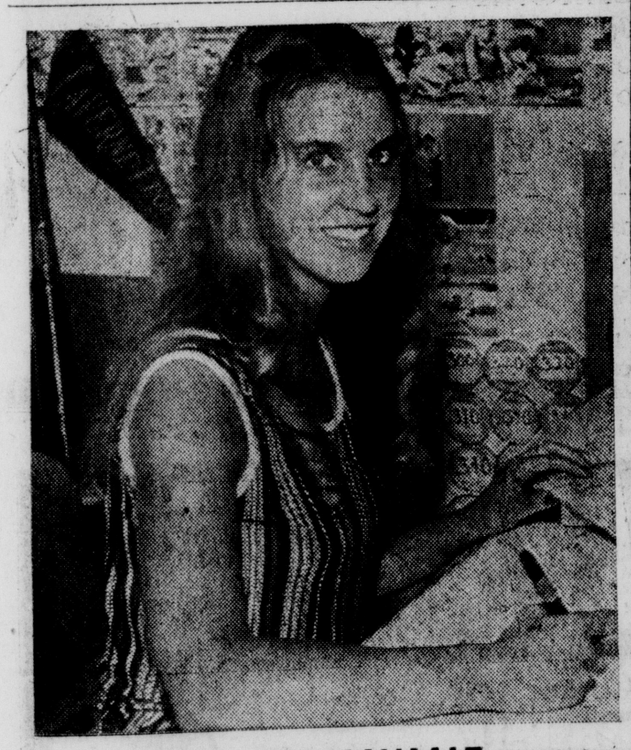
She gives people who are r e a l l y dedicated to their causes a lot of credit. " I respect them for that, if that's what they believe in."

However, she feels that many times original causes get buried. "It's kind of sad in that respect," she muses.

She is an active participant in student government at Citrus as activties chairman for Homecoming Week fall semester and commissioner of communications on the executive board spring semester. She now holds the position of corresponding secretary of the executive board.

Chris, a Glendora resident, feels that parents should start treating their children as adults at an early age because fewer problems would mount and youths would finally be aware that they really are adults. "You whole mental attitude and process c h a n g e s'' when you are treated as an adult," "Chris says. "Adults would be suprised."

A Libra, Chris is interested in astrology and would like to study it seriously. "I think it has possibilities," she says.



ANN HANAWALT

Ann Hanawalt looks toward seeing people

"I've never done anything like this before — it's exciting!" says 21-year-old fair princess Ann Hanawalt.

Ann, representing La Verne College, is looking forward to meeting people during her royal activities.

"It's gotten me over my shyness a lot," the La Verne resident says of her experiences so far.

Ann is currently studying biology at La Verne, hoping to teach science at the junior high level upon graduation. She has traveled the southern European countries on an independent study program, which she felt gave her an opportunity to be herself and to be creative.

Ann works as a forum secretary at the college, answering phones, typing, and doing publicity work for the student association. In addition, she does general office work for the college's physical education and science departments.

All outdoor sports, especially bicycling, swimming, and body surfing, interest the busy coed.

"I've always been really active in sports. I love the outdoors and camping," Ann says. The mountains, desert, and beach are all favorite camping spots for the southland beauty, who often camps with her friends.

Ann likes to knit, sew, hook rugs, decoupage, and travel. "I make all my own clothes," she says. Many of her creative efforts are used for gifts.

"I try to have a good time wherever I go," is Ann's philosophy. "Life has a lot to offer. I don't see the bad (in things) unless it's forced on me. I have an optimistic outlook."

PATTI ERICKSON

Patti Erickson plans to be a veterinarian

"Take each day as it mes. . . I do things in rela- on to what I've done before, t what I'm going to do in e future."

This is the philosophy of ir princess Patti Jo Erick- n of Brea.

An easygoing 19-year-old, atti says she doesn't look o far into the future. She's pre-veterinary major at Cal oly and wants to go on to eterinary school. Her goals re get through school suc- ssfully, surpass obstacles in r way and succeed in hatever she does. She esn't look toward marriage r quite a while because "I an't be a good vet and a ood wife and mother at the ame time."

She would agree with many omen's Libbers regarding mployment practices—she's ry concerned with the dis- imination against women in e field of medicine. How- ver, she doesn't approve of e movement's methods of stigating change. "We need gradual change—most wom- are expecting a total reve- al of ideas. A better way of ing it is to get women into redominantly male institu- tions."

Not really a competitive person, Patti likes to "do things for the sake of doing them". She's performed in many horse shows for several years, but no longer has the time. She enjoys it because "it's just getting out there doing something; it's me out there alone. If the horse does something wrong it's because I haven't taught him."

She still belongs to the Fullerton Recreation Riders and gives four students riding lessons twice a week.

Patti feels that being on the fair court has been an enriching experience for her. "It's gotten me to people. Before, horses were my whole life." She things that as queen she would meet more people, but feels that the princesses get just as involved in fair activities. She sees her role on the fair court as "a great way to get involved in the fair," which she's loved to attend for years.

During the summer, she worked full time at the Commercial National Bank in Fullerton, running credit checks and working on insurance and loan applications.

MIRNA MEYER

Mirna Meijer says she likes to be with people

"I have to be with people. If I'm not with people, it's drabby," says 20-year-old fair princess Mirna Meijer of La Puente.

As a salesgirl at Fabrics Galore in La Puente, Mirna gets a chance to come into contact with lots of people. "I love working with people," she says. And her job has caused her to become enthralled with sewing her own wardrobe now.

A sophomore office clerical major, Mirna will represent Mt. San Antonio College in the queen contest. After graduation, she would like to become an airline stewardess and later work in an office. Her plans then include settling down and raising a family.

Outgoing, vivacious, and enthusiastic are just a few key words that describe the petite beauty, who holds a second job as a football secretary for the college. Mirna really enjoys the job, which entails putting the football roster together and taking down statistics during games. "It's so much fun," says Mirna, an avid football fan who calls herself "tomboyish."

Weightlifting, soccer, football, house cleaning, playing the piano, and dancng are just a few more activities that keep her on the run most of the time. "I dance at least five hours a week. "It keeps me in shape." She loves to dance everything from the tango to modern rock.

Glen Miller, Artie Shaw, and Tommy Dorsey are among her favorite recording artists, with Perry Como topping the list as her favorite male singer. Hawaiian music and big band music also excite the perky coed.

Beauty contest aren't anything new for this beauty, who has reigned as a 1972 MSAC Relays princess, a 1971 Miss La Puente princess, and a finalist in the Miss Pomona Valley Pageant. "People in general—that's why I go into pageants," she explains.

Born in Arnhem, Netherlands, Mirna recalls that the greatest thing that ever happened to her was seeing the Statue of Liberty at the age of 4, when she first came to the United States.

Court of the Redwoods will celebrate 20th anniversary

California's smallest redwood park—the Court of the Redwoods—will celebrate its 20th aniversary this year at the fair.

Court of the Redwoods, located between the Fine Arts and Home Arts buildings on the fairgrounds, has living trees from California's giant redwood forests. The live trees, contributed by the 17 California counties in which the trees grow, have been planted in a setting simulating their native locale. Both the Sequoia Sempervirens and Sequoia Gigantea are represented.

A 16-foot diameter cross-section of one redwood, estimated to be 2,000 years old, is marked with the dates of historical events that occurred during its life. This section was contributed by Tulare County.

An 8 by 20 foot log from a 510-year old tree from Humboldt County is on exhibit. This log was sent on a 25,000 mile tour of the nation before being presented to the fair by the Georgia-Pacific Lumber Co.

The permanent exhibit censters around a huge statue of "The Ranchero" sculpted from a single redwood log by John Svenson of Green Valley.

The master behind the creation was the late Tevis Paine, former director of public relations for the fair for 14 years.

Paine was the "court planner" who spent many hours in bringing to fruition a living tribute to the mighty Sequoias. The court now serves as a living memorial to California's great redwoods and the man who matched them

The area, enjoyed by tens of thousands of fair patrons and interim viesitors, is bathed in a cooling mist by special fogproducing nozzles to provide the life-giving fog of the coast and the mists of the Sierras.

The Court of the Redwoods, with its trees, shurbs, flora, and ground cover, has now blended into a natural appearing forest since its beginnings in 1953. The trees are healthy and robust, some gaining as much as four feet in height a year.

Armed Forces Day at fair

The annual Armed Forces Day at the Los Angeles County Fair, a salute to all the nation's military, will be Sunday it has been announced by Phil D. Shepherd, general manager.

On that day, all military personnel in uniform will be admitted free to the fairgrounds.

Highlighting the day's activities will be a concert by the 15th Air Force Band from March Field, annual twins contest, performances of Polack Bros. Circus at 2 and 7:30 p.m. and a parade featuring the fair queen and her court.

Food program to be broadcast

The Mike Roy Food News on radio station KNX will be broadcast from the fairgrounds today and Monday at 11:06 a.m. until noon

Program co-host Denis Bracken will remain at the KNX studios to handle phone inquiries from the program's listeners.

Old fashioned family picnics are encouraged by Los Angeles County Fair officials during the 17-day run of the huge exposition, Sept. 14 through 30. Ten secluded, tree-shaded areas provide ideal spots for family picnic basket lunches or suppers.

SONDRA SCHOENBERGER

Sondra Schoenberger wants to pilot jetliners

Sondra is a commerical airline pilot major at Mt. San Antonio College. She already has her private pilot's license, but wants to fly commercial liners "to have a different, exciting job. I like the idea of the responsibility and control."

"Life is a journey, not a destination," is a favorite life philosophy of 18-year old fair princess Sondra Schoenberger of Baldwin Park.

This busy coed's lifestyle certainly reflects her philosophy, for she never seems to stop, and keeps adding more activities to her list of accomplishments.

She has acquired more flight time as a member of the MSAC flying team. She is bombardier for the group during competitions with other schools. She is responsible for dropping water or chalk balloon "bombs" on ground targets, and estimate how altitude, wind and direction will affect where the bombs will land.

Outside of school, she keeps busy with numerous activities. She says she'd rather cook than do anything else, and especially likes preparing German and Italian foods. She makes all her own clothes and jewelry.

She loves sailing, water and snow skiing and does some surfing. An avid scuba diver, she'd like to dive in Tahiti sometime soon. She also enjoys some camping and backpacking.

In addition she holds down two jobs She is employed as a bridal consultant at Genice of West Covina, planning weddings, color schemes, flowers and advising on wedding etiquette.

Her second job is somewhat surprising: Sondra does electrical work on large machine units—her specialty is rewiring motors. She started receiving on-the-job training at 15, and continued for two years. "I'm the only girl," she says, "when I wire something and it works people look at me like 'You're kidding!.' "

Because of her unusal job, she says, "People think I'm for Women's Lib, but I'm not." She is, in fact, rather vehement in her anti-lib views: "I think women were put on earth to serve men, that's their purpose and that's what they should do." She says women should live their own lives, but continue to serve men.

Her goals include being a pilot for perhaps 10 years, marrying and raising a family. She wants to raise her family on a farm or ranch in the country, where the quietness would teach them to "appreciate nature better and understand their self and their worth."

Still thinking in active terms for her future, Sondra wants a beach house and a mountain home for skiing. "I want to live happily ever after" says the real-life fair princess.

"If I'm satisfied with my life and what I've accomplished, that's the most important part."

Just a coincidence

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Police report that for four hours and 55 minutes on a recent day they received no calls reporting crimes or accidents. A spokesman said that on a normal day an average of 20 calls are received from 9:15 a.m. to 2:10 p.m. when the lull occurred. He attributed the dry spell to "mere coincidence."

Tennis coach candidate for fair queen

Tennis, drama and music are three key activities in the life of Marsha Miller, 20-year-old La Verne College coed and fair princess.

A tennis instructor for the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department this summer, she teaches some 45 students in her sessions. The La Verne junior just placed first in women's singles in a weekend La Verne Parks and recreation Department tournament.

Palying tennis for only a year and a half and hoping to join the varsity team her senior year at La Verne, she attributes most of her improvement to Jim Pascal, her college tennis coach.

Working with children plays a soft part in Marsha's heart, as in addition to teaching tennis, she serves as a recreation leader for the Pomona Recreation Department. She works with underprivileged children in the new Sports Addict program at Washington Park in Pomona.

Marsha, who resides in West Covina, is optimistic about young people, feeling that there is a definite trend toward individuality, allowing youth "to find out who they are and what they can and can not do." She believes young people are free thinkers and don't have the hangups that older people have. "You can relate to them more easily because they are more open," she says.

She has set her sights on becoming a professional singer. Contemporary music excites the pretty brunette, who sings at weddings and belongs to the Chamber Singers at her college. After graduation, she plans to join a professional singing group as a start to her career.

"I'm happiest when I'm singing and performing and traveling," she notes.

Her love for music rings through when she talks of her favorite composers. She has patterned her own musical compositions after her favorite contemporary composer, Vincent Persichetti.

Drama also plays a major role in her life. She has the lead role in Alber Camus' "State of Seige" and parts in "Man of La Mancha" and Dark of the Moon" at La Verne. She is an active member of Alpha Psi Omega, the La Verne professional drama group.

Modern dance is another favorite activity.

Macrame, cooking, antiques and animals are additional interests of the outspoken coed, whose philosphy is "try to be the best you can be. Be all that you can be; don't just limit yourself."

LORI ROBINSON

Lori Robinson wants to travel, see Europe

"I just want to travel so I can see something" is the wish of Lori Robinson of El Monte, 19-year-old coed representing Citrus College in the Fair queen contest.

Lori's wish is to tour England, France and Germany, in addition to the New England states. "I don't know why," she says. "They just appeal to me."

Her love of the outdoors has lead her to one of her favorite pastimes, backpacking. She thoroughly enjoys her new hobby, which she took up only last summer. And her summer job as a counselor and unit assistant at the Singing Pines Girl Scout Camp gives her an excellent opportunity to indulge in the activity.

She enjoys working with young people as a camp counselor she supervises some 25 girls at a time during the summer. "It's neat," Lori says of her job at Singing Pines.

She plans to become a dental assistant after her traveling stint. She believes such a profession helps her meet people and in addition is also helping other people.

"I always keep on striving," Lori says. "I'm not content with what I have all the time." Her philosophy is to "keep me and the people around me pretty much happy. I don't ever want to be bored. I want to be able to find a rewarding profession."

Sewing, cooking, gardening, tennis, swimming, camping, reading and watching baseball, volleyball, and track keep her on a very active schedule and far from being bored.

The Citrus College sophomore maintains a 3.2 grade point average during the school year and hopes to continue her education through perhaps a liberal arts program in later years. "I like to keep on learning things."

72 owners sue developer over cracking homes

SAN JOSE (UPI) —The owners of 72 homes in a three-year-old subdivision have filed a $7.2 million damage suit against the developer, charging that the houses are falling apart.

The suit was filed recently in Santa Clara Superior Court by attorney Jeffrey Marshall on behalf of homeowners in the Hidden Glen subdivision.

Defendants ae the Arcadia Development Company and Jesse Stacey, a vice president of Arcadia.

In a 100-page complaint and 200 pages of exhibits, the homeowners say their houses are unsafe because of numerous defects, including walls that are cracking and soil which is shifting. They asked for $3.6 million in general damages and an equal amount in punitive damages.

Picnic days

Old fashioned family picnics (hopefully minus the ants!) are encouraged by Los Angeles CountyFair officials during the 17-day run of the huge exposition through Sept. 30. Ten secluded, tree-shaded areas provide ideal spots for family picnic basket lunches or suppers.

JULIE CHRISTINSON

Julie Christinson finds lost time frustrating

"Time escapes and it can be very frustrating," says fair princess Julie Christinson of Riverside.

An active 19-year-old Azusa Pacific coed, Julie finds that after working full time in the summer, she doesn't have too much time left for recreation activities. She worked in the service bank of the Riverside County welfare department for a student aid program. Although enjoying her duties, she says she thinks she'd rather "work 10 hours a day, four days a week . . . then every weekend would be a three-day weekend."

Work and her fair duties aren't the only claims on her time, however. She began planning in February for a junior high camp for which she is now assistant director.

She feels that experiences such as this, and previous camp counseling that she's done are good for her as she'd like to become a program coordinator for large camps.

Julie's experience recently landed her a new job: in the fall she will be a "peer counselor" at school. She will receive a scholarship for acting as counselor to a group of fellow students in the dorms. She's "expected to be a good listener," and says the program is just as much for the counselor's benefit as for her peers—"You're getting to know yourself as well as other people."

Julie has attended Azusa Pacific for just one semester, but feels "It's just the place for me—good people, teachers and friends."

She chose the school for its fine programs in both psychology and religion—despite conflicts she's encountered between the spiritual and scientific natures of the subjects—and because it's a good Christian school.

Religion is an important part of her life; it's something she centers goals around. "I want to learn more about myself, continue to grow as a person and to grow spiritually, and to grow in my relationship with God." A good spiritual relationship is "beneficial to you for your whole life."

She is insistent, however, that nothing should be forced on people, and gave the example of Women's Lib. Julie agrees with most Women's Lib tenets, but feels that it's pushed too hard.

"I like Women's Lib. Woman has been suppressed and has a role to play that's not equal to that of a male." She feels that job discrimination is unfair, and says that part of woman's role is to be a "baby machine", which she doesn't approve of.

Though articulate in her views, Julie says she's not "a card carrying member of Women's Lib," and doesn't believe in roles.

"I play my role as a person involved in the world and not a role as a woman."

Aaron, Hepburn, Streisand set for tube

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Notes to watch television by:

The Headliners: Henry Aaron, closing fast on Babe Ruth's home run record, is the subject of a one-hour prime time NBC-TV documentary Oct. 21 ... Katharine Hepburn will be the sole guest on Dick Cavett's late-night ABC-TV series Oct. 2 and 3 ... Jane Fonda stars on the same network this season in a movie version of Ibsen's famous drama "A Doll's House" ... Barbra Streisand's upcoming one-hour CBS-TV musical special is reported set for Nov. 2.

CBS-TV says Marshal Matt Dillon of "Gunsmoke" (James Arness) gets "his first screen kiss in 19 seasons on television' in the Sept. 24 episode .. Applying the smooch is Miss Michael Learned, who is seen regularly as the mother of the many children in the CBS-TV series "The Waltons" and, in the "Gunsmoke" episode, portrays "a self-reliant widow who falls in love with Matt" .. Title of the tale: "Matt's Love Story" ... And what ever happened to good old Kitty?

Ellen Corby, who plays the grandmother in "The Waltons," wrote the story for the which her on-screen husband (Will Geer) is accused by her of flirting with a couple of elderly sisters, and leaves home ... The script for the episode was written by Richard Carr ... Elizabeth Montgomery, headliner of the old video comedy series "Bewitched," will star on NBC-TV this season in a two-hour teleplay entitled "A Case of Rape," portraying a middle-class assault victim "who finds her problems compounded by a law enforcement and judicial system that humiliates and dehumanizes her."

Non-commercial television's eight-program series "The Men Who Made the Movies," featuring eight veteran Hollywood directors-Frank Capra, George Cukor, Alfred Hitchcock, Howard Hawks, Vincent Minelli, Raoul Walsh, King Vidor and William Wellman—bows in Nov. 4 coast-to-coast .. Jack Paar, who has decided to close out his one-week-a-month ABC-TV talk show, is scheduled to have his final broadcast in the series air on Nov. 16 ... Arlo Guthrie, originally announced as host of NBC-TV's Sept. 29 "Midnight Special" outing, will be a guest on the program instead, with Seals and Crofts taking over as emcees.

Jackie Gleason has long been associated with CBS-TV, but his Oct. 11 one-hour variety special is his first major outing on that network in some time—and now he is casting his lot with NBCTV ... The agreement with NBC-TV is that he would star in the 1974-75 season in a 90-minute or two-hour filmed drama that would be aimed at being a forerunner for his appearance "in a continuing dramatic vehicle, such as a mini-series or series," says the network ... Gleason has been an outstanding dramatic actor in such motion pictures as "The Hustler," "Gigot" and "Requiem for a Heavyweight."

The Programs: "Shaft," a periodic 90-minute video series based on the hit movie of the same name, and starring Richard Roundtree in the title role of the flamboyant private eye he created in the film, debuts on CBS-TV Oct 9 ... ABC-TV is reported considering the possibility of a series based on the acclaimed movie "Sounder" ... ABC-TV is also reported thinking of possible regular-season airing of two of its summer comedy series that did well with audiences: "Love Thy Neighbor," which concerns a white couple and a black couple who live next door to each other, and "The Corner Bar," about the goings-on at a New York City tavern ... The noncommercial network's planned hour special that will use entertainment forms to offer information about the elderly is set for an Oct. 29 broadcast date.

Reviews of movies

By SARAH SMILEY

Thirties and 40s nostalgia seems to be all the rage lately. "Bonnie and Clyde" helped it all get started a few years ago, along with the hippes (both real and simulated) and their resurrection of those buried, nearly forgotten Greta Garbo hats, fox furs, platform shoes and draped jersey dresses from the depths of various thrift stores and mothers' old trunks. More recently, we've been beset by a whole new rash of period movies like "Summer of '42," "Class of '44," "Paper Moon" and "American Grafitti." And now "Dillinger."

"Dillinger" has all the currently expected gimmicks of the period piece. A score composed mostly of original recordings from the early 30s. Titles superimposed on photographs of breadlinesn gangsters, G men, and F.D.R. The right clothes. The right haircuts. The right magazines and billboards. All expertly photographed.

Trouble is, about all that is right about this movie, which, aside from solid performances by two old pros, Warrent Oates (Dillinger) and Ben Johnson (Melvin Purvis, the G man hot on his trail), is mostly a dissapointingly empty exercise in technical expertise. None of the characters is developed past even a one-dimensional stage because far too much time is spent lingeringly photographing all those "right" props and on repetitive machine gun shootouts and getaways in picturesque old cars. As Dillinger's girl friend, Michelle Phillips has little to do but adjust her stockings and scream bloody murder during gunfights (shades of Estelle Parsons in "Bonnie and Clyde"), the infamous Pretty Boy Floyd and Baby Face Nelson are reduced to comic strip characters, and the most insightful look we ever get at Dillinger is in the revealing line, "I'm John Dillinger and I'm immortal." Not enough of a hook to hang a couple of hours on. At Cinema II, Montclair Plaza.

NUN FUN — Debbie Reynolds' effigy from "The Singing Nun" waves to passerby at the Movieland Wax Museum in Buena Park, as she rides her motorbike down a forest path. More than 125 film stars are portrayed in wax in scenes from their important movies. The museum and the adjacent Palace of Living Art are open from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily.

'Hot 1' star dies in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Actress Margaret Linn, 39, who played Jackie in "The Hot 1 Baltimore," now in its final week at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center, died of a cerebral hemorrhage at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital Wednesday.

Born Mary Margaret Linn, Aug. 21, 1934, in Richmond, Ind., she was a graduate of Northwestern University. She had appeared on Broadway in Peter Ustinov's "Half Way Up the Tree," "Ring Around the Bathtub," and "How's the World Treating You?" Her off-Broadway credits included the role of the deaf starlet in "The House of Blue Leaves," and roles in "The Disintegration of James Cherry," "Billy Liar," "Pale Horse, Pale Rider," and "Huui Huui." Her Shakespearean roles include Katherine in "Love's Labour's Lost" for the New York Shakespeare Festival and Viola in "Twelfth Night" for the Arena Stage.

Last summer, Miss Linn costarred with Julie Harris in "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little" and opposite Tom Poston in "Lovers and Other Strangers." Her motion pictures included "Puzzle of a Downfall Child" and "Klute." On television, Miss Linn was featured in the video version of "Hogan's Goat," the NET production "Hard Travelin'," and on the series, The Doctors, among others.

Radiating salad oil

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Atomic energy experts say that of a number of common substances containing some radiation, salad oil has one of the highest levels — three times the amount of normal radioactivity of milk or whisky and almost 250 times as much as plain tap water. These levels are extremely minute and occur naturally, with no threat to living things.

Bank hikes prime loan rate to 10%

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The prime lending rate rose to a record 10 per cent today in the 300 branches of Wells Fargo Bank.

The one-quarter per cent boost, if followed , as is expected, by other banks, will be the sixteenth so far this year in the interest rate charged top corporate borrowers.

"The prime rate has not moved since Aug. 27 and continues to be out of phase with other money market rates," said Executive Vice President James K. Dobey Thursday in announcing the increase.

The rate paid on federal funds already has increased to 11 per cent, he said, and certificate of deposit rates are approaching 11 per cent.

He said government officials "indicate that restrictive monetary policy will be continued until there are definite signs that inflationary pressures are receding.

"The combination of all these influences on the money market forces this increase in Wells Fargo's prime corporate lending rate."

Victim's auto rammed by suspect's car

High-speed freeway chase ends in death of B.P. man

WEST COVINA — A Baldwin Park man was killed here early today when his sports car was struck by a sedan being chased by a Montclair police unit.

The fatal crash occurred on the San Bernardino Freeway while three West Covina police cars were attempting to stop the chased motorist with a "rolling" roadblock.

Merritt Donald Finch, 30, of 3822 N. Kenmore St., Baldwin Park, was dead on his arrival at Queen of the Valley Hospital. The collision caused his small sedan to roll over and land on its top.

Thomas James Stogden, 26, of 1012 W. Elgenia Ave., West Covina, driver of the other car, reportedly suffered a broken leg. He was taken to San Bernardino County Hospital and booked on suspicion of manslaughter, assault with a deadly weapon and felony drunk driving.

The three West Covina police cars were lined across the westbound freeway lanes and moving slowly in an attempt to progressivly slow down the oncoming car, officers explained.

The chased vehicle approached the rolling roadblock at a speed of about 90 miles an hour, they added. His car struck the sports vehicle from the rear, veered off and collided with two police cars before hitting a van truck, they added.

The driver of one police car had accelerated after the first collision in an attempt to avoid a collision, said investigators. All three police units involved in the rolling roadblock had their red lights turned on.

The chase began about 1 a.m. in Montclair when officer Glen Tarin, a city policeman, observed two vehicles speeding on Central Avenue near Kingsley Street.

He attempted to stop the cars with his red light and siren, but both entered the freeway, where one stopped and the second continued on at a high rate of speed.

Tarin called for assistance, and was soon joined by a highway patrol unit at Monte Vista Avenue.

Both pursued the sedan at speeds of 60 to 70 miles an hour to Indian Hill Boulevard, where the fleeing motorist accelerated to 100 to 115 miles per hour, said Tarin.

The motorist attempted to run the highway patrol car off the road at Towne Avenue but glanced off the center divider and nearly lost control, he added.

At Kellogg Drive the sedan nearly struck a large truck, but the driver veered and hit the left center divider, again nearly going out of control.

The highway patrol car dropped back at Via Verde Avenue while three Montclair police units continued the pursuit, officers said.

When the chase reached Barranca Avenue, a West Covina police officer joined the pursuit and initiated the rolling road-block.

The roadblock started at Vincent Avenue and continued at about 20 to 25 miles an hour. There were three vehicles behind the block — the chased vehicle, the sports car and the van.

The collision demolished both the sports car and the chased vehicle and caused minor damage to the other vehicles.

Finch was identified by his parents at the West Covina hospital. His body was later taken to the Custer and Christiansen Mortuary in West Covina where funeral arrangements are pending.

Police said the suspect may not be arraigned until next week because of his broken leg.

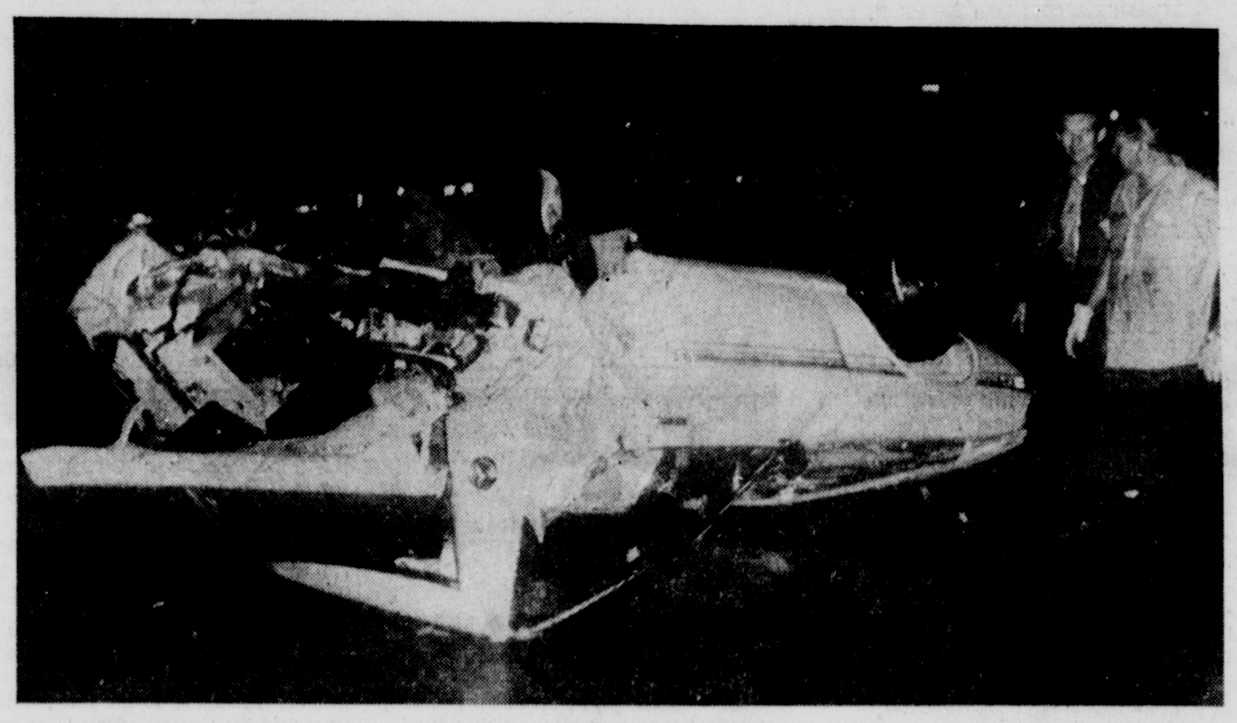
Press auto talks; deadline midnight

DETROIT (UPI) — Top Chrysler Corp. and United Auto Workers negotiators sought to iron out the major issues of wages and voluntary overtime today and reach agreement on a contract before an 11:59 p.m. strike deadline.

Chrysler bargainers, including William O'Brien, vice-president for personnel, and William F. Bavinger Jr., director of industrial relations, met at 9 a.m. with UAW representatives Leonard Woodcock, UAW president, and Douglas Fraser, vice president and head of the union's Chrysler division.

Among the problems facing the negotiations, which began last July 18, was not only a wage increase but tailoring it to meet the guidelines of the Cost of Living Council.

The company also has opposed the union's demand for voluntary overtime, contending that it would disrupt production schedules if union members were allowed to decide whether or not they would work overtime.



AN INNOCENT VICTIM

Blast hurls 8 through plate glass window

LAFAYETTE, Ga. (UPI) — Eight persons, some with their hair and clothes singed off, were hurled through a plate glass window Thursday when a downtown hardware store exploded and burned to the ground.

Officials said a car ran into the gas meter behind Pennington Hardware, and gas that had leaked into the store exploded when someone lit a match.

The injured persons, one in critical condition, were taken to hospitals in Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga. and Chattanooga, Tenn.

Capt. Robert Busby, a firemen who was next door to the store when the blast occurred, said it appeared the blast had knocked the victims through the front windows of the store.

"People were lying all over the street," said Busby, who arrived at the scene about a minute after the explosion. "People were running around everywhere, their hair burned off and everything else. They were just pitiful."

Margaret Arnold, a spokeswoman for the police department, said she saw one victim whose clothes had been burned off her body. "I saw her run out, she was in her underclothes, and they loaded her into an ambulance."

Firemen searched the rubble for several hours after the blaze was brought under control, looking for other victims. Paint cans and ammunition in the store exploded, hampering rescue efforts.

A spokesman at a Chattanooga hospital said Jimmy Ray Craig was in "critical" condition. Four other victims, J.W. Hobbs, 30 the owner of the store, Elsie Williams, 56, Bobby Lee Craig, 24, and James Albert Narrmore, 41, were in "serious" condition with second and third degree burns.

The three other victims, Janice Gober, 16, Cornelia Patton, 35, and Gerald Harelson, 16, were listed in "guarded" condition at a Ft. Oglethorpe hospital with first and second degree burns.

All the victims were from the Lafayette area.

Motorist killed at Ganesha ramp

POMONA — A motorist was killed shortly before noon today when his car hit a guard rail at the Ganesha Avenue off-ramp of the San Bernardino Freeway.

The victim, not immediately identified, was dead on his arrival at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The vehicle hit the guard rail "dead center," highway patrolmen said. There were no skidmarks.

Dreary conditions to give way over weekend at fair

The 46th edition of the Los Angeles County Fair opened today with hazy sunshine and warm temperatures in prospect for afternoon visitors on this opening weekend.

National Weather Service Office forecasters said "fair" weather will prevail throughout the weekend. A high of 78 degrees is forecast for today and 80 degrees Saturday.

Some of the low cloudiness and dreary weather conditions will still be evident when the gates at the fair open to visitors at 10 a.m. Saturday, but this is supposed to burn off by late morning. The weather will be ideal for visitors who plan to tour the 478 acres and view the thousands of attractions and exhibits.

For those who don't care to walk, tram and the monorail service provide tours of the fairgrounds.

Persons who plan to attend the fair this evening and watch as one of 10 fair princesses will be crowned 1973 Fair Queen at ceremonies at 7:45 at the grandstand, should bring along a sweater or light jacket to be comfortable as temperatures cool down.

Following coronation of the queen, the Polack Bros. Circus will begin its 13-day run through Sept. 26.

A four-day run of the Rodeo Cowboys Association championship rodeo will close the fair Sept. 27-30.

Special activities at the fair today included a Welsh mountain sheep shearing contest.

Godfrey Brown will give two demonstrations daily of how he sheared 559 Welsh mountain sheep in a nine-hour period.

The fair will offer something for every member of the family, including the youngsters who can attend activities at the Fun Zone that features the world's largest ferris wheel and rides, games and shows.

Catalina ship captain faces loss of license

SAN PEDRO (UPI) —The skipper of the S.S. Catalina faces possible loss of his license for allegedly carrying more than the ship's limit of 2,240 passengers on a 27-mile run to Catalina Island.

The Coast Guard Thursday accused Lloyd S. Fredgren, captain of the ship for 38 years, of carrying 43 passengers over the legal limit last Aug. 5. Fredgren faces a hearing on the charges next week, the Coast guard said.

Howard E. McKee, the shipline's chief purser, was also cited for maritime violations in connection with allowing too many passengers aboard the ship.

Volvo to build huge factory in Virginia

NEW YORK (UPI) —Swedish auto maker Volvo announced plans Thursday to build a $100 million plant in Virginia, which would make it the only foreign car manufacturer in the United States.

Officials said the proposed factory could start production in 1977.

Volvo President Pehr G. Gyllenhammar said a fifth of his firm's cars were sold in America last year, and "We would like to establish ourselves even more firmly here.

The U.S. plant, to be built in Chesapeake, Va., would yield up to 3,000 new jobs, and Gov. Linwood Holton called Volvo "a most welcome invader to Virginia."

Court asks Nixon, Cox to seek tape compromise, avoid ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The U.S. Court of Appeals has proposed that President Nixon and Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox settle the issue of the President's Watergate tapes between themselves "without the need for a constitutional ruling."

Cox is willing. The President hasn't replied.

The seven appeals judges proposed in a surprise move Thursday that Cox, the President "or his delegate," and the President's lawyer, Charles Alan Wright, review the tapes and try to reach agreement on turning portions of them over to a grand jury.

If such a voluntary agreement were reached, neither the appeals court nor the Supreme Court would have to decide the major constitutional issues raised by the case—whether a president can withhold information from a criminal inquiry, the extent of his right to official privacy and even the extent of the power of the courts over him.

Meanwhile, Senate Watergate committee chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., who is seeking the same tapes in a separate court suit, said Thursday night in Newark, Del., that he would be willing to compromise by having three committee members listen to them privately with Nixon.

Garden series by Poly coed starts in today's P-B

POMONA — A Cal Poly coed, studying history, is making garden news.

Mary Lynne Olson has prepared a series of articles for the California Association of Nurserymen, distributed throughout the state, about the interesting facts of gardening, ancient and modern. A North Hollywood resident, she has been enrolled at Cal Poly in horticultural education following history studies at Cal State Los Angeles.

Her articles, beginning today, will appear for six weeks on the P-B's home and garden page Fridays. The material is the result of her own freelance studies into the subject, since no college courses are offered on the history of gardening and gardening practices.

Ghost sees red, haunts Denver house

DENVER (UPI) —Katinka Parker says the thing that goes bump in the night in her home is a ghost. Skeptical neighbors say it's bad plumbing.

"I can't explain away my personal feeling that there is something evil in this house," said Mrs. Parker. "I can feel it. I can sense it. I'm very skeptical by nature. I'm not the type of person who sits around and dreams up these sorts of things."

The ghost has pushed Mrs. Parker down the stairs twice, once because it was angered at the new red wallpaper in the master bedroom. Both times, Mrs. Parker wrenched her back.

The malevolent spirit, she said, mumbles to itself as it glides through the eight-room house built in 1908 and occasionally knocks on walls in the dead of night.

"One night, I was awakened by a man's voice calling from the foot of the stairs. The voice said 'Mother' or 'Brother.' I couldn't understand which it was. When I looked there was no one there."

Mrs. Parker, 52, blames the ghost for causing the couple that sold her and her husband the house to break up after 22 years of marriage. She says it also almost ended her marriage.

"I couldn't wait to move in after we bought the house," she said. "But as soon as we did I became very depressed. I began to hate the house and hate my husband. I told him I hated him. The spirit just didn't want anyone to be happy here."

Mrs. Parker said she and her husband saved their marriage by talking about the sense of evil in the house but she came to despise the home so much they moved away for two years. The couple returned in May after Mrs. Parker decided, "I was going to fight the ghost. It was my house."

The house, gabled and surrounded by a shaded veranda, was built on the site of an old farmhouse. The first owner of the house walked onto the front lawn in 1912 and put a bullet in his head in an unsuccessful attempt at suicide.

Mrs. Parker said she didn't know who the ghost might be but that it could have been someone "who lived in the old farmhouse. I've heard spirits often remain with the land. Maybe it was upset that the old farmhouse was torn down."

She said she fell down the front stairs twice because she lost her footing on the 12th step. Each time she had her hand on the wooden wall railing.

"The second time it happened was right after I did the master bedroom in red," she said. "The ghost doesn't like red."

Hostile to tax hike proposal

Congress sticks pins in Nixon trial balloon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's trial balloon for a temporary, and refundable, boost in income taxes has received so negative a reception in Congress it may never be heard of again.

Republicans and Democrats on the tax-writing committee of both the House and the Senate expressed skepticism and hostility to the concept of siphoning excess spending capacity out of the economy through temporarily higher taxes.

As outlined to reporters Thursday by Nixon domestic adviser Melvin R. Laird, income tax rates for individuals and corporations would be boosted by 10 per cent—for example, a $2,000 tax bill would become $2,200.

In three or four years, when the economy presumably could stand a stimulus, the money would be returned to taxpayers with interest, probably through a reduction in paycheck withholding.

Laird said Nixon is also considering asking Congress for authority to raise or lower the investment tax credit, now fixed at an inflexible 7 per cent.

The credit, permitting businesses to subtract from federal taxes owed 7 per cent of the cost of new equipment, is a spur to business expansion, even in times like these when the economy is beset with inflation.

Laird said Congress would not be asked to act until next year, raising doubts that the President would ever propose such legislation.

Economists say a tax increase next year would do nothing about this year's inflation. Some believe inflation has peaked and stagnation or recession is a greater worry.

From his hospital bed in Arkansas, where is recovering from back surgery, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee dictated a statement saying he was "unalterably opposed" to surrendering Congressional power to fix the investment tax credit rate.

Mills also said he imagined most taxpayers would view the refundable tax increase not as an inflation-fighting form of compulsory savings but as a tax increase, pure and simple.

His Senate counterpart, Finance Committee Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., expressed skepticism.

"I would not have any confidence that it would be returned to the taxpayers when the time came about," he said of the "refundable" tax.

"A refundable tax increase!" scoffed Rep. James C. Corman, D-Calif., a liberal. "Refundable when? Just before an election?"

Republican Harold R. Collier, Ill., another Ways and Means member, said he and most businessmen oppose "on-again, off-again, Finnegan" business taxes, which disrupt essential long-range corporate planning.

Arthur M. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve and a former Nixon counsellor, is father of both ideas.

He argued as recently as Tuesday before the House Banking Committee that too much of the burden of fighting inflation had been put on the Fed's monetary policy, leading to tight money and heavy interest rates, and not enough was borne by tax policy.

Burns' complaint may have spurred Nixon to placate his adviser by suggesting that he was at least considering Burns' tax ideas.

As recently as Monday, in his special State of the Union message, Nixon said, "This administration continues its strong opposition to a tax increase."

GAS PRICING PROTEST

Thousands of gasoline retailers from across the nation rally at the U.S. Capitol Thursday to protest the Nixon administration's pricing and energy policies. They are particularly angry over the recent Cost of Living Council rulings barring them from passing along price increases.

Shultz blasts Laird: 'keep your cotton-picking hands off'

TOKYO (UPI) —U.S. Treasury Secretary George Shultz lashed out today at White House adviser Melvin R. Laird, telling him to "keep his cotton-picking hands off economic policy."

Shultz, who also holds the title of economic adviser to the President, was particularly blunt in his remarks and visibly irritated.

The outburst came when Shultz was asked about reports from Washington of Laird outlining Nixon administration tax policy, including a possible rate increase.

"Laird always gives press conferences on these subjects when I'm away," Shultz said. "He did this to me when I was over in Paris. You had better ask him about it."

Shultz then declared, "I think the President's adviser on domestic affairs can keep his cotton-picking hands off economic policy."

In answer to another question, he said, "When I left (Washington) the policy was to hold down taxes, economize and balance the budget."

Last resistance dies out with gunfire in Santiago

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — The sporadic gun battles between the ruling military junta and snipers loyal to deposed President Salvador Allende died out today and the army removed tanks which had surrounded the presidential palace.

Gunfire could be heard throughout the city overnight as the army moved to crush the last remains of opposition to its coup on Tuesday in which Allende was thrown out of office and died.

The junta released a communique today denying that a column of pro-Allende soldiers and armed workers led by Gen. Carlos Pratts, former defense minister, was advancing on Santiago from the south.

Two of the country's largest political parties, the middle-of-the-road Christian Democrats and the right-wing National party-both of which acted in Congress to block many of Allende's efforts to reform the Chilean economy-Thursday declared their support for the junta.

In today's communique, the junta said the situation this morning was "more peaceful than the night before."

It said "foreign radio reports" that Allende was alive, but wounded, were "completely without foundation. He committed suicide in La Moneda Paace Sept. 11 and interrment was carried out privately the following day with members of his family present. We will soon make public documents to prove this."

Machine gun and rifle fire broke out at midnight with bullets smashing through windows of buildings near the battered La Moneda presidential palace where Allende reportedly killed himself Tuesday as army troops moved in to seize him.

The ruling military junta led by Gen. Augusto Pinochet, the army commander, refused to release details on casualties in the fighting, but unofficial reports told of up to several thousand dead since the armed forces overthrew the three-vear-old Marxist government.

The unofficial reports told of massive roundups of Allende supporters across the country with 3,000 held aboard ships in Valparaiso harbor.

Capitol protest

Gasoline dealers pump anger

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Service station operators, angered over Phase IV gasoline pricing restrictions, brought their frustration to the steps of the Capitol Thursday, and got a receptive ear from House Speaker Carl Albert.

One after another at the hour-long rally, they denounced the government refusal to allow the dealers to pass along to the consumer wholesale price hikes imposed by major oil companies.

Capitol police estimated the crowd at upwards of 2,500.

"We're not going to be pawns in their economic chess games," shouted Charles Binsted, president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers.

Albert told the group it was "completely unfair" that they were being caught in the cost-price squeeze.

"Bring your petition to Congress," he said. "We will listen."

Some of the dealers, many of them wearing their colorful work uniforms, came from states as far away as Oregon, Washington, and Louisiana.

Unlike the anti-war rallies that dominated Capitol rallies in the past several years, there were reminders of patriotism, and an American flag in front of the podium.

But the dealers' spokesmen said they felt they were being short-changed by the Cost of Living Council.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., who along with Sen. Birch Bayn, D-Ind., and Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., are pushing legislation to lift the restrictions, said the Council allows "one rule for the 'fat cats' and another rule for the little guy."

"It's high time we have this kind of mass protest against government policy dictated by the oil barons of this country," Conte said.

Kennedy urges impeachment if Nixon balks

WASHINGTON (UPI) —In his strongest statement yet on the Watergate scandal, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said Thursday Congress will have no choice but to impeach President Nixon if he defies a Supreme Court order to release his Oval Office tape recordings.

Kennedy, a possible contender for the presidency in 1976, said failure to impeach the President under such circumstances would result in "a bloodless coup" for Nixon. "It would be Chile, really, without the bloodshed," he said in a Senate speech attended by fewer than a dozen colleagues.

But after the speech, Kennedy said he does not expect Nixon to defy the Supreme Court, which may ultimately decide the question of separation of powers—whether Nixon must obey a lower court order to turn over tapes of Watergate-related conversations to a U.S. District Court judge, who would then decide if they could be given to the special prosecutor or to the Senate Watergate Committee, or both.

All Nixon has said so far is that he would abide by any "definitive" high court ruling, refusing to define "definitive."

Kennedy said: "If President Nixon defied a Supreme Court order to turn over the tapes, a responsible Congress would be left with no recourse but to exercise its power of impeachment."

Allende widow not allowed to see him

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) —The widow of former Chilean President Salvador Allende said in an interview published here today that she was not allowed to see her husband when he was buried.

Mrs. Hortensia Bussi de Allende, in an interview published by the newspaper Cronica, said:

"I asked to see him, to touch him, but they would not let me".

The interview was given to Manuel Mejido, a correspondent for the Mexico City newspaper Excelsior, inside an automobile in Santiago Thursday.

Mrs. Allende is currently in the Mexican embassy in Santiago and, according to reports from Mexico City, had planned to fly to Mexico City today.

But she told the Mexican correspondent: "I appreciate the exile that Mexico has offered but I will not leave Chile."

Mejido wrote Mrs. Allende's voice broke as she said:

"Let the world know the truth of what has happened. President Allende was betrayed and overthrown by a facist coup and he was buried in the most complete secrecy.

Mrs. Allende, the interview said, saw her husband for the last time at a dinner Monday night.

"At 7:40 a.m. Tuesday (the day the coup broke out) I received a call that awoke me. It was Salvador who said, 'I'm speaking to you from La Moneda (Presidential Palace)'."

Mrs. Allende said her husband told her: "The situation has become grave. The navy has revolted. I'm going to stay here. You stay in Tomas Moro (the pesidential residence)."

"He practically prohibited me from leaving the residence," Mrs. Allende said in the interview.

Mrs. Allende said she had listened to her husband for the last time during his final radio speech which was cut off shortly after the coup began.

Mrs. Allende said bombardment of the presidential residence began around 11:30 a.m. after a helicopter flew over the house.

"The airplanes arrived and shot their rockets, then they would return to their bases to reload. After every attack there was a shootout that was madness.

"The residence became a mass of smoke, of the smell of powder, of destruction", Mrs. Allende said.

She said that during a lull in the attack, she had her driver take her out of the residence grounds through a driveway in the back.

Mitchell also seeking tapes for trial; Nixon says fight it

NEW YORK (UPI) —Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell tried to subpoena secret presidential tape recordings Thursday to use in his forthcoming perjury-conspiracy trial. The White House promptly asked government attorneys to fight the subpoena.

Mitchell's defense attorney, Peter Fleming Jr., asked for any tapes of conversations that might have occurred regarding his client's case between Nov. 1 and Jan. 31. The request was unlike other requests, which have cited particular single dates.

Thomas J. Edwards, chief of the U.S. attorney's criminal division in New York, called the subpoena a "broad ranging blunderbuss fishing expedition" and filed a countermotion to have it thrown out.

Assistant U.S. Attorney John R. Wing said his office was asked by the White House to fight the subpoena and try to get it rejected. The trial judge, Lee Gagliardi, did not render an immediate decision.

Mitchell and codefendant Maurice Stans, former secretary of commerce, are charged with perjury and conspiring to obstruct justice last year when they were both top officials in President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Bikini top sale fine is suspended

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) —Wendy Berlowitz, 25, who tried to auction off her bikini top near the University of New Mexico campus, was fined $50 Thursday for conducting a sale in a public park without a license.

Magistrate Judge Jarry Robins fined both Wendy and her song-writing husband $50, but suspended the fine and wished them well on their trip to Hollywood.

Spanish treasure on missile range?

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Attorney F. Lee Bailey has asked the governor of New Mexico to help him gain access to the White Sands Missile Range to look for an old Spanish treasure his clients believe is there.

A spokesman for Gov. Bruce King said Thursday "the governor said he would do what he could." Bailey represents about 50 clients claiming ownership of the alleged cache, which they say contains 100 tons of gold.

King's press secretary Pete Pence said the governor is "rather doubtful" that a treasure does exist on the range, but said that "as far as he's concerned, it might be worth a check." Military officials have resisted any attempts by civilians to go onto the land to search for the treasure.

He doesn't laugh at UFO stories

STATESBORO, Ga. (UPI) — Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter said Thursday he and a group of friends were coming out of a dinner meeting one night several years ago, when they saw a big, shining light in the shape of a flying saucer hovering overhead.

"I don't laugh at people anymore when they say they've seen UFO's," he said, "because I've seen one myself." Carter said all the men in his group were in agreement that they had seen the object, which he said moved away several hundred yards and then came back several times as they stood watching it.

There have been a rash of UFO reports across the South in recent weeks. The most recent two came from Chattanooga, Tenn., where two Hamilton County policemen and a security officer for a motel said they watched a UFO early Thursday.

Scott hits Ervin as TV fund raiser

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott says Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., is trying to "exploit" his national exposure as chairman of the Watergate committee by appearing on an upcoming Democratic fund-raising telethon.

"I would deplore very much the reported plan to have Ervin appear as a Democratic fund raiser," Scott, of Pennsylvania, told reporters, Thursday.

Ervin is one of many Democrats who will appear Sunday on a nationally televised telethon to raise more than $3 million to pay off the party's remaining debt. Scott said Ervin was attempting to "exploit his new found exposure. I hope Sen. Ervin will reconsider."

Doctor who killed wife up for parole

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) —Carl Coppolino, a medical doctor serving a life term for administering a fatal dose of drugs to his wife, still is a "depraved" murderer and should not be paroled until he has served about 25 years, Florida Attorney General Robert L. Shevin said Thursday.

Coppolino, 42, described as a model prisoner during his 6-½ years at the DeSoto State Prison at Arcadia, is up for annual parole consideration.

He was convicted in 1967 of killing his wife, Carmela, in 1965 in Sarasota, although he denied administering a lethal dose of succynal choline chloride to her.

GI critic of Nixon to get treatment

DENVER (UPI) —Air Force M.Sgt. Grant A. Schulke, who wants President Nixon courtmartialed because of Watergate, can be transferred to a Texas military base for psychiatric care, a federal judge ruled Thursday.

U.S. District Judge Sherman G. Finesilver denied Schulke's request to prevent the military from sending him to Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, Tex.

Finesilver said he was making the ruling to insure the 23-year veteran of "immediate, consistent and adequate" psychiatric treatment. Schulke was ordered to undergo psychiatric tests at the Fitzsimons Army Medical Center near Denver last month after he suggested the court-martial of Nixon.

Jail, probation for wife who killed husband

POMONA — A Rowland Heights woman has been granted probation in the December 1971 slaying of her husband but will serve six months in jail.

Mrs. Rita Cortez, 31, was placed on probation for five years by Pomona Superior Court Judge Glenn M. Pfau when she appeared for sentencing on a plea of guilty of voluntary manslaughter. She originally was charged with murder

Pfau ordered that Mrs. Cortez spend six months in the county jail as a condition of probation.

Mrs. Cortez of 18949 Cardona St., stabbed Dennis Cortez, 30, to death with a five-inch kitchen knife during a quarrel at 4 a.m. after the Cortezes had returned home from a party. Mrs. Cortez said she stabbed her husband to protect their children and claimed Cortez was heading for the children's bedroom with the intention of harming them. The children were 3, 4 and 8 at that time.

Prison episode

3 in slaying receive life

ONTARIO Three California Institution for Men inmates convicted of killing a fellow inmate and seriously wounding another Dec. 17, 1972 at the Southern Reception-Guidance Center have been sentenced to life imprisonment, consecutive to the life terms they are already serving.

The trio, Frank Phillip Mendoza, 25; Juan Figueroa Colon, 23; and Raymond L. Contreras, 34; in August were found guilty by a jury of second degree murder in the death of inmate Rudolph Cadena, 29, and guilty of assault with intent to do great bodily harm on inmate Gilbert R. Sandoval following a three-week trial in West Valley Superior Court Thursday, after reviewing probation reports Judge James Cunningham passed sentence on the inmates.

Judge Cunningham ordered the three to be imprisoned for life terms on the second count of assault with intent to do great bodily harm upon a prisoner by another life prisoner that will run consecutive to their other life prison terms. The three inmates convicted of the assault and murder all were serving life terms for conviction of crimes ranging from robbery and escape to marijuana for sale when Cadena was stabbed to death and Sandoval wounded.

Judge Cunningham stayed sentencing of the three inmates on second degree murder convictions pending the outcome of appeals. The sentencing for the inmates on the assault charge means that they will not be eligible for a parole hearing for at least nine years.

Prison officials believe that the trio are members of the New Family, an underground prison group battling for control of prison rackets with another group called the Mexican Mafia. Cadena was though to be a leader of the Mexican Mafia.

Youth booked in kidnap, rape attempt on 2

MONTCLAIR — A 17-year-old youth was in custody of juvenile authorities this morning after he allegedly kidnaped two Montclair girls from the Mayfair Market at Central Avenue and Benito Street and forced them to drive to Fontana where he attempted to rape them.

Montclair Detective Bill Goff said the incident occurred about 1 a.m. as the two girls, one 16 and the other 17, were walking to their car in the Mayfair Market parking lot. The girls told police that the youth asked them for a ride to the K-Mart store several blocks away and they refused After a moment of hesitation the youth then asked the girls to take him to the corner of San Bernardino Street and Central Avenue.

The girls let him in the back seat of their car and began driving out of the parking lot. The youth then pulled a knife on the girl passenger and ordered the driver to drive into Fontana, said Goff. En route to Fontana, Goff said the youth ordered the girl passenger into the back seat of the car and forced her to disrobe. When the girls and their abductor reached a remote area of Fontana the youth told them to stop.

Goff said at that point the youth apparently became confused and then ordered them to drive him back to Upland where the girls let him off at Seventh Street and Benson. The girls reported the kidnaping and attempted rape to Upland police about 2:01 a.m. Montclair police later arrested the youth in the area where he left the car.

New summer session receives high grades from O-M school parents

ONTARIO — Based on the assessments of parents, students, teachers and administrators, the Ontario-Montclair School District's new approach to summer school appears to have met with success.

That is the conclusion contained in a report presented by Bill Smead, the district's Northwest Area director, to the school board Thursday afternoon.

Smead said that he had received "very few negative comments" about the program, and he recommended that the district follow the same format next year.

In a survey to which 212 out of approximately 700 parents responded, 95 per cent indicated that their youngsters would be back in summer school again next year, Smead said.

A similar percentage also indicated the summer session had accomplished its reading and math objectives, and that the four-hour-a-day schedule was "just right, he said.

The report also noted a significant rise in attendance compared to the previous year. The largest attendance for one day during the past summer was 5,580, whereas the highest for one day in 1972 was 3,196.

This year's summer schedule was divided into two sessions. The first session ran from June 25-July 27, while the post session went from July 30-Aug. 24. In both sessions, Smead said, student participation increased based upon first day to last day attendance figures.

The combined highest attendance for both session was 6,351, which is almost twice that of the previous year.

Smead also said there was a surplus of funds remaining after teacher salaries and other expenses had been paid. The money, he said, would be given back to the school. The exact of amount of the surplus funds was unavaliable because the budgets of the various schools participating in the program had not been audited.

In its summer session, the district had attempted to develop a program which would have wide appeal to the largest number of students, offer a wide range of learning experiences, be fiscally sound, and utilize decentralized decision making processes.

Instruction was offered at every neighborhood school, and special offerings such as a school for mentally gifted minors, a fine arts school, swimming and golf instruction, and use of industrial arts and home economics facilities were also available.

Administratively, the district was divided into five areas, with an administrator responsible for developing and implementing the instructional program in each school.

In business action Thursday, the board:

— Authorized that Richard Burkhart be assigned the duties of a "helping teacher" at Vina Danks Junior High School in addition to his other duties. The action allows Burkhart to be released from two periods of teaching to assist in organizing various student programs and office routines that normally would have been performed by an assistant principal. (The school does not have an assistant principal this year due to a limited enrollment.) The position provides Burkhart with an annual stipend of $300 in addition to his regular salary.

— Authorized district administrators to enter into inter-district attendance agreements with 20 school districts, including Pomona, Chino, Claremont, Bonita and Upland, for the education of regular students for the school years 1973-74 through 1977-78. In the past, the district in which a student attended school would receive average-daily-attendance money from the state. However, with the passage of Senate Bill 90, the district in which the student lives will now get the money. The district which educates the student will be reimbursed by the district of residence based upon an agreed based revenue limit.

Adapter to enable group to use new telephones

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hard-of-hearing telephone users will have an adapter by 1974 that will allow them to use a new type of phone receiver, according to American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

In a statement, the company said the unit, to be sold at cost, "will work with any of the present Bell System phones or those of the future. It will also work with independent telephone company and foreign phones."

The question came up recently before the Senate Aging Committee, which is conducting an inquiry into hearing aids for the elderly.

Mrs. Virginia Knauer, White House Assistant for Consumer Affairs, told the committee that conversion to a new type of telephone receiver would be incompatible with hearing aids which require magnetic leakage from the receiver to produce a good signal. The new receiver, first used in the "Trimline" phones, lack such energy, she said.

"As a result, upwards of one million hearing aid users stand to be deprived of the use of the telephone upon conversion to the new type," Mrs. Knauer said.

A spokesman for the Office of Consumer Affairs said it would take a wait-and-see attitude toward the new devices.

Cop on house call wards off knife attack

ONTARIO — An Ontario man was booked in West End Jail this morning after he allegedly threatened to burn his house down at 1715 Plaza Serena and attacked a police officer with a butcher knife Thursday night.

Victor Maletic, 55, was booked in the jail for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer after being subdued by Officer F. Cypher about 5:15 p.m.

Cypher said that he went to the address to investigate a report that a man was attempting to burn a house down. Cypher said Maletic had been arguing with his wife earlier in the evening. During the argument the suspect went outside and got into his car parked in the driveway of the home and rammed it into the rearend of another vehicle parked inside the garage.

Cypher reported that Maletic then went back into the home and began throwing furniture around and threatened to burn the house down. Cypher was allowed in the home by Mrs. Katherine Maletic. Cypher said he was confronted by the suspect holding a butcher knife. Cypher said he drew his baton and pistol, ordering Maletic to drop the knife. Instead Maletic lunged at the officer with the knife. Cypher said he used his baton to hit Maletic's wrist making him drop the knife, and then knocked him to the floor where he finally subdued him.

Fuel-started fire damages living room

POMONA — Mrs. Dana Johnson lit a fire in the fireplace early this morning to take the chill out of the house and warmed things up much more than she expected.

Firemen called to the scene report that Mrs. Johnson, 567 Randolph St., put wood in the fireplace and poured liquid fuel on it to ignite it. She placed the can of liquid fuel on the carpet near a sofa and struck a match.

A flash fire erupted in the fireplace and spread to the can of liquid fuel, igniting the sofa, the wall and a nearby window.

The damage to the living room, the furniture and the exterior of the house is estimated at $1,300. No one in the house was injured. The occupants fled the house when the fire started, and neighbors called the fire department.

Firemen rescued the family dog from the inside of the house when they arrived.

Fire Marshall Tom Clark warns residents that they should be cautious about starting up furnaces and fireplaces that have not been in use for long periods of time.

He said furnaces should be cleaned out and filters changed before use. He said fireplace chimneys should be cleaned out also.

Clark said a flammable liquid should never be used as a method to ignite fires in a fireplace.

He said his department is ready to assist citizens on fire prevention methods and information may be obtained by calling his office at 620-2215.

$106.93?
The Facts about Gas Economy!

How much comfort and safety are you willing to give up for $106.93? Here's the real story on gas economy using two hypothetical cars on regular fuel.

AN EXAMPLE FOR 10,000 MILES—GAS AT 40.2¢ PER GALLON*
A Standard — B Sub Compact	Car "A"	Car "B"
Miles per gal.	15 m.p.g.	25 m.p.g.
Cost per 10,000 mi.	$267.73	$160.60
DIFFERENCE IN GAS PER 10,000 MI.—$106.93

And it could be even less if you drive conservatively.

Of course, a little car can give you better mileage. It can also be very crowded. And what's the price of safety?

Consider the security of more car with more steel, solid protection for you and your family.

Consider Chrysler. It's built to last... today and tomorrow. Chrysler offers solid engineering excellence. For example, you get unibody construction, torsion bar suspension, extra-protection bumper system, fuel-tank impact protection, energy absorbing steering column and more.

Right now, the full-sized Plymouth Fury does offer special savings. The exclusive electronic ignition system is designed to reduce maintenance costs. And despite Fury's solid Chrysler engineering, big room and comfort... it runs on regular fuel. Best of all, now's the time to buy during Clean Up time.

Peace pact ends 10 years of war in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Government and pro-Communist Pathet Lao negotiators, shaking hands and clicking champagne glasses, signed a peace pact today to end more than 10 years of war in the Kingdom of Laos.

Diplomats from the United States, China, North Vietnam and South Vietnam witnessed the brief, five-minute ceremony at the home of Prince Souvanna Phouma, the 72-year-old Laotian prime minister.

"With your support this agreement has been signed," Souvanna said to the diplomats. "I hope all friendly governments will support us after this war."

Ngone Sananikone, the government's chief negotiator, and Gen. Phoun Sipaseuth, the top Pathet Lao representative, signed the accord at precisely 9:40 a.m. on the advice of Souvanna's personal astrologer

The peace pact, penned under an oil portrait of 66-year-old King Savang Vatthana, provides for the third attempt at a Laotian coalition government in 20 years.

Previous coalitions formed in 1954 and 1962 broke down when leftists and rightists failed to work together in this mountain kingdom of 2.5 million.

The Pathet Lao and Souvanna's supporters will get charge of five ministries apiece in the new government with two posts going to "non-political" figures.

Prince Souphanouvong, head of the Pathet Lao and Souvanna's half-brother, missed the ceremony, remaining at Sam Neua, leftist headquarters 30 miles from the North Vietnamese border.

"There will be difficulties ahead," Souvanna predicted. "I hope my compatriots will accept this protocol which will lead to the end of the war and the beginning of national development and reconstruction."

Souvanna, who mediated the agreement, told newsmen he hoped the new coalition would be formed before Oct. 10.

Nations adopt 'declaration' launching trade rules talks

TOKYO (UPI) — Delegates from 82 countries adopted a landmark "Tokyo Declaration" today launching a new round of negotiations to rewrite the rules of international trade.

U.S. Treasury Secretary George Shultz played a major role in the talks and predicted a separate draft agreement on world monetary reform may be ready by 1974.

More than 600 high financial officials attended the Tokyo talks on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which sets the framework for foreign trade among non-Communist countries.

The officials of GATT countries approved the "Tokyo Declaration," which provides for the trade talks, expected to last two years, and lays down ground rules for them

"The negotiations shall aim to achieve the expansion and ever greater liberalization of world trade and improvement in the standard of living and welfare of the people of the world," the declaration read.

The actual working-level talks, which probably will be known as the "Nixon Round," are scheduled to open the last week in October at the GATT headquarters in Geneva. GATT's last previous round of trade negotiations from 1964-69 was known as the "Kennedy Round" in honor of the late American president.

At a news conference before leaving for Washington, Shultz said that draft language for an agreement on a reformed world currency system may be ready by the time of the 1974 meeting of the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

"No one can say it will turn out that way, but there is a lot of sentiment that it might, Shultz said.

The Tokyo Declaration adopted today divides the developing countries of the world into two groups depending upon their state of economic progress. One group, mostly African countries, will be called "least developed countries." They will be treated on a different basis from nations like Brazil and Mexico which are further along the path toward economic modernization.

Demos seek 2 votes in final hours to hike welfare aid

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Facing a midnight adjournment of the 1973 legislative session, Democrcats searched for two more Republican votes in the Senate today to pass a bill boosting welfare payments for 500,000 aged, blind and disabled.

It was the last major issue Democratic legislative leaders hoped to resolve before adjourning until Jan. 1.

The bill (AB18) by Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, would increase monthly welfare payments from an average of $212 to $235 for 486,000 elderly and disabled and to $255 for 14,000 blind.

The Senate sponsor, Democratic leader George Moscone of San Francisco, said he probably would take up the measure in his house this afternoon. Moscone said he had 25 "firm, hard" votes. He needed 27.

The measure, the product of a two-house conference committee, was rejected Tuesday by the Senate, but granted reconsideration. The Assembly approved it Wednesday.

Gov. Ronald Reagan opposes the bill and has vowed to veto it if passed. The governor intends to implement his own program, without legislative authorization, increasing monthly payments to $221.

Unless the state takes some action, the payments will drop to $130 on Jan. 1 when the federal government takes over administration of welfare programs for the aged, blind and disabled.

Moscone and Burton hoped to build enough public pressure on Republican opponents to obtain their votes before the midnight adjournment.

Meantime, state Health and Welfare Secretary Earl Brian issued a statement Thursday contending two provisions of the bill were not in conformity with federal law. He said this could cost California up to $200 million in federal aid.

Brian said federal regulations limit the value of a welfare recipient's home to $25,000 and allow him only $1,500 in personal property. Brian said the Democratic-backed bill placed no limit on either a home's value or personal property.

Two quakes registered in Southland

EL CENTRO, Calif. (UPI) — A pair of earthquakes, one rather hefty and the other light, were registered in several Southern California counties Thursday.

The first, larger quake occurred at 10:31 a.m. PDT and the epicenter was approximately 50 miles east of San Diego. It registered at 5.0 on the Richter scale but did not cause serious damage.

It was followed at 2:06 p.m. by a light temblor at Sylmar, north of Los Angeles, with a magnitude of 1.8. No damage was reported. A spokesman at the California Institute of Technology Seismological Laboratory at Pasadena said it was an aftershock of the destructive Feb. 9, 1971, San Fernando quake.

One of those who felt the first quake Thursday was James Shaw, a farmer in the Imperial Valley about 50 miles from the epicenter. He said he heard a rumble and then several pictures fell from the wall. He looked outside and saw the ground rolling.

Nixon thinks income taxes personal affair

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, like most Americans, believes his income taxes are nobody else's business.

Responding to a report earlier this week that Nixon may have paid no taxes in 1970 and 1971, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Thursday: "The President and I have had some rather detailed discussions on this matter. The President made it quite clear to me this is a matter that should not be made public."

The Baltimore Sun said that because of interest on loans Nixon took to finance his homes in California and Florida and a write-off for contributing his private papers to the National Archives, he may have been entitled to pay no taxes on his $200,000 annual salary in those years.

Other White House sources say privately that Nixon did pay income taxes, but they did not say how much.

Reserve, police to spread word on theft prevention

MONTCLAIR — Members of the U.S. Army Reserve and the Montclair Police Department will be visiting a number of residents Saturday to explain the most effective means of home burglary prevention through the city's Operation PAL (Prevention Against Loss) Program.

Montclair Police Detective Dick Drake said that 10 men from the Army Reserve will be aiding the police officers in the door-to-door program in an effort to make residents aware of the different burglar alarms, locking devices and techniques used to prevent burglaries. The Army is lending the reserve officers to the city's police department in a new public relations program to aid in worthwhile community projects.

The reservists will have letters of authorization from the police department explaining their purpose in explaining opertation PAL. Working with the reservists will be Detectives Drake, Terry Belland and Russ Smith.

Drake said the program will give residents an opportunity to ask police officers and the reservists about the newest burglary prevention equipment and techniques available.

Picketing ban at Capitol is repealed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Wednesday night voted final legislative approval to a measure repealing a law which has sent a "sweet, little old man" to jail at least 248 times.

He is 93-year-old Robert H. Simpson, dean of Capitol protesters.

On a 23-14 vote, the Senate sent to Gov. Ronald Reagan the bill (AB964) by Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, ending a 1969 law banning picketing in the Capitol.

Since then, Simpson has paraded through the historic, golden-domed structure —which is only 11 years older than he is —with signs complaining about the law and censuring officials from Reagan on down.

The anti-picketing law also resulted this year in a group of preschool children being warned to put away their signs pleading for state assistance for their program.

Sen. Donald L. Grunsky, R-Watsonville, said the law is "impossible and embarrasing to enforce."

He pointed out that although Simpson is arrested he rarely is prosecuted.

Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, DLos Angeles, also urged support of the measure, describing the venerable picketer as a "sweet, little old man."

Opposing the proposal was Sen. George Deukmejian, RLong Beach, who said the law was needed to help protect lawmakers from protesters flooding into the Capitol with their signs.

"Since this law was passed," Deukmejian declared, "we have not had this kind of activity."

Grunsky countered that there were other laws to prevent disruptions.

"If we're going to be threatened, it's not going to be by some little kids or Mr. Simpson," Grunsky stated.

Early this week, Simpson's count of his own arrests stood at 248.

Lead poison charged to Vernon plant

VERNON (UPI) — Union leaders have charged that workers at a lead smelting plant here are being poisoned by lead fumes and that government efforts to improve the situation have failed.

Jeff Cooper of the Steelworkers Local 2018 said Wednesday that medical tests on workers at the NL Industries Inc. plant confirm that more than 100 "are in various stages of lead poisoning." Cooper said lead emissions at the plant were 17 times the legal limit.

The Environmental Protection Center, a group backed by the steelworkers union, said the plant has furnished respirators to workers in certain sections of the plant but that "their use is not properly supervised and it is questionable whether the workers are protected."

Officials for the Department of Labor confirmed that the firm has been cited for failing to control lead pollutants.

"And the case is not closed, which means the conditions have not been abated" said Gilbert Garcia, the Department's regional safety director.

NL, a conglomerate which does a $1 billion business annually in scrap metal, declined comment on the charges.

Attorneys for the union have filed 32 demands for workmen's compensation based on alleged lead poisoning, and the firm is also being hounded by the Air Pollution Control District. APCD director of enforcement Ralph George said NL has been cited 18 times for illegally emitting smoke and dust into the air.

Cinches five, seven's there

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Some people like to barge ahead recklessly without paying any attention to warning signals. Sometimes they go a long way; on other occasions they wind up in the hospital.

South ruffed the heart lead in dummy and remarked, "We may have missed a grand slam. Still I suppose I had better try to make five."

Opening lead—♥K

He ruffed the heart in dummy while making his speech. Then he led dummy's 10 of spades. East played low and South let West score his singleton queen.

West did the best he could by cashing his ace of diamonds, but that was the last trick for the defense.

Of course, South could have made seven if he had wanted to play for it and know the trump situation. After winning the first spade he could have returned to dummy with a low club; finessed against East's jack of trumps and splashed down.

How should he have played the hand if he had been in six? Just that way. It was both the best percentage and the play that would work.

Fire-damaged records to be restored

ST. LOUIS, Mo (UPI) — Millions of military records damaged by fire and water in a blaze at the U.S. military personnel records center are being restored through space-age techniques by McDonnell Douglas Corp.

The soggy records of former servicemen are being put through a freeze drying technique in one of the company's space simulation chambers. The chamber was built to simulate the temperatures and pressures encountered in manned-space missions.

The records were among those of 56 million servicemen kept in the two-square-block building in suburban Overland. Many of the records were damaged when fire swept the sixth floor of the building July 12. The fire smoldered for four days.

The General Services Administration, which manages the record center, thought some of the records were unsalvageable because they were charred, soggy and a green and black mold had formed on the exposed surfaces.

However, the records come through the process legible and ready to go back into use in helping veterans establish their eligibility for various government programs. The process has been used to restore water-soaked rare books.

18-month-old stricken with encephalitis

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) —An 18-month old Hammonton, N.J., child has contracted Eastern Encephalitis—a severe illness transmitted from animals to humans by infected mosquitoes, the state Department of Health reported.

The department said the unidentified child contracted the disease Aug. 22, and has been hospitalized.

Five cases of horses infected with the disease have been identified in New Jersey, the department said, but the chance of individuals contracting the disease is "infinitesimally small."

She changed; will new boy accept her?

By JEAN ADAMS

PAST: (Q.) I am very developed for 14. I've gone out with a lot of boys and have gone all the way with most of them. Some people know about me and I do not have a good reputation.

I have changed, though. I have met a boy who is also 14 and whom I really like. I want him to like me as a nice girl but he doesn't because he knows about me.

How can I tell him I have changed? —Not Now in Connecticut.

(A) It is good that you have changed because the path you were on is very dangerous for any teen-age girl.

Be very frank with your new friend about your past and your future. Tell him you have made many mistakes but have changed and want to stay changed. Ask him to help you.

He may not be willing or able to accept you and all the facts about you. But if you still stay on the new road you have taken you will eventually find a good boy or boys who will like you and respect you. It may not be easy, but it will be worth it.

MATURITY: (Q.) My parents say I can't do anything for myself. They say I have to be led around by the hand. They say I am immature. I am 14 and I know that some of my friends who are 13 and 14 act older than I do. Why don't I act more maturely? —Trying To Grow Up in Indiana.

(A.) Ask your parents to compliment you when you show signs of maturity rather than criticizing you when you show signs of immaturity. This is being positive. It is the right way to be.

Also ask them to show you how they want the jobs done and then check to see that you do them properly.

As you learn to assume responsibility, you move ahead toward maturity. At 14 you are ready to start taking on responsibilities.

'Lost tribe' learning to use tool, trap

MANILA (UPI) —The man in charge of the Philippines' national minorities said today the stone age Tasaday "lost tribe" has learned to use bladed instruments and to trap animals but remains a peaceful people ignorant of war.

Manuel Elizalde Jr., a millionaire-philanthropist and cabinet member who is secretary of Philippine National Minorities, spoke of the latest situation about the loincloth-wearing cave dwellers at a fund raising campaign.

"In the past year, the Tasadays have learned the use of bladed instruments and have been taught how to hunt and trap. But to me, we really don't have to teach them anything. Up to now, they don't even know that men are capable of killing other men and they don't even have a word in their alphabet for fighting," Elizalde said.

He said the Tasadays, who were discovered in limestone caves in a rain forest of South Corabato about 500 miles south of Manila in June, 1971, now total 28 with the birth of a boy last July.

A private foundation is assisting Elizalde in his work to preseve the welfare program for the Tasaday and other tribal minorities. One of the members of the foundation is famed aviator Charles Lindbergh, who discovered the Tasadays with Elizalde.

Elizalde reviewed the tribe's situation since April 1972 when President Ferdinand E. Marcos declared 48,117 acres of public forest as a preserve for the cavemen and the Manobo-blit tribe.

It was a Manobo tribesman, identified as Dafal, who led the Elizalde-Lindbergh expedition to the Tasadays two years ago and introduced bladed weapons to them.

Nice Jewish boy is Arab in Newsweek

NEW YORK (UPI) —How did a nice Jewish boy end up as an Arab in full desert regalia on the cover of Newsweek Magazine?

Well, it was like this. Steve Kaye, a 33-year-old full bearded and mustachioed talent agent with a Madison Avenue ad agency had a call for an Arab model. He couldn't find one.

So Kaye got out the Kaffiyeh (headdress) he brought back as a souvenier from Israel, rented some robes from a photo agency and found an agreeable gas station owner in Queens Borough.

And there he is on the cover —features forbidding, arms folded as he stands next to a gas pump, nozzle at the ready, symbolizing Newsweek's cover story "The Arab Oil Squeeze."

Kaye said he hasn't had any complaints from his family so far.

"I have a family in Israel. My brother is in Kibbutz Yizrael, near Jerusalem, and I sent him a copy of the "He's probably jumping up and down at the moment, taking it as a big joke.

"When I told my mother I'm on the cover of Newsweek she ran out the door to the newsstand. She's floating now and considers it a great hoax. I've got a grandmother who might be offended. She's a Zionist, so nobody's told her."

Kaye said he had received a lot of calls —"Jack Parr wants me on his show and a lady in Connecticut phoned and proposed. She said "I saw your picture, I want to marry you'

"I hope I'm not typecast," he added, "so I can go on to bigger and better things—maybe Moshe Dayan."

Newsweek Executive Editor Kenneth Auchincloss said he "was not aware" that a genuine Arab hadn't been used on the cover.

"In retrospect it doesn't bother me," he said. "We picked the model we liked best, without questioning as to race, religion or national origin."

New election assured on gas taxes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California voters will get another chance next year to decide whether gasoline tax revenue should be diverted from highway projects to development of rapid transit systems.

The Senate has voted final legislative approval to the proposed constitutional amendment (SCA15), thus placing it on the June 1974 ballot.

In 1970 voters rejected a similar ballot measure.

Final passage of the new ballot proposal by Senate President Pro Tem James R. Mills, D-San Diego, came when the Senate accepted Assembly amendments on a 32-7 vote.

The proposal would divert about $50 million year in gas tax funds for use for rapid transit. The state Constitution now requires such revenue to be used exclusively for highway-oriented projects.

Mills said the measure contains safeguards against loss of highway construction revenue in rural counties which were not included in the 1970 proposal.

Sen. James E. Whetmore, R-Garden Grove, argued against the proposal, saying "people who want rapid transit should go directly to the people for their money" through local property or sales taxes

The Reagan administration supports the proposal. Opposing it are the state Chamber of Commerce and the Automobile Association of America.

Students burn buses protesting services

NEW DELHI (UPI) —Police said Delhi University students protesting irregular bus service hijacked eight of the vehicles recently and set three of them on fire.

Police said the rampaging students also set fire to a police radio control van.

We really auto know better

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Wheezing and belching my way down Towne Avenue recently (in my car), adroitly avoiding teen-age lovers, drunks, and highway patrol check points, I fell to musing on the automobile as we know it.

It is one of the wonders of the mechanical age that I, who cannot change the ribbon on a typewriter or shave without cutting myself (with an electric razor), can maneuver a 2,000-pound chunk of precision steel to work and home again with hardly more than a grazed fender.

Many years ago some unsung genius — Mr. Ford or Mr. Buick or Chief Pontiac or Monsieur Chevrolet — invented an infernal combustion engine that, properly harnessed to a chassis and four radial-belt glass-and-steel tires, shoves our cars along highway and byway with speed, if not safety. The piston engine has caused more deaths than the atom bomb. This is called progress.

Once having unleashed this automotive monster on the world, the powers-that-be in Detroit have run a strong but losing race to catch up to their four-wheeled golem with safety devices.

Brakes were a natural first, fortunately, but brake lights did not come along until much later. Can you imagine driving on the freeway during the rush hour with none of the cars equipped with brake lights? Then came taillights — a useful addition.

Early cars didn't have even windshield wipers, much less defrosters and tape cassettes. How primitive! The mature types among you will remember when turn-indicators were non-existent.

The horn, of course, was an early adjunct to cars, usually a rubber bulb that lets out a blast like solo trumpet in the symphony, frighting farmers' horses into the fields. Later the horn was centered on the steering wheel so you could let go a blast like Gabriel's horn when the guy ahead of you was day-dreaming at the green light.

Seat belts — clear admission that you were risking your life when you climbed into a car — came along after my time, but my kids couldn't pass driver's training in high school without strapping themselves in like astronauts re-entering the earth's atmosphere.

I'm all for these safety devices, mind, but it does strike me as something of an anomaly that this modern miracle of transportation, designed for man's convenience and comfort, should need such a battery of lights, horns, and harnesses to keep him alive and well and living in Southern California.

It's called progress . . . I suppose.

For Saturday, September 15

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Budget wisly today. If you don't you will be spending for things you have little need of.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You are susceptible to flattery today. One who knows how to use this skillfully will get you to make concessions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's best you keep certain confidential information to yourself. A nosy friend shouldn't be told at this time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You will find yourself in the middle today when friends take definite positions on an issue they deem important.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be asked by another to assume some of her responsibilities. You'll accept reluctantly. Your heart isn't in it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It will not be easy to get your ideas across to others today. If you have important points to make, be explicit and patient.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep accurate records and receipts of transactions for anyone else that involves their money or property.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not a good day to enter into agreements or assume new obligations. You'll make a better deal later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Some of the tasks you've left undone will be begging for completion today. Pace yourself. Don't overdo.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have any qualms about going to a social function, it's best you stay home. It won't be any fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're likely to start several projects around home without completing any. You'll inconvenience yourself and others.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be wary of anything you put in writing today. Also guard your conversation, for it will be difficult to retract.

Your Birthday, Sept. 15

You will lay the groundwork this year for situations that will pay rewards at a later date. Reliable friends will figure in your plans.

Erma Bombeck

I have always said if the Good Lord had meant for me to speak in the mornings, He'd have put a recording in my chest and a string in the back of my neck.

I don't understand people who can hop out of bed and synchronize their lips with words to form sentences and communicate ideas. I don't reach this point until after lunch.

I have a basic morning vocabulary of 20 words: No. I don't care. It's in the dirty clothes hamper. What's your name? Mustard or catsup? In your father's billfold. There have been no subtractions or additions in 21 years.

The other morning I shuffled to the kitchen and mechanically did my thing. My daughter said, "I need to buy . . . "

"In your father's billfold," I interrupted.

"Where's my favorite V-neck sweater?" said a son.

"In the dirty clothes hamper."

"Can I wear it?"

"No."

"Then I'll sit by an open window and probably die before lunch."

"Mustard or catsup?" I muttered holding his sandwich.

"Catsup."

As I opened the sandwich and tried to force the catsup out, the phone rang . . .

"Hello," said my daughter. "Just a minute. It's for you, Mom."

"I shook my head."

"She can't come to the phone now," she said tartly. "She's hitting the bottle,"

"What's your name?" I asked my youngest. He told me and I scribbled it on his lunch bag.

"Wilma Whiplash called," said my daughter pressing a message in my bathrobe pocket. "She'd like to meet you for lunch at one of the House of Chicken."

I nodded mutely. All morning I thought about Wilma Whiplash. Who was she? Had I met her and couldn't remember? Was she an old schoolmate? An Avon lady? A program chairman? An editor's wife? One of my children's teachers? A secretary trying to pedal underground pictures of the office Christmas party?

"I'm Wilma Whiplash," said a voice at 1 p.m. at the House of Chicken. "I know you don't know me, but I read your column in the newspaper and figured you'd be a scream at lunch."

"What'syour name?" I asked dryly.

"Wilma Whiplash," she smiled. "Your dress is darling. Where did you get it?"

"In the dirty clothes hamper."

"Ah . . .what are you drinking?"

"I don't care. Mustard or catsup."

"Where do you get all your wild ideas?"

"In your father's billfold," I said numbly.

I felt sorry for her, but it served her right.

Horse shows expanded for fair program

Peruvian Pasos, Cutting Horses and Tennessee Walkers have been added to this year's expanded program of horse shows during the 17-day run of the Los Angeles County Fair.

In addition to the regular daily race program, there'll be a horse show every day—all free to fair visitors.

Today through Sunday, the fair's Carnation Ring will feature the 29th California Saddle Horse Breeders Futurity show, beginning at 7:30 p.m

Saturday, the Equestrian Arts Association will stage the Festival of the Horse Pageant beginning at 11 a.m.

Peruvian Pasos will be on display beginning at 8 a.m. on Monday, Sept. 17, under the sponsorship of the Southern California Peruvian Paso Association.

At 5 that afternoon, action continues with a Buckskin show presented by the Pacific Coast Buckskin Assiciation.

A California Cutting Horse Association show will be presented at 4 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 18 and 19.

The popular Quarter Horse shows will be performed Thursday through Sunday, Sept. 20-23, at noon and 7:30 p.m Thursday, 9 a.m., 1 and 7:30 p.m. Friday and the same time on Saturday. The Reining Horse Futurity will be held at 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Both events are sponsored by the Valley Quarter Horse Association.

Six performances of the All Morgan Horse Show will be presented Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 24 and 26 at 9 a.m., 1 and 6 p.m. both days.

Appaloosas take over the spotlight Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 26 and 27, with performances at 10 a.m., 1 and 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and 9 a.m., 1 and 7:30 p.m. Thursday under the sponsorship of the Calizona Appaloosa Association.

Colorful Pintos take over the action Friday and Saturday, Sept. 28 and 29, with 8 a.m. shows each day presented by the Pinto Breeders and Exhibitors Association.

Concluding the season's shows will be the appearance of the Tennessee Walking Horses Sunday, Sept. 30, at 8 a.m. presented by the California Walking Horse Futurity and Horse Show.

In addition to the show performances, Pintos, Quarter Horses, Appaloosas and entries from the Festival of Horse Pageant will be on display in the show horse barn throughout the fair's 17-day run.

U.S. heard of Chile coup shortly before it occurred

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The United States apparently heard of plans for the overthrow of the Allende government in Chile shortly before the coup occurred, but the White House said today President Nixon had no advance knowledge of it.

Administration sources, who declined to be identified, said information about the attempt to oust Chile's Marxist president, Salvador Allende, reached some high-level U. S. officials about 10 hours before a fourman military junta seized power Tuesday. A decision was made that the United States should not become involved, the sources said.

The White House, questioned about U.S. policy regarding the coup, said "we have been receiving reports of unrest in the military (in Chile) for more than a year" and that some of the reports included specific dates for action to depose Allende.

"Beyond these rumors, the President had no advance knowledge of a specific coup and therefore could not and did not make a decision one way or another about communicating with the Chilean government," said the deputy presidential press secretary, Gerald L Warren.

The U.S. embassy in Santiago, he said, had instructions "to have nothing to do with anyone approaching them about possible plans for a coup and these instructions were followed carefully."

At the State Department, a spokesman said the department received hints of a coup plan for three different dates over the past five days —including Tuesday —but insisted there was "absolutely no way of knowing" that a military takeover was going to occur Tuesday.

If you've heard that most new cars have a performance problem, drive a rotary-engine Mazda.

Many people are finding out that new cars don't run as well as the ones they traded in.

With complex smog devices, they're harder to start and more reluctant to move. They conk out in traffic. They're anemic passers and hill-climbers. And new models have been using more gas.

But there's one car that's not suffering from all these problems. Mazda. With its rotary engine and thermal reactor system, Mazda has proven it can run clean and still run strong.

One proof of strong performance is high-speed acceleration—so important to your safety when passing a truck or a line of traffic on the highway. According to National Highway Traffic Safety Administration figures, the Mazda RX-2 with standard transmission beats Jaguar XJ6, Thunderbird and many other high-priced performance cars in high-speed passing (50 to 80 mph).

And Mazda makes long trips seem shorter, less tiring. Its rotary engine runs with uncanny smoothness at speeds faster than you'll ever drive. (It'll do over 120.)

You can pay a lot more for a car and still not get Mazda's kind of performance. With the rotary-engine Mazda, the thrill is back.

Mazda performs.

The thrill is back.

The doctor comments

Atromid-S can cause some side effects

DEAR DR. LAMB— How valuable is Atromid-S (Clofibrate) to the health and elimination of excess cholesterol in a woman's body? I am in my 60s and my doctor says I must take Atromid-S twice every day in order to keep my cholesterol level down. I also have hardening of the arteries and have had dizzy spells at times. When I leave Atromid-S off my dizziness goes away. Do I get toxic to it or what? I also take a nicotinic acid tablet when I need it for dizziness. It helps some.

Is there anything else I could take to lower my cholesterol and help with my hardening of the arteries that's better than Atromid-S and which would not cause me to be dizzy? I do not mind taking medicine, but I do not want any if I do not need it, and especially when it causes me to be dizzy. I can't even focus my eyes. That is true. Otherwise, I am in very good health, enjoy living and what work I'm capable of doing.

Dear Reader — Atromid-S is a very good medicine and has been useful in lowering the cholesterol in many people. Like most other medicines, it can cause side effects in some people.

Atromid-S can cause dizziness, but I do not know whether your dizziness is caused by Atromid-S, or whether it's caused by your hardening of the arteries itself, which can also cause this problem. Your statement that you don't have dizziness when you don't take Atromid-S and that you do when you take it, strongly suggests that it is the Atromid-S. You should talk to your doctor about this and, perhaps, with a period of testing off the medicine, you can find out for certain whether the Atromid-S is related to your problem or whether it's really caused by your atherosclerosis and its affect on the blance centers and mechanisms responsible for dizziness.

You didn't mention your weight, but in general anyone who has any significant amounts of fat deposits under his skin can decrease the cholesterol and blood fat level by adequate weight reduction, This often is not as successful as it could be because patients never really lose all of their excess fat.

To achieve the maximum benefits from fat reduction it's necessary to lose almost all of it. Otherwise, it's like trying to treat a severe diabetic with a very small dose of insulin. Although insulin is a wonderful medicine, small doses will not control severe diabetes, and similarly, eliminating only a small amount of obesity will not significantly decrease blood fat and cholesterol levels. If you have evidence of fat around the small of the back or around the navel underneath the skin, there are pounds you could lose.

Despite the value of medicines in lowering cholesterol, I don't believe that they are replacement for proper prevention of obesity and adjustment of the diet along the lines that have been recommended to prevent atherosclerosis. If these measures are properly carried out, medicine is often not necessary. Doctors sometimes give medicine in desperation because their patients will not stay on the type of diet which will control their obesity and blood fat or cholesterol levels. Unfortunately, it is easier to give a pill than to teach people proper nutrition. Many patients would rather take a pill than do something about their eating habits.

Although I am happy to endorse the proper use of medicines, I am not in favor of using them as a substitute for correct living patterns, which include proper diet, body fat reduction, proper physical activity, and elimination of harmful habits.

Livestock for sale at fair's auction

Prices won't be frozen, but Southern Californias who are tired of the meat shortage can have some frozen and delivered freezer-ready if they buy an animal at the junior livestock auction at the fair Wednesday.

Champion, reserve champion and blue ribbon beef, lambs and hogs will be offered at the sale by 4-H members, Future Farmers and college agriculture students.

Champion and reserve champion normally are bought by commercial concerns who pay considerably more than market value for the publicity benefit. Prices paid generally are enough above the live weight market to help the students with their projects, but still give buyers substantial savings from retail prices while getting superior quality meat.

Market animals entered in the junior livestock division are 211 steers, 341 sheep and 189 swine. All of these will not be offered through the sale though. Normally, between a third and a half of the market animals shown end up on sale.

Brochures giving detailed information sale procedures and buying tips are available from the Los Angeles County Fair office: P.O. Box 2250, Pomona, 9766.

An easy rule to determine what processed meat will cost is that steers and lambs finish at about 45 per cent of live weight and hogs finish about 65 per cent.

A 1,000-pound steer will yield approximately 135 pounds of steaks, 125 pounds of roasts, 95 pounds of ground meat and 95 pounds of lesser cuts. A 100-pound lamb will yield about 11 pounds of legs; 11 pounds of chops; 13 pounds of shoulder and 10 pounds of lesser cuts. A 200-pound hog will yield about 26 pounds of ham, 20 pounds of chops, 26 pounds of shoulder cuts, 24 pounds of bacon, three pounds of spareribs, 16 pounds of sausage and 15 pounds of lard.

Processing charge for slaughtering, cutting, wrapping and freezing is approximately $90 for a steer, $45 for a hog and $5.50 for a lamb.

Arrangemens for processing can be made at the time of purchase.

Purchases can be paid for by BankAmericard, Master Charge, cash or personal check. Bank of America is providing personnel to clerk the sale.

Families who do not have freezer facilities for an entire animal may join with friends to share one or more animals.

Besides individuals and businesses, service clubs, lodges and unions can buy animals for barbecues, to give to charities or to use as fund raisers by selling packaged cuts to members.

U.S., Canada air accord opens routes

OTTAWA (UPI) —Transport Ministeryean Marchand annuonced the United States and Canada have reached agreement in principle on a major new air agreement that would open up 46 new routes between the two countries and permit customs preclearance of passengers in both directions.

The minister said there was only one major obstacle reamaining before ratification of the agreement—U.S. insistence on a new arrangement to cover charter flights between the countries, most of which now are made by Canadian carriers. He said he thought an agreement could be reached on charters within the next few days.

He said the agreement, reached Monday after four years of sometimes tense negotiations, would take effect as soon as it was ratified and signed by both governments. The new routes would be phased in gradually by airlines over a seven-year period.

Under the agreement, U.S. airlines would get 28 new routes to Canada in addition to their present 21, and Canadian airlines would get 18 new routes in addition to their present 14.

Pre-clearance arrangements, which allow passengers to clear customs at their point of departure, would be established in both countries wherever the airlines requested and there was sufficient volume to justify hiring the personnel, Marchand said.

Previously preclearance had only been available at a few locations and Canada cancelled those arrangements earlier this year during a breakdown in the U.S.-Canadian negotiations.

Marchand said he expected preclearance would probably be established in Canada at Vancouver, Toronto, Montreal, Halifax, Edmonton and Calgary. He said U.S. points would depend on the airlines but he expected Miami and New York City will be obvious early choices.

Marchand termed the tentative agreement "perhaps the largest and most complex in world aviation history" and said it was "a little like the auto pact" which established free trade in automobiles six years ago.

In 1972 there were 3.9 million one way air trips by passengers between the United States and Canada. Canadian airlines carried slightly more than half the travellers, the majority of whom were Canadians.

For Canada, the new air routes would be: Calgary-Winnipeg-New York; Calgary - Chicago; Winnipeg - Chicago; Montreal-Toronto-Los Angeles; Toronto-Dallas-Fort Worth - Houston; Montreal - Cleveland; Montreal-Toronto-San Francisco; Vancouver-Victoria-Seattle; Edmonton-Calgary-Los Angeles; Edmonton-Calgary-San Francisco; Vancouver-San Francisco-Los Angeles; Hamilton-Pittsburgh; Quebec City-New York; Halifax - Bangor - Portland - Montreal; Montreal-Boston; Toronto-Boston; Toronto-Hamilton-Pittsburgh; Sydney-Boston.

For the United States, the new air routes would be: Chicago-Minneapolis-St. Paul-Winnipeg Edmonton-Anchorage; Milwaukee-Duluth-Superior Winnipeg; Chicago-Vancouver; Los Angeles-Toronto - Montreal; Rochester-Buffalo-Montreal; Milwaukee-Detroit-Toronto; Cleveland-Toronto; Chicago-Montreal; San Francisco - Toronto-Montreal; Houston-Dallas-Fort Worth-Toronto-Montreal; Detroit-Montreal; Cleveland-Montreal; Houston - Dallas - Fort Worth-Calgary-Edmonton Anchorage-Fairbanks; Denver-Great Falls-Calgary-Edmonton; Honolulu-Vancouver; Spokane-Vancouver; Los Vegas-Calgary-Edmonton; Spokane Calgary-Edmonton;

Roosevelt joins tax limit move

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — James Roosevelt, son of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, is among 12 prominent Californians named to a special committee to oversee the campaign for Gov. Ronald Reagan's tax limitation initiative

The appointments to the "blue ribbon" committee were announced Wednesday by Californians for Lower Taxes, the group formed by Reagan earlier this year to qualify the measure for the Nov. 6 ballot and promote it across the state.

Roosevelt, 66, is a former Democratic congressman and the unsuccessful Democratic gubernatorial candidate in 1950, losing by a 2-1 margin to Earl Warren. He also is a former Democratic national committeeman from California.

Also named to the committee was Ben Swig, 80, owner and operator of a string of hotels, including the Fairmont in San Francisco. He also is a prominent Democratic party financier.

The other 10 appointees were:

—David Packard, 60, former assistant secretary of defense. A Republican, he is a partner in Hewlett-Packard Co. of Palo Alto.

—Mack Easton, 56, president of the California Taxpayers Association. A Republican, he is manager of the Pacific Coast Territory Tax Department for Sears, Roebuck Co.

—Newton Steward, 53, a Republican and president of the State Board of Education.

—Former State Sen Hugh M. Burns, 71, Fresno, president pro tem of the Senate from 1957 to 1969. A Democrat, he is presently chairman of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board.

—Allan Grant, 66, president of the California Farm Bureau Federation and State Board of Agriculture. A Republican, he also is a voting member of the University of California Board of Regents.

—Dr. J. Clayburn LaForce, 44, a Republican and chairman of the Department of Economics at UCLA.

—Phil Watson, 48, Los Angeles County assessor for the past 11 years. He is a Republican.

—Vernon Orr, 56, Republican director of the State Department of Finance.

—Rabbi Edgar Magnin, 83, a Los Angeles Republican and an officer of the National Service Organizations and the National Council of Jews and Christians.

—Moon Lee, 69, a member of the California Highway Commission. A Republican, he is a retired Weaverville businessman.

Oakland mayor urging trade with Russians

OAKLAND (UPI) —Mayor John Reading said that tremendous trade possibilities exist between Russian and the Port of Oakland.

Reading recently returned from visiting Nakhodka in the Soviet Union. The port development in the city is bigger than all Bay Area ports combined, he said.

Reading said trade could be increased because of the improved port conditions and a new Russian attitude of openness.

Reading said he was impressed with the Russians' technical abilities but not the Communist system.

"If anyone has to be impressed with the capitalistic society, let them visit a Russian city," he said.

The mayor said housing was "minimal" and workers had to put in a 48-hour week with no right to strike.

Reagan inks grand jury age measure

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill declaring that a person is competent to serve on a Grand Jury if he is 18 years old rather than 21 or older was signed recently by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The measure (AB67) was authored by Assemblyman Paul Priolo, R-Pacific Palisades.

$288 Signs a Star Receiver to Your Team

The Spectrosonic design philosophy is simple: each model is designed to provide the best receiver value in a particular price range, be it low, medium or high. One way this is done is by using the same tuner section in all the models, a tuner section with some pretty impressive readings, like a 63 dB signal-to-noise ratio, harmonic distortion (stereo) of .4%, and alternate channel selectivity of 63 dB. This Spectrosonic 110's direct-coupled amplifier section produces a healthy 20 watts (RMS) per channel across the entire audible bandwidth with impressively low accompanying distortion levels. Convenience features on the front panel include a headphone jack, main/remote speaker selection, and a loudness contour to compensate for the ear's decreased sensitivity to bass notes at low volume levels. The Spectrosonic 110-4 regularly sells for $239.95; the walnut case is extra.

Garrard's 42M is an updated version of their very popular 40B model and it adds an anti-skate control to the total reliability of its predecessor. A base and a Shure M75ECS elliptical cartridge are included in the very reasonable $64.95 price.

Quadraflex 22's are small speakers but they sound just fine. They're two-way acoustic suspension systems with a six-inch bass and three-inch treble speaker in each handsome walnut veneer cabinet. The Quadraflex 22's normally sell for $99.90 a pair.

Bose speakers are worthy of a little explanation and now seems a most appropriate time since our demos are being offered at substantially lower prices. Bose speakers utilize a special design to bounce the sound off the walls of your listening room so your ears receive much the same proportions of direct and radiated sound as they would in a concert hall. The result is these speakers offer a sound that is startlingly realistic.

The larger 901's have nine identical speakers in each cabinet and the system comes with an equalizer that helps these speakers reach as far down the scale as you can go; the equalizer also lets you adjust the frequency response to suit your particular room.

The 901's are fair-traded at $496 a pair (including equalizer) but our demos are now just $416.

Bose's second system, the 501, offers much of the sonic realism found in the 901 but at a significantly lower price. This system uses a pair of mid-range/treble speakers angled to the rear for the reflected sound, and a 10" speaker is used for the bass; no equalizer is used but these speakers still give an uncanny concert hall "presence." The fair-trade price for a pair of the 501's is $248 but our demos are just $104.50.

This Bose demo sale is a great opportunity for the serious listener but you'll have to hurry if you want a pair; our limited supply of demos is bound to go fast.

See the Season in Full Color

We realize that it's a bit unusual to see a television set in a stereo component store, but this Sony Trinitron color TV is something very special and deserving of special mention. All the Trinitron sets use a single electron gun (instead of the usual three) to produce what's easily the best color picture we've ever seen: it's even bright enough for viewing in broad daylight. All the Sony Trinitron color sets have an advanced solid state circuitry that is both remarkably reliable and easily serviced. Lots of new fall specials and plenty of good football, plus the price of $399.95, are a couple of good reasons to give this Sony 15" (diagonal) color set a long look.

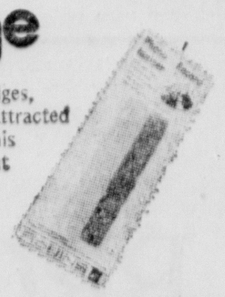
Block Dust Damage

With the increased use of the new light-tracking cartridges, proper record care has become doubly important. Dust is attracted to your records by static electrical charges in the vinyl; this dual-sided record cleaner will not only remove the dust but also reduce the charge so proper care becomes a less frequent chore. Our price is a mere $1.52; it's a small amount of money but well spent if you really care for your albums.



$1.52

60-Day Exchange Privileges and a One-Year Speaker Trial

Sometimes it's hard to know how well a system will work out until you get it home. We want you to have equipment you can live with, so if you're not happy with what you bought from us you can bring it in and exchange it within 60 days of the time you bought it. The one-year speaker trial lets you keep within your budget now by getting a system with relatively small speakers; later you can trade up to more expensive speakers with no financial loss at all. You get a full year to apply your full purchase price (on any speakers costing up to $200) in trade toward costlier speakers at their regular price.

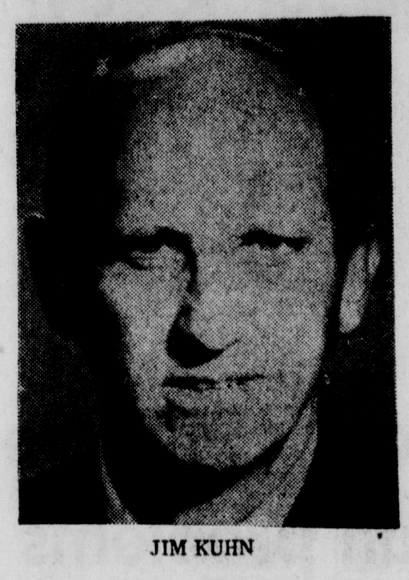
Meals on Wheels program taking shape



JIM KUHN

POMONA — With Nov. 5 set as its starting date, Pomona Meals On Wheels has elected officers, arranged for the preparation of food and provided a distribution center.

The next steps include seeking funds from the community, recruiting volunteer workers and registering recipients for the noonday meals.

Pomona Meals On Wheels is the second branch of Pomona Valley Meals On Wheels, with the Claremont MOW established in September 1972. A third branch is planned in the La Verne-San Dimas area.

Other Meals on Wheels have been established in Ontario-Upland and Chino.

Officers of the Pomona MOW elected last week are Jim Kuhn, president; Ruth Wallis, vice president; Louise Pavey, secretary; and Beatrice Grossman, treasurer. Also on the board are Mary Cross, Barbara Graves, Lillian Greene, Martha Hartshorn, Claire Lortie, G. Nelson Lortie, Jennie Ramirez, Anne Shotwell and Satina Smith.

Pomona MOW is a nonprofit, all-volunteer community project planned to provide a nutritious midday meal to shut ins who are unable to prepare well balanced meals for themselves.

Persons recuperating from serious illness or surgery will be eligible for the meal service during their recovery. The meals will be delivered throughout Pomona each week, Monday through Friday.

Pomona Valley Community Hospital will supply the prepared food at cost. Vounteers will take the bulk food to the Pomona Presbyterian Church where other teams of volunteers will pack the food into individual containers, separating the hot and cold portions.

Costing $1.80 per day, the meal will include a meat, two vegetables, salad, bread and margarine, a dessert and beverage. Recipients on state aid can obtain special food allowances if they need MOW. The project is planned as a self-sustaining program once it is established.

Teams of volunteers will deliver the food to the shut-ins who have signed up for the service. Hot servings will be carried in special heated boxes and cold foods, in an ice chest.

Funds are needed to purchase hot boxes, cold chests, meal containers and other equipment. Donations to Pomona Meals on Wheels are tax deductible.

Approximately 80 to 110 volunteers are needed in November. It is planned to have different teams of volunteers working each day, with most men or women working about an hour, two or three times a month.

As projected for the beginning of the program, 50 persons can be accepted to receive the meals. Applications are now being taken and can be made by calling 623-0010.

Persons interested in volunteering their time, donating funds or wishing to know more about MOW may also call 623-0010 or write to P.O. Box 684, Pomona, Calif., 91769.

Planners propose Ganesha Hills controls

By L.T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

POMONA — More city control over development of a section of the Ganesha Hills may soon be imposed.

The Pomona Planning Commission has recommended a hillside overlay zone be applied to 37 acres at the west end of the Ganesha Hills, generally bounded by Ganesha Boulevard, Gillette Road and Val Vista and McKinley avenues. The action was opposed by one property owner.

That area, now zoned for single-family residences, contains two reservoir sites, the Castaway Restaurant, four single-family homes and vacant land.

Applying the overlay will give the city additonal controls over development by limiting the amount of "cut and fill" and also specifying the type of ground cover to prevent erosion, said James Lighfoot, city planning aide. The present zoning will remain.

"There are no developments proposed now for that area, and the reason we seek the overlay is to prepare for any future developments," he explained.

Joel Baldwin, who owns 6.5 acres near Ganesha Boulevard and the San Bernardino Freeway, said his property is planned for highway commercial use. "But this overlay will put too many restrictions to interest anyone in developing it," he added.

The city could require a "green belt," which if applied here, would leave only a small amount of property to develop, said Baldwin.

"Also, I would have to go through another layer of government to get anything done. I don't see any reason why I should be included in the hillside overlay and put extra stress on any developer who wants to develop the property."

In a staff presentation, officials reported the overlay is intended to encourage the orderly development of the hillside areas by regulating the number and distribution of buildings so the terrain would suffer minimum disfigurement and scarring.

Regulations are also intended to minimize danger to life and property from the hazards of flood, fire, erosion and slippage.

Sanford Sorensen, city planner, said the additional requirements are reasonable and he didn't believe they would hamper any development.

Jerry Case, a trustee of the Ganesha Hills Property Owners Association, said the group had first believed this overlay was to open the area for higher residential density.

"We did not want that to occur. We are convinced this will not do that. We have no objections to the proposal."

Commissioners voted 7-0 for the overlay. Their recommendation will go before the City Council Sept. 24 for final action.

Forum opens with film on famed road

POMONA — Film producer and narrator Gene Wiancko will open the 1973-74 Pomona Forum season Monday at 7:45 p.m. in the Education Center auditorium with a film entitled "Magic Road: Kyoto to Tokyo."

Wiancko spent a year in Japan makin the film.

It features life along the Old Tokaido Road, for centuries the most famous thoroughfare in the Orient.

He also shows ancient castles, woodblock artistry, Shinto traditions, Buddhism, the kite battle of Hammatsu, Nikko, women's life today, a Shinto wedding ceremony and the children of today's Japan.

3-day paving project slated for Indian Hill

POMONA — Indian Hill Boulevard, from American Avenue to Holt Avenue, will be paved starting Monday, a project that will take three days to complete.

A slurry mix previously was applied to that section of Indian Hill to seal cracks in the existing pavement.

The paving will start at American in the southbound lanes and proceed south.

During the three days, northbound and southbound traffic will be restricted to one lane of travel in each direction. and the eastbound and westbound traffic at the intersecting streets will be diverted until the finish of the daily paving operation.

Upon completion of the paving operation, city striping crews will restripe Indian Hill in patterns to provide for left turn lanes, with two lanes of travel in the northbound direction and two lanes of travel in the southbound direction.

"The city public works department recommends that those persons who regularly travel on Indian Hill utilize alternate routes if possible in order to avoid the resulting traffic restrictions caused by the paving operation," said Traffic Engineer Richard Barrera.

Talent agency search for child seen as cruel appeal

I received a letter from National Talent Associates which stated, "Your child has recently been brought to our attention . . . it is possible we might be quite interested in your child."

This letter distressed me greatly as my child, had he lived, would have been only six months old now. He died when he was only four days old. I feel this is a cruel cut and should be stopped from happening to anyone else.

I would appreciate any help you could give me in stopping this form of advertising. — Mrs. J. M.,Chino.

You enclosed the letter from the talent agency, which stated, in part: "Information and referrals come to us from parents of our children who feel some other child may have the necessary qualifications for the commercial advertising field, and other available sources."

The same day you wrote to us, you wrote to the talent agency, saying, "If you are going to snoop into other people's private lives, you should do a better job."

We followed up your letter with one of our own to the agency regarding your concern. J. P. Ashfield, executive vice-president, sent us a copy of a letter of apology to you.

He wrote that " . . . this error has never occurred before. Our business requirements do cause us to turn to commercial lists of children of specific ages since they grow so rapidly and so very few do qualify. We believe that your name was included on just such a list.

"We do get many names from people of children they think should be in this business, but it is inconceivable to me that anyone would deliberately do such a thing."

This is in regard to the property next door to mine. The occupants have moved away.

The grass is dry and knee deep. The house itself is being demolished. Not only is it an eyesore, but a potential fire hazard.

I have written to the Veterans Administration, but they say they are no longer owners of the property. Then I called the fire department and was promised someone would be out to inspect the grounds and house but no one from that department has been out.

Perhaps you can help me as I am greatly afraid that someone might set the place afire. — D. W., Pomona.

We referred your problem to Maggie O'Donnell, Pomona's housing coordinator. She referred the weed problem to the fire department and assures us it will be taken care of.

She learned that the house is in the process of foreclosure, which takes at least six or seven months.

Now that she knows about the house, the city can order it boarded up and will do so.

Abandoned houses in Pomona number 648. The greatest number, 328, are owned by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) under the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) titles.

Mrs. O'Donnell said the owner has the primary responsibility for maintenance of empty houses but the city can board them up when that responsibility isn't met.

She hopes other citizens will let the city government know when such a problem exists.

The high cost of food is too much.

Where is the nearest consumers cooperative?

How much does it cost to join and how much do members save on their food bills?—R.M., Claremont.

Jerry Voorhis, former congressman and an authority on cooperatives, answered this for you and Action Line, remarking that he wished he had a better answer.

The Santa Monica Consumer Cooperative is the closest, he says. The address is 2021 S. Barrington Ave., Los Angeles.

Voorhis couldn't tell anyone with absolute assurance how much they would save on their food bill by trading at a cooperative.

"What I can say," he told Action Line, "is that whatever earnings the cooperative makes belongs not to the cooperative but to its members and are returned to them in patronage refunds at the end of each accounting period.

"It is also true that one can be quite certain in a cooperative of getting honest quality and honest pricing usually in the form of unit pricing and that the members have something to say about the policies of their store."

We wrote to the Santa Monica organization to try to get some figures but so far its members have been too busy cooperating to answer.

NEW BANK BUILDING

Artist's rendering depicts new office building to be constructed at 255 W. Mission Blvd. across from the Pomona Civic Center. When completed in mid-July 1974, more than 16,000 square feet of the new building will house the Bank of California's Pomona office, now located at 101 S. Main St., and an additional 7,000 square feet of office space will be available for lease. Building was designed by Kurt Meyer and Associates and the builder is Casner Construction Co. of Temple City. The building is part of an office-financial center planned on two downtown blocks by Pomona Development Co.

School lunch, milk prices are increased

POMONA — Public school children will pay $2.50 a week to eat in school cafeterias this year.

And those who bring a sandwich and an apple in a brown bag will pay more for their milk than they did last year.

This year it will cost 50 cents a day to eat in the "cafe," up from 45 cents last year. This meal will include a half-pint of milk.

The child who buys milk separately will pay 10 cents for a half-pint, up from five cents last year.

Older pupils who buy a third of a quart of milk will pay 15 cents this year, up from seven cents last year.

Higher food prices and discontinuance of the government milk subsidy made the increases necessary, school administrators said.

School cafeterias will begin serving food Monday.

Young Pomonan arrested in rape of Ontario girl

ONTARIO — Ontario police have arrested a 17-year-old Pomona youth in connection with the rape of a 15-year-old girl in the Linda Vista Elementary School yard last Friday morning.

Detective Dave Simpson said the youth was arrested in Pomona following an investigation. Two other youths were questioned about the rape and later released without charge.

Last Friday the girl was driven from Pomona to the Ontario school yard at 1556 S. Sultana Ave. against her will. She was raped in the school yard and then freed by her abductor.

Police said the name of the suspect youth would not be released because of a State Supreme Court ruling prohibiting police departments from revealing the names of juvenile offenders.

Public support sought

Group expresses faith in cultural center goal

By TONY NAVARRO
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — A group of public spirited citizens, spurred by faith more than anything else, got together again Thursday night as part of a campaign to drum up public support for a Pomona civic auditorium and social and cultural center.

No specific plan of action has yet been drawn on how to make the proposed social and cultural center a reality, but the group nevertheless is moving ahead — from the organization standpoint — to push for completion of construction in time to celebrate the nation's bicentennial in 1976.

"I think it's a great privilege to have the opportunity to work for something I know is worthwhile," said Mrs. Harry Williamson, one of two temporary co-chairmen of the group, called The Citizens' Committee of '76.

"If we make up our minds to get that building, we're going to get it," she said. Fred Graff is the other temporary co-chairman.

The committee plans to achieve nonprofit corporate status under state and federal laws and 22 members met Thursday at the groups second public meeting at the Great Western Savings and Loan Association building to review proposed by-laws.

The by-laws, drafted by a subcommittee made up of Graff, C. Mack Gilliland of the Valley Community Theater, and Parks and Recreation Commissioner Richard Owens, were placed on a first reading and will be submitted for final approval at another meeting Oct. 30.

The October meeting will be held in the school district auditorium. Mrs. Williamson said she was hopeful individual citizens and organizations would get behind the move by circulating petitions and resolutions, available from the committee, for subsequent presentation to the City Council.

She was also hopeful the October meeting would attract a large turnout.

One of the purposes of the Committee of '76, according to the proposed by-laws is:

"To initiate, encourage, generate, and actively support coordinated and properly executed efforts that have the intent of building a social and cultural center to serve all the people of Pomona, to be presented to the citizens of this city as a memorial of the bicentennial celebration of the birth of the nation on July 4, 1976."

SHE'S A CLOWN

Happy one of the leading female clowns in the state, will be at Pomona Valley Center Saturday at noon for a fiesta celebration. Happy the Clown will sign autographs and make balloon animals for children. There will also be arts and crafts exhibits, musical groups plus free soft drinks and balloons for children. Happy has appeared on several TV shows.

Opinion

A shield law for the press?

Last summer the U.S. Supreme Court by the narrow margin of 5 to 4 held that members of the press cannot refuse to testify before a grand jury if they have been supboenaed to do so.

The act seemed to cheapen the guarantees of the First Amendment and its provisions for a free press.

Expectedly, the response to the high court's decision was swift, and the outcry against it was well articulated by people in and out of journalism.

The critics were fearful that the effect of the decision would be to deprive a reporter of his most precious tools — sole control of his notes and research material and his right to keep the identity of his sources to himself. And ultimately, went the fears, the public's right to know would be drastically mollified.

Legislative bills were not long in coming, and they are known as "shield laws" designed to protect the reporter from subpoena.

No such legislation now exists, for until the Supreme Court's ruling last summer, the First Amendment had been assumed to provide adequate protection for the press and its business of gathering and disseminating news.

At the outset, the shield law concept seemed simple enough — certainly a noble idea founded on the solid logic that the right of this nation to a free press should be infinitely defined and strengthened.

A total shield law was proposed in the Senate by Alan Cranston of California. But Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina held that a "complete shield" would extend beyond reasonable legislation, and he introduced a bill that would provide for a "partial shield."

The Ervin bill would recognize subpoenas of reporters under certain circumstances.

In the House, Rep. Tom Railsback of Illinois introduced a bill containing even less protection for newsmen than is contained in the Ervin bill.

The dialogue resulting from the proposed legislation has proved that the shield law precept is far more complex than it initially was believed to be.

There are weaknesses in it. Weaknesses, we believe, that are profound enough to render the proposed legislation excessive, and an ominous threat rather than a protective blanket over the freedom of information.

Item — Who is the press, and just who would be shielded? Anyone, even a publisher of a pamphlet or an underground publication, could call himself a news reporter.

Writing in the Wall Street Journal, Vermont Royster said, "If this proposed law creates a blanket shield to permit any newsman to decline to testify before grand juries or courts, then anyone — even a member of the Mafia — could hide behind it."

Royster further points out that if the law would require that a reporter be defined, it would be tantamount to licensing of newsmen — a suggestion generally repugnant to all concerned.

Item — Once the Congress extends itself into the area of a free press, where will it stop? One Congress may provide a shield law, but another Congress could take it away, or even pass laws that would prove to be even more restrictive. The area of free press has no room for legislation.

Item — Why should newsmen be given statutory protection not applied to others? Speaking before the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington recently, Charles Bennett of the Oklahoman and Times said reporters should be treated as any other citizen. He questioned the wisdom of creating a class of citizens immune by reason of occupation.

We feel the shield law principle is too far-reaching, and poses a threat to the very freedom it is designed to protect.

The First Amendment, as weakened as it may have become recently, still represents the best hope for the preservation of the Free Press. The Supreme Court surely has not said the last word on the subject.

The First Amendment has withstood nearly 200 years of test, and has yet to be so maligned that it wholly fails in its mission.

We should, in the shield law debate, reject such legislation. We should let it be known we have faith in the U.S. Constitution — faith enough to believe it will sustain our basic freedoms as it has done since 1791.

A film for all

A controversial film project, "The Loves of Jesus Christ," has strained relations between the Danish government, which is helping finance the film, and the Roman Catholic Church before even a foot of it has been shot.

Pope Paul VI has denounced it, fire bombs have been thrown at the Danish embassy in Rome, threats have been made against the Danish embassy in Madrid and hundreds of protest letters have reportedly poured into the other Danish embassies and Ministry of Culture in Copenhagen.

Although the ministry maintains that there is nothing offensive in the script, the independent Danish Film Institute, which is putting up about $100,000 for the film, describes it as "pornographic, obscene and blasphemous." But, it adds, it is also "full of love, vibrancy, warmth and humanity."

Not to get involved in the argument, this would seem to be one picture that has something for everybody.

Stamping out world opium supply

WASHINGTON — The colorful Shan guerriilas have offered to sell the United States most of the Soutneast Asian opium crop and to wage war on any other opium convoys that may try to operate in the area.

In exchange, they want $12 million in hard cash and a U.S. promise to help them win autonomy from Burma.

This astonishing proposal was made in writing by two top Shan leaders who sent an emissary down from the hills to meet clandestinely in Bangkok with Rep. Lester Wolff, D-N.Y. As chairman of a House narcotics subcommittee, Wolff is the House's leading expert on Burma-Thai-Laos opium production. He was in Bangkok last month on a survey with five other congressmen.

The signed Shan offer to destroy up to 400 tons of high-grade Asian opium, combined with the U.S.-sponsored crackdown on Turkish opium, theoretically could wipe out 75 per cent of the supply of heroin on America's streets. And $12 million admittedly would be cheaper than trying to stop the smuggling operation the hard way.

Dramatic encounter

As Wolff recounts his dramatic encounter in Bangkok, the Shan emissary, an Englishman, arranged by letter and telephone to meet with him in a hotel lobby away from his congressional colleagues. A follow-up meeting was held in a nook off a bustling Bangkok street.

The Englishman handed him the two-page proposal signed by Gen. Law Hsin Han and Boon Tai, the two rebel leaders, who also sent as evidence of good faith a handwritten list of all recent opium shipments by mule, backpack and trucks within the vast Shan state area.

Skeptical at first but eager to explore the offer, Wolff invited American diplomatic, narcotics and CIA officials in Thailand to a meeting, where he laid out the strange Shan proposal.

At this private session, the authorities confirmed that the Englishman was an authentic Shan contact and that some of the handwritten reports of opium convoys agreed precisely with their own secret information. Our own sources report that both the State Department and CIA had also been approached by the Shan insurgents but that the negotiations had been aborted by Washington.

Progress report

Wolff left it to the American officials in Bangkok to pursue the offer but asked for a quick progress report, fearing the unorthodox Shan gambit might become snarled in red tape and bureaucratic timidity.

When Wolff reached Hong Kong four days later, he was called by his Shan contact, who reported nothing whatsoever was being done about the Shan offer.

At our request, Wolff has now agreed to show us the proposal in hopes this might stir at least preliminary talks on the feasibility of buying up the Shan opium crop. After all, the United States has subsidized Turkish opium farmers with $35 million a year so they would stop growing the lethal stuff. The United States also secretly paid $1 million to Chinese traffickers and others in Thailand for contraband opium, which was burned. (A secret CIA report claims, however, that the U.S. authorities were deceived and really burned cheap fodder covered with opium.)

Wolff's document typed beneath the crossed swords letterhead of the Shan State Army, is titled "Proposals to Terminate the Opium Trade in Shan State." It begins:

"The Shan State Army and its allies will invite . . . the United States Narcotics Bureau, or any similar body, to visit the opium areas of Shan State and to transmit information about opium convoys on their own wireless.

"The S.S.A. and its allies will ensure that all opium controlled by their armies is burnt under international supervision. The opium will be sold at a price to be negotiated later, but the basis . . . should be the Thai border price." At present, this would amount to roughly $12 million for 400 tons of opium.

In return for these "temporary measures," the Shan armies want a "permanent solution" based on political self-determination for the Shans and agricultural assistance from the United States to "replace opium with other crops." If this is finally accomplished, promised the Shan leaders, they will "allow helicopters under international supervision to search out and destroy any opium fields that still remain."

In Wolff's view, the advantage of destroying 400 tons of opium far outweighs the ruffling of official Burmese feathers, which direct dealings with the Shans would cause.

Our own CIA sources confirm that the Shan State Army is a tremendous factor in the Southeast Asian drug traffic. One secret report by the CIA's Basic and Geographic Intelligence Office asserts: "The Shan State Army, the largest of several forces that have been fighting for Shan independence from Burma . . . is also heavily involved in the opium business."

Another CIA document tells of caravans of "up to 600 horses and donkeys and 300 to 400 men . . . carrying in excess of 16 tons" moving out of the Shan State. Classified CIA and Justice Department documents say 400 tons of the 700 to 750 tons of opium produced in Southeast Asia come from Burma, much of it from regions controlled or near the Shan State armies.

PAUL HARVEY

Turnaround in grain supply-demand

The callous queen, told that "there is no bread for the people," replied, "Let them eat cake!" For three generations Americans have been teaching a rice-eating world to eat bread. They've learned to prefer it. World consumption of wheat is increasing 2.5 per cent per year.

Now others are demanding ours. Despite widespread flooding in our nation's breadbasket affecting this year's crop, American farmers are outdoing themselves.

Total grain production will be up 5 per cent from last year and last year was a record. We will harvest more than ever before of wheat and corn; grain sorghums and soybeans. But we'll still not have enough to go around.

We've already promised 30 million tons of wheat to Canada and Argentina. Russia has bought 5 million tons from us and wants another 5 million.

Uncle Sam has suspended shipments of American farm produce for needy people abroad under the "food-for-peace" program, at least temporarily.

But the grains already promised to other nations under our gigantic overseas aid program will be delivered through September, including grain for victims of Africas's widespread drought.

The Administration is under pressure to curtail further exports of grains, but so far President Nixon has resisted that pressure. He considers the improvment in our trade balance and the leverage in foreign relations worth risking home-front shortages.

Just think—less than 18 months ago we were still paying American farmers "not to grow" some grains to avoid overproduction.

The supply-demand turnaround came so quickly it caught us completely off balance. Not all inflation is traceable to the food shortage, but that's where most Americans feel it most. You are now paying 6 per cent more for groceries than earlier this year and 15 per cent more than a year ago.

And the U.S. Department of Agriculture guesstimates that your food bill will advance another 7 per cent before the supply catches up with demand late this year.

No farmer now living has ever seen such a demand and such prices for what he sells.

And no consumer now living will ever see dime-a-loaf bread again. But the acute crisis in food prices will pass this year; the fever will break after Thanksgiving. Then Americans, with food supplies improving, will have to decide to what extent we want to resume feeding the have-not nations.

Our well-intentioned generosity has backfired in Indochina and India where lands which once produced rice have been idled. Reflooding riceland is tedious, takes time, is hard work. And they, like the rest of us, have less appetite for work having tasted cake.

Good in every man

I would like to thank all of the people who were so kind and helpful to us during the search for my son, Jamie Vlietstra.

First of all I would like to let the citizens of Pomona know what a dedicated group they have in the Pomona Police Department. All of the men on the shift which initiated the search volunterred to stay on the job until he was found — without pay. Our particular thanks to Sgt. Tom McCullough who stayed with us until 3:00 a.m., went to an early morning court appearance, came back to the scene until Jamie was found, and then drove up to Oxnard to tell Jamie's uncle what had happened.

The Police Explorer Scouts responded immediately to the call for help. They, together with all of the other teen-agers, kept walking all night until I told them to go home to rest. All of the young people were so willing, which demonstrates great hope for the future.

When we were out knocking on doors we found so many total strangers who joined in the search. I have no other way to express my gratitude. Thank you for showing the good which is in every man.

My everlasting thanks to my family and dear friends who are always there when the chips are down. I am grateful for all of the prayers which have sustained us.

Most of all I thank God for giving us Jamie who taught us to live every minute of every day. — Catherine Vlietstra, Apple Valley

Gossip for today

When you get right down to cases, scandals are all in the eyes of the beholder. Here in the United States, Watergate has become a nasty word although in many other countries throughout the world it is considered a mere political peccadillo.—So what IS a real public disgrace in the opinion of some of those other world powers? Well, in France as a typical example, the current scandal is that some unprincipled, unscrupulous individuals are serving old wine in new bottles.

INSIDE REPORT

Connally may give Reagan problems

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — In his debut as a Republican potentially seeking his party's presidential nomination, ex-Democrat John B. Connally showed last weekend how thoroughly and spectacularly he can sell himself to the most inbred and insular Republican true believers.

The reaction to Connally's stem-winding address to Saturday night's banquet session of the Republican state convention here was typified by one state legislative leader, rigidly conservative and long a faithful supporter of Gov. Ronald Reagan. Like many others, he arrived here curious but skeptical about Connally. After the speech, he confided to us: "If this guy is really running for President, I would say Ron has got problems." It was a frequently voiced sentiment Saturday night.

The fact that Connally was here at all removed one of the two great doubts about his prospects for the presidential nomination. Old Connally watchers doubted he would tear himself from the good life in Houston and Jamaica for the tedious Republican mashed-potato circuit. Yet, he not only came to San Diego in the first of many such party appearances but, in his press conference, sounded precisely like a presidential candidate three years before the convention.

The second and much more serious doubt concerns the congenital distrust of outsiders by fiercely partisan Republican regulars. But the regulars here were ready to be converted by convert Connally. In fact, it took only 30 minutes of Texas-style oratory.

No cross-section of GOP

Connally could not have picked a tougher debut then this convention. Scarcely a cross-section of California Republicans, those attending are hard-core conservative precinct workers fiercely devoted to Reagan's presidential ambitions. Undercurrents of doubt among California Republicans generally about their governor's qualifications for the presidency were certainly not to be found among the regulars here .

Moreover, Connally's intimate associations with Lyndon B. Johnson made him suspect. One California party strategist wondered aloud before the speech whether the old Connally-LBJ partnership might prove embarrassing in a presidential campaign. The link was underlined by the fact that Connally was accompanied here from Texas by his close friend and political adviser George Christian, President Johnson's last and favorite press secretary (and still a Democrat).

Counteracting this attitude was a masterful performance by Connally in his press conference (agreed to by him after some early balking), a 40-minute walkthrough of a $100-a-ticket cocktail party for him and finally the banquet speech itself. When Connally digressed during the speech into an impromptu lecture on international economics, some Republicans here suggested he might just be a little deeper than their own Ronald Reagan.

Although one prominent state party leader complained that Connally "sounds too much like a Baptist preacher," his evangelical conservatism delighted the rank-and-file regular from the moment he told them: "I left the Democratic party of my father's past to join the Republican party of my children's future."

Keeps discreet distance

Moreover, Connally maintained a discreet distance between himself and President Nixon without seeming anti-Nixon. At his press conference, he stressed he had not seen the president lately but implied that Mr. Nixon was belatedly taking his advice on how to handle Watergate. His prepared speech, echoing White House attacks on preoccupation with Watergate, was altered in delivery to make a more general inspirational appeal.

The sum total of this might well appeal to some influential California Republicans not here last weekend: moderate money men such as industrialist Leonard Firestone and entertainment executive Taft Schreiber who have grown distant from Reagan and are not enthusiastic about a last hurrah from Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

Indeed, singing Connally's praises behind the scenes here was one influential backroom figure in moderate Republican politics with significant money-raising talents. He was visible at Connally's side, introducing him and his wife, Nellie, to the local fat cats at the $100 cocktail party.

However, barring the worst misfortunes befalling Reagan the next three years, it is hardly conveivable that he will even be challenged in the 1976 primary for this state's huge delegation. Reagan, lustily cheered in the convention windup Sunday morning, has no reason to fear Connally in California.

But with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew now consigned to political oblivion by head-shaking regulars here, Connally can rightly be called the second-choice in California following his triumphant debut. That's more than his most ardent supporters could have had any reason to expect after four months as a Republican and his first Republican speech.

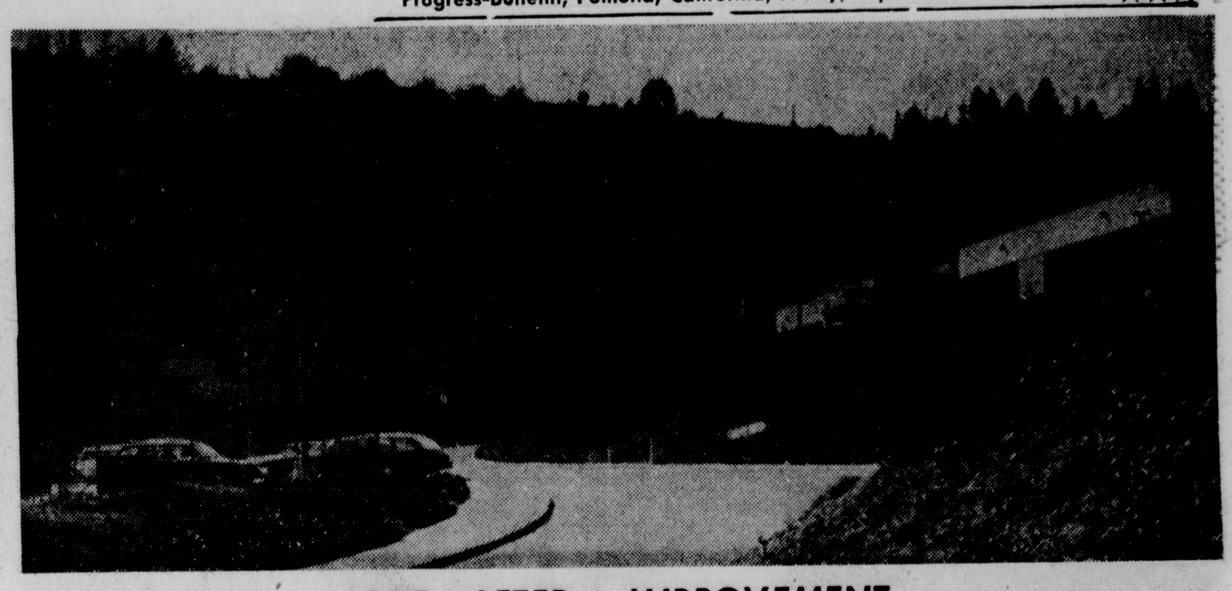
PROBLEM PLACE, BEFORE . . .

A proposed school site in a future hillside development near The Hills in Diamond Bar—see arrow—poses an expensive problem for Walnut school planners. Even though the hilly area will be changed considerably by land moving, slopes around the school will rise about 90 feet.



. . . AND AFTER IMPROVEMENT

At Collegewood School, near Mt. San Antonio College, steep slopes surround the buildings and play area. These were planted a decade before with trees and ivy, and now present a lush appearance to the viewer. The question is: should new sloped sites be similarly landscaped?

School maintenance can cost more than land in lifetime

Walnut slopes are making a mountain out of molehill

By LANGE WINCKLER
P-B Staff Writer

WALNUT — As home builders begin to fill in the crests and ravines of Walnut Valley, school district planners are faced with a problem: how to escape high costs for schools surrounded with unusable slopes.

Last week the district failed to convince county subdivision planners to approve a proposed school site in Diamond Bar that would give responsibility for slope improvement and maintenance to adjacent homeowners. Following established county policy, planners put the burden for maintenance on the property owner who will be looking at the slopes —the school district.

It is an expensive problem. At the elementary school site in question, in undeveloped area adjacent to The Hills housing development, slopes rise for nearly 90 feet, which district administrators say could force maintenance expenses of twice the land's value, when computed over the expected life of the school.

There are few benefits from costly slope maintenance, other than appearance. Plantings must be chosen with care, to avoid fire hazards and difficult gardening chores. The area must be kept stable to prevent slides or excessive runoff, while homeowners above represent a liability.

Children cannot use the slopes for play areas, and building into them would raise construction costs and cause problems for younger and handicapped students.

"The problem is the kind of hills we have to work with," district trustees were told at a recent meeting by George Hartnett, assistant superintendent of fiscal and facilities management. There are few areas left in the district without such high banks, he noted, asking the trustees for some guidance on a policy for working with developers to set aside areas for future school development.

Presently the district cannot afford to purchase future school sites outright, he explained. This means the schools have weaker bargaining power in negotiating for site locations — "We are forced into a leave-it-or-take-it situation," he related, not only because of money, but also because there are virtually no alternatives to the sites proposed.

If the district agrees it wants the land, Hartnett continued, then the developer will be using that information in his sales promotions. Furthermore, the district's decision affects how the property will be graded and laid out for construction, imposing something of a moral obligation on the schools to purchase the site.

In the case of the location under discussion, the property is a short distance away from an intermediate school site already owned by the district. However, trustees determined there would be no way to combine the schools together, because the land is too small. Anyhow, to do so would not be consistent with previous policy to separate elementary and intermediate schools.

So, placed in the position of accepting property considered undesirable, the district sought a way to diminish the impact of banks maintenance. But county policy would not allow placing property lines even partway down the bank.

Cost of the site was estimated at $300,000 — while maintenance over the 40-year life of the school would be $600,000, Hartnett said. Past practice, as demonstrated at Collegewood School, has been to improve banks with ivy and plantings.

Trustees will consider in the future different way to improve the slopes, possibly by leaving the areas in "natural" plantings. This would at least soften the blow of keeping up a 12-plus acre site that only offers nine usable acres.

Lecture for horse lovers attracts 120

LA PUENTE — Owners of horses are invited to attend a horsemen's lecture series each Monday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Fairgrove Elementary School cafeteria.

More than 120 persons attended the opening class last Monday.

Mike Carrigan, coordinator of the new Fairgrove Community School which is offering the series, said the purpose of the class is to tell people more about horses, their care and welfare and to answer questions regarding problems common to all who own or use horses.

Mrs. Cathy Mathews, main organizer of the series, said that in the future there would be live demonstrations on the proper way to groom a horse, correct methods of punishment and reward and safety methods for horse and handler.

Mobile class unit looking for teachers

LA PUENTE — The volunteer mobile mini-class program, sponsored by the La Puente Community Adult School, will begin its second year Oct. 1.

Volunteer teachers are needed to instruct one class a week for four weeks.

Coordinator Laurel Adler said instructors are needed who have a knowledge of grocery shopping to save money, crocheting, budget stretching, creative activities for children, how to make money, basic sewing, cake decorating, personal improvement, diet and exercise, what every woman should know about health education, patchwork quilting, home safety, first aide, clothing and home repair.

Anyone interested in volunteering is urged to call Miss Adler at the school office, 213 968-8452.

The mobile mini-class program utilizes two school buses for a portable classroom and a mobile childcare playroom. It travels to schools throughout the Hacienda Heights-La Puente area.

It is designed for those who would like to go to school but who, for various reasons, are unable to leave their immediate neighborhoods.

SIGN OF THE TIMES?

It's just about the most visible sign marking entry to Walnut, but this sign is in poor shape, and slightly inaccurate. City councilmen want to see it fixed or removed.

Walnut councilmen regard welcome sign as unwelcome

WALNUT — About nine months ago, the City Council here decided a sign proclaiming, "Welcome to Walnut, Home of the Mt. San Antonio Relays, pop. 3,500" was not only inaccurate, but embarrassing.

Wednesday night, the panel was reminded of its decision to give the Walnut Valley Chamber of Commerce, which donated the sign to the city, 30 days to fix it up or tear it down. The council decided to give the chamber another 30 days before removing it.

Councilman Joy Dyer raised the topic, noting the wrong population — over 5,000 now — and the dilapidated shape of the elevated placard at Lemon Avenue and Valley Boulevard. The sign is punched with holes, but a plexiglass cover makes it too much trouble to renovate. Dyer said he had received an offer to take it down in exchange for the materials in the structure.

"While I'm at it, how about coming up with a new sales slogan for Walnut," Dyer said. "I thought of 'A Hard Nut To Crack,' and 'The Lemon City,' but I don't think that quite does it."

Band Boosters in Walnut will meet

WALNUT — Band Boosters at Walnut High return to school Monday for their first meeting of the new year. The session will be held in the band room at 7:30 p.m. Interested parents are invited to attend.

Book, bake sale to aid library in D.B.

DIAMOND BAR — Members of the library committee of the Diamond Bar Junior Woman's Club will hold a book and bake sale Oct. 6 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in front of the library.

Members of the committee are continuing to aid librarian Margaret Orr with storytime for preschoolers.

Horse ring fee question delayed

WALNUT — Discussion about increasing fees for use of a horse ring at Suzanne Park will continue at Monday's meeting of the city Parks and Recreation Commission.

Commissioners will also set a date for field trips to Woodside Village and to the City of Irvine to observe how streets were improved with trees and plantings. Filling out the agenda of the 7:30 p.m. session at City Hall is a status report on construction of two softball diamonds at the north end of Suzanne Park.

Topless ban ordinance is held illegal

NEW YORK (UPI) —A federal court judge has ruled unconstitutional a North Hempstead, N.Y., town ordinance prohibiting topless dancing.

Judge John Bartels said the law, which prohibits any display of breasts in public, was so broad as to be "constitutionally invalid as an infringement on first amendment freedoms."

A suit challenging the law was brought by the owners of three taverns in the town. In a lengthy decision Bartels said the ordinance, passed earlier this year, would prevent the performance of the "Ballet African" or the musical "Hair."

Family Weekly puts spotlight on Garner

Actor James Garner, in an exclusive interview in the Progress-Bulletin's Family Weekly, Sunday says, "When I get mad, hold on to your hat!"

Hollywood editor Peer J. Oppenheimer transcribes a rare, on-location interview with Garner, a very private person off-camera, who says "I can't understand why anyone would want an opinion from me."

In frankness, Garner admits, "I have a high boiling point. Usually I boil over when I encounter dishonesty or when somebody kicks somebody else who can't fight back."

In the cookbook section, food editor Marilyn Hansen tucks in baking recipies for breads, cakes, cookies, easy doughnuts and even fried pie.

Also in Sunday's Family Weekly will be results of a poll among 625 newspaper publishers, editors and general managers who were asked: What are the issues troubling our society?"

The People Quiz, entitled "Fear and You," asks, Do people who have the most to live for have the greatest fear of dying?

Ask Dr. Brothers

In wrong career

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I'm a 30-year-old man and I'm having a bad time getting myself together in almost every way, but primarily in terms of my profession. I became lawyer because my father wanted me to, because he's a lawyer, I suppose. I now realize I loathe it. I think I knew it in college, but I'd never admit it to myself. I'd be a lot happier running a store, driving a truck or being a carpenter, which I happen to do very well. I could go into business tomorrow with a friend of mine and this would be very fulfilling to me. My wife and my father would scream themselves hoarse.

Money is not especially important to me, but it is to my wife. She feels she can't be happy without more money. She sees herself as having to live on a certain scale and she thinks everything about our marriage would suddenly be perfect if I made a lot of money. This whole question is really tearing me apart and I can't think of a solution that isn't going to upset somebody. — S. N.

Dear S N.: You have to be able to live with yourself and since you spend a good portion of your life at your work, it's essential that you please yourself in this matter.

If you could be happier being a carpenter, then by all means, follow your own feelings on this. Neither your father nor your wife can make this decision for you.

Your wife should know that money does not guarantee a happy marriage. It may help, but not if the breadwinner is discontented and anxious for the eight hours a day while the money is being earned. Studies conducted by Dr. Judson Landis, a sociologist, indicated that people tended to be the happiest during the time in their lives when they were working the hardest to make ends meet — not during the period when they were making the most money.

Money is the source of many arguments between husbands and wives and unless the couple takes time out to sit down, work out budgets and discuss attitudes about money, this subject can be a source of conflict and tension throughout their entire lives. Many disputes about how to spend money and how much money is needed to run a household could be settled by compromise. In your case, it is possible that your wife might be more contented if she earned spending money for herself or contributed to the family bank account.

The extra money you might make in a frustrating job may eventually cost not only your marital happiness but your health as well.

If you haven't already asked yourself why you feel as you do about the profession for which you trained, then it's time you try to analyze those feelings. Some men who enter the same professions as their fathers find that they have a special conflict in their career. On the one hand, they may have entered the profession to please a father they admire, and on the other hand, this very admiration may make them afraid of success for fear they will be placed in a position of competition with their parent. They may even choose failure rather than success in an attempt not to embarrass a parent, or tarnish a childhood image.

You are not alone in questioning what success means in your life. Recently, the American Management Association interviewed 2,800 businessmen and corporation executives and discovered an overwhelming 83 per cent agreed that their attitudes toward achievement and success are changing. Most of them said they feel their basic life objectives are personal, private, and family-centered. Success may really begin and end with finding out who you are, rather than what you do, or how much money you make.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white chiffon gown with a lace bodice edged in pearls. Her veil, edged in English lace, was held by a dome-shaped headpiece. The former Miss Pursell carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds and white baby's breath.

Miss Diane Santarelli was the maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Valeri Hill, Mrs. Beth Pollock Boswell, Miss Barbara Glen, Miss Laurie Landorf and Miss Vikki Sturdevant.

Mark Stapleton served as the groom's best man. Ushers were Mike England, Scott Jacobs, Gordon Akres, Jeff Draper and Dan Carrol.

Fatigue blamed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most accidents happen at midmorning and midafternoon. Many of these can be blamed on fatigue. That's why a University of Illinois safety specialist recommends the relaxation of a "coffee break."

Excessive noise leads to fatigue and hence helps cause accidents, says the expert, Ordie L. Hogsett.

Camp Fire Girls Offer new materials

This month, the Camp Fire Girls is releasing contemporary, action-oriented materials to the 400,000 members of the 63-year-old organization for youth.

The new materials for the Camp Fire Blue Birds and Adventures is in addition to the new books for Camp Fire Discovery Club and Horizon Club members published in 1971.

According to Miss Pat Bollin, executive director of Mt. San Antonio Council, the program for the 70's is completely new. Every major program book has been completely rewritten so materials are faithful to tradtional Camp Fire values, reflect the needs and interests of young people of today and help prepare them to deal competently and creatively with their futures.

Program revisions began three years ago, after consultation with leaders in education, youth work and human relations, Blue Bird and Adventure leaders, Discovery and Horizon Club members. The recommendation: An explicit re-statement of Camp Fire traditional forcus — to help young people learn what they need to know to become competent, caring and fulfilled adults.

The Camp Fire Program for the 70's is a program for adults of the future, dealing with contemporary concerns such as ecology, drugs, and family relations. It encourages self-development and self-awareness, builds skills in leadership, planning and decision-making; encourages the development of positive attitudes toward self and others and fosters a sense of community responsibility.

Outdoor activities are suggested on a year-round basis. Besides ecology, there is nature appreciation, outdoor play, camping games and skills, outdoor living, and community service. Other activities are designed to help children develop attitudes that oppose racism and sex-stereotyping. Girls are urged to develop ingenuity, creativity, initiative, perseverence, strength, autonomy, and self-confidence. Girls receive recognition for planning and decision-making as well as completion of projects.

Camp Fire Girls, Inc. was the first national, nonsectarian organization for girls in the United States. Founded 63 years ago, today's program is geared to different age levels—Camp Fire Blue Birds, ages 6 to 8; Camp Fire Adventurers, ages 9 to 11; Camp Fire Discovery Club, ages 12 to 13; and Camp Fire Horizon Club, ages 14 through high school.

Since 1971, membership in the high school age group has been open to boys. Group leadership is open to both women and men. The Mt. San Antonio Council serves 25 communities and 11,200 girls and adults in the Pomona-Walnut Valley, East San Gabriel Valley and west end of San Bernardino County.

Mt. San Antonio Council is a member agency of United Way, Inc. and West End United Way.

President says he's suffering from hay fever

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — President Nixon told reporters Thursday he is suffering from hay fever.

As a few reporters and photographers were admitted to the Oval Office for the start of a meeting by Nixon with some congressmen on trade legislation, the President remarked:

"The press is always interested in presidential health. If my eyes are swollen ... I'm having my usual bout with hay fever.

"It starts about the 5th of September and lasts till around the 3rd of October. I don't get it in the spring.

"It hits me in the eye. They say take shots. But I find the shots are worse than the hay fever."

The President did not say who they were who recommended shots. His doctors have insisted he does not have any allergies.

Beef dealer refunding $101,000 overpricing

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —A Philadelphia beef wholesaler will refund more than $101,000 to retail meat dealers as a result of violations of Phase III price regulations.

The Philadelphia office of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) also announced Tuesday that Kansas Beef Industries of Philadelphia, Inc., based in Wichita, Kan., would pay $20,000 in penalties for the same violations.

According to the IRS, the firm will refund $97,747 to retailers and make up the balance in price rollbacks. The company supplies about 5,000 customers in southeastern Pennsylvania, mostly small retail stores and restaurants.

The IRS said the action was the biggest such refund-rollback in this area, but a spokesman said it was not expected to affect consumers.

Marvin Kramer, president of Kansas Beef Industries, said some of the refunds already have been made.

The violations were discovered in July and August during inspections by IRS economic stabilization program investigators.

The violations involved the charging of wholesale prices in excess of the regulations issued by the federal government March 29.

Kramer said the overcharges were the result of "misinterpretation of the regulations."

Sock chewing may be foot in grave

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: Blacky, our young Labrador had developed expensive tastes. He has taken to eating socks in preference to anything else. He's not particular. They can be mine, my husband's or the kids'. Sometimes he simply chews the toe out or the heel, sometimes they simply disappear. Can you help a family with cold feet?—M.L.

DEAR M.L.: You'd better help yourself so that Blacky will quit helping himself—and soon. Blacky has been living on borrowed time since he started his stocking kick. A sock, stocking, or part thereof, will often become lodged in the stomach or intestines. The result is severe gastrointestinal disturbance, usually with continued vomiting. The stocking stuffer succumbs, usually, unless the doctor gets to him in time. Occasionally a series of enemas may flush out the footwear. More frequently, surgery is required to save the animal. (Surgery is no salvation unless it is brought in in time, of course.) The simplest solution is to stash stockings — ALL of them — away, so Blacky can't get to them. This is not only a money saver, it could be a dog saver, too.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Useless, my cat, loves to chew on these new food sticks. The people kind. I don't see any reason why they should hurt him. Is there? —O.L.

DEAR O.L.: Assuming the product you have in mind is not liberally laced with preservatives, it should be a very acceptable snack for Useless. A combination food product may occasionally contain an ingredient or two that a particular animal is allergic to or simply can't digest well. Obviously, Useless would show signs of indigestion in that case, and it would be prudent to discontinue the product or, at least, cut the consumption way down.

DEAR DR. MILLER: We think it would be kind of kicky to put a couple of baby turtles in our water bed. If we can get them in there, how would they do? —N.J.

DEAR N.J.: Poorly. If it is a heated waterbed they would be parboiled; if unheated, the water would be too cold initially and, in any event, too old and contaminated eventually whether or not you somehow managed to feed them. All in all, their survival time would be limited and prior to succumbing, their life would hardly be enjoyable. Better find some other way to make your waterbed kicky.

Predict wine boom good for 5 years

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The wine boom is good for another five years, but will "peak out" about 1978, according to Bank of America experts.

In a report issued recently, the bank said wine consumption in the United States, which has been increasing at a rapid rate in the past few years, will double again by 1980.

However, R. Gene Conatser, Bank of America vice president, said a "leveling of prices" is foreseen about 1978.

Growers who have made heavy wine plantings in the San Joaquin Valley may feel the economic effect first when supply catches up with demand, the bank said. The fine wine district in the Sonoma-Napa area has little to fear, according to the survey.

The bank also noted that California cannot expect to hold onto the 70 per cent of the American market which it now has. By 1980, wine from foreign countries and other states is expected to have 37 per cent of the U.S. market.

Rimless glasses safer for driving

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Rimless glasses or spectacles with black narrow rims are safer for drivers than stylish glasses with wide rims that reduce side vision, the Society for Technical and Scientific Information of Essen reports.

The society said it based its conclusion on tests conducted by racing and rally drivers. "But whatever kind of glasses you wear, the most important thing is to make sure they are clean before you start driving," it added.

Agnew spokesmen deny V.P. got favored treatment in rates at hotel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and the ITT-owned Sheraton Park Hotel said Thursday Agnew paid "basically the same" rate as other celebrities while living in the hotel.

CBS Morning News reported that the hotel granted Agnew a special rent discount during the 4½ years he lived there.

"He enjoyed a good rate," general manager Nord Schweibert told UPI. "It wasn't necessarily less than what we could get for that apartment. It was basically the same thing we would give to any noted celebrity."

Schweibert said the Sheraton Park grants prominent persons special rates because their names help attract customers.

Neither Schweibert nor Marsh Thomson, Agnew's press secretary, would disclose what Agnew paid. CBS said the suite rents for $1,900 a month and celebrities pay about a third of that.

The Agnews lived in the five room Apartment G400, which Schweibert described as "one of the two or three finest" suites in the luxury 1,375-room hotel near Rock Creek Park

They were there from the time Agnew took office in January, 1969, until last June 1 when they moved into a home they are buying in suburban Kenwood, Md.

Schweibert said Lyndon B. Johnson lived in the same suite for a short time while he was vice president and paid a corresponding rate.

"It's a trumped up kind of story when it's made to appear that the vice president received some special, advantageous kind of treatment."

In Baltimore, a federal grand jury investigating alleged kickbacks to Maryland politicians reconvened Thursday, under tight security, for its first session in 15 days.

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has said he will decide whether the grand jury should investigate allegations that Agnew accepted kickbacks. Agnew is a former Baltimore County executive and Maryland governor.

"The purpose is to assure the grand jury secrecy," U.S. Attorney George Beall told reporters. "To protect that as best as humanly possible, certain steps have been taken to protect the privacy of the proceedings."

"There have been no decisions made by the attorney general today regarding the investigation of Vice President Agnew. There is no evidence being presented to the grand jury today concerning the vice president. The tight security is to preserve the privacy of the grand jury proceedings We don't want to have a duplication of the weak security around the Watergate grand jury."

MANAUS, Brazil (UPI) — Police authorities are considering the incineration of 40,000 skins of Amazon jungle animals. The skins were confiscated by government wildlife preservation agents and include pelts of several varieties of jungle wildcats.

L.A. Kiddie Corps snaps slump, 8-6

LOCAL-NATIONAL Sports

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

HOUSTON — In Cincinnati, the newcomers from Indianapolis are getting most of the headlines.

But the Los Angeles Dodgers still have their Kiddie Corps from Albuquerque.

Tom Paciorek, Ron Cey, Charlie Hough, Davey Lopes and Steve Yeager were the Albuquerque graduates starring for the Dodgers Thursday in an 8-6 victory over the Houston Astros at the Dome.

With the victory, the Dodgers gain a half game on the idle Reds, moving to 4½ games behind the National League West leaders. It is significant since it's the first time in two weeks that L. A. has been able to gain ground on Cincy.

Thursday's win at the Astrodome also gives the Dodgers more hope they can win the flag the final 15 games of the season. The big goal is to gain some ground before the key three-game weekend series against the Reds at Dodger Stadium on Sept. 21-23.

"There's still time," Cey said. "We know how fast a four game lead can disappear. We have our backs to the wall but we mustn't quit."

"Even if we finish second, a strong finish will give us added confidence for next year," the Penquin added. "With our youth, we can't help but to improve in future years."

Cey broke out of his batting slump by belting a two-run homer, his 14th, and a double.

Paciorek, who has been unhappy with the lack of playing, continues to make full use of his latest opportunity.

He pounded out a double and single in five at-bats to extend his hitting streak to seven games. In the stretch, the former University of Houston football star has raised his average from .230 to .285.

"I've been trying to follow Manny Mota's style," Paciorek said. "I've been looking for good pitches and trying to hit the ball up the middle. I feel more confident at the plate. I don't worry any more when I'm down two strikes."

But Paciorek is still anxious to earn big money as a regular.

"Nobody on the Dodgers has said anything to me about my future," he said. "But something has to be done this winter. Either they must make room for me or get rid of me. I can't go through another summer like this."

Paciorek, who played football at the Astrodome, was drafted by the Miami Dolphins as a safety. But he signed with the Dodgers because he felt he had a better future in baseball.

"I've always felt I've had the ability and I think I've shown it in the minor leagues," Paciorek continued. "But I've been very discouraged by the lack of opportunity to show it. I am sure I could produce runs if I played everyday."

Hough, who had his problems at Cincinnati Wednesday, controlled his knuckleball Thursday as he blanked the Astros through the final 3 2-3 innings to save Tommy John's 13th victory.

Lopes added three hits including the go-ahead double.

John, who was sailing along with a 7-3 lead entering the bottom of the sixth, was shelled for three quick runs with Jimmy Wynn's double knocking in two to put John out of the game.

Hough got out of the jam and proceeded to strike out six Astros the rest of the way.

"It's a matter of getting a set windup," Hough said. "I've been changing it so much this year. Ninty per cent of it is control. When we're ahead, the other team has to hit it. When it's working, it's fairly effective."

Manager Walt Alston had special praise for Yeager.

"He did a heck-of-a-job catching that knuckler," the Dodger skipper said. "There's a lot of fight in him."

It looked like it would be another one of those nights for the Dodger when the Astros had scored single runs in the first three innings for a 3-2 lead. But L. A. took advantage of a couple of breaks in the fourth to score three runs and Cey followed with his homer in the fifth to build the lead.

Probably the biggest play of the game came in the fourth after Joe Ferguson and Steve Garvey singled to open the frame. Cey followed with a grounder to third baseman Doug Rader, who had a perfect opportunity for a quick double play but failed to touch third base as umpire Ed Vargo ruled that Ferguson was safe.

Houston lefthander Dave Roberts, who is usually tough on the Dodgers, struck out Yeager for the second out and intentionally walked Bill Russell to load the bases for John.

However, the move backfired when John drew a walk on a 3-2 pitch to force home Ferguson with the tying run and Lopes followed with a two-run double to give L.A. a permanent lead.

Bill Russell, who by-passed Albuquerque, belted a double in the second inning to score the Dodgers first two runs.

DODGER NOTES: The Dodgers won't have to face James Rodney Richards, the Astros' hard-throwing righthander. Richards, who was scheduled to pitch tonight, suffered a shoulder separation when he fell off of his motorcycle Thursday. He will miss the rest of the season . . . Lefthander Jerry Reuss (15-10) will face Andy Messersmith (12-10) tonight . . Astrodome officials say they have already sold 19,000 tickets with a forecast of a final 30,000 for next Thursday's battle of the sexes between Bobby Riggs and Billy Jean King. Prices for the tennis spectacular range from $6 to $100 . . . The Astrodome will be busy next week. There will be a baseball doubleheader Wednesday, the Riggs-King battle Thursday, and a University of Houston football game Friday with Henry Aaron and the Braves coming to town Saturday . . . Houston was mathematically eliminated from the pennant race Thursday. It has been a frustrating campaign for the Astros, who had figured to be a top contender . . . The Astros' Roger Metzger leads the National League in triples with 13.

Top jock, hot horse in feature

POMONA — Marion R. Frankel's eight-year-old Pataha Prince, running in the best form of his career, will make his debut at the Los Angeles County Fair Saturday when he heads a field of four in the $15,000-added Governor's Cup.

First post time for the initial Saturday program of the 14-day meeting is 1 p.m.

Steve Valdez, fresh from a brilliant season at Del Mar where he easily captured the riding title, will also be appearing here for the first time as he breaks Pataha Prince from the inside post position in the six-furlong event.

Named to face the Bobby Frankel-trained speedster are Busy Chief, Jeff David and Host Dream. With four starters there will be win and place wagering only.

Pataha Prince raced in the claiming ranks during the early part of 1973, but since joining the Frankel barn he has shown sharp improvement. He tallied at seven and one-half furlongs on the turf in his first outing at Del Mar. Later came back to win the six-furlong Bing CrosbyHandicap in 1.08 and most recently lost a narrow decision to Silver Mallet in the Longacres mile in Washington.

Busy Chief, to be ridden by Larry Gilligan, is fresh from a game victory over Jeff David in a Del Mar sprint. The Chieftain colt chased Pataha Prince in the Bing Crosby Handicap in which each horse carried 114 pounds.

Busy Chief will pack 119 Saturday while Pataha Prince carries 122.

Although winless at Del Mar, Jeff David looked in good form with three straight runner-up efforts. The blocky little gelding won two races at the Pomona oval in 1971. Jerry Lambert has the jock on Jeff David.

Rudy Rosales was named on Host Dream who has been competing in the claiming ranks. He was one of the early leaders in the "Old-Timers Race at Del Mar.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle talks about blackout ban

Armchair QBs can rejoice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, an ardent sports enthusiast, was expected to sign into law today legislation which would enable pro football fans to watch on television the sold-out home games of their favorite teams. Congress, uncharacteristically, acted on the anti-blackout bill with the speed of a wide receiver. It took just one week for the measure to move through the committee process and gain approval by both the Senate and the House.

The bill, which passed the House on a rollcall vote of 366 to 37 Thursday and was approved by voice vote of the Senate minutes later, provides that any game sold out 72 hours in advance would be televised to hometown audiences, which have traditionally been blacked out.

The new law would apply only to sports events which are part of a national TV contract.

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., a former Buffalo Bills quarterback, said after the House vote, "I think the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution was the last thing that passed the Congress this fast."

In New York, National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle, a staunch opponent of the blackout ban, said the league would allow the televising of sold-out season openers Sunday, despite the fact that the 72-hour stipulation of the bill technically expired hours before final congressional action.

Although bowing to the congressional order, Rozelle warned the bill will ultimately have an undermining effect on the sport.

"We think football may become a studio show," Rozelle said. "We want people in the stands."

All games played this weekend in the NFL will be televised to hometown audiences, with four possible exceptions, Rozelle said.

He said that as of Thursday, Atlanta at New Orleans, San Francisco at Miami, Baltimore at Cleveland, and Buffalo at New England were not sellouts.

The lawmakers who approved the bill will be able to watch the defending National Conference champion Washington Redskins home game with San Diego in the comfort of their homes. Every ticket for each of the Redskins seven home games were sold by early summer. In the past, even many members of Congress had been unable to get tickets.

The speedy action Thursday was made possible when the Senate agreed to a House amendment of the bill to provide that the blackout cover a three-year experimental period. The Senate has called for a one-year experiment.

Secretariat may not be ready

NEW YORK (UPI) —Despite a sensational workout Wednesday, Secretariat still is a shade under peak physical condition for Saturday's $250,000 Marlboro Cup while Riva Ridge was as sharp as a razor, trainer Lucien Laurin said today.

"I would say Secretariat is within 90 per cent of peak form and I wish I had another week to go. But he is his old self, full of pep, eating every oat and eager to run. I expect him to run a good race and I think we will have a very fast race. I think they will go in 46 or better," said the man who has trained five of the last six Triple Crown winners in Secretariat and Riva Ridge.

Seven brilliant horses are scheduled to clash in the 1½ mile race. They will be shooting for a $150,000 winner's purse and the American record for the distance of 1:46 1-5, set by Figonero at Del Mar in 1969 and equalled by Canonero last year when he beat Riva Ridge in the Stymie Handicap at Belmont Park.

Laurin said he would not root for either of his horses but would try to remain neutral during the running of the race.

"Wouldn't it be great if they finished in a dead head?" he asked.

Laurin has another problem, telling jockey Ron Turcotte on Secretariat how to beat Riva Ridge and giving Eddie Maple on Riva Ridge instructions for the upset of Secretariat.

"It's a funny situation," he admitted. "I want both horses on their own and the best one to win. And they are pretty close right now. Secretariat is a bit below his best. Riva Ridge is like a tiger right now. I guess the jockeys will have to be on their own.

"If Secretariat had not worked that fast, five furlongs in 57, he would not have started. If he had come back in 58 or 59 I was not going to run him," Laurin revealed.

"As you know Secretariat gets away slowly but once he gets rolling no horse can stay with him. I would hate to see the two of them get tied up in a speed duel," he said.

"There's no chance of that," said Maple who will ride Riva Ridge for the first time in the Marlboro. He was aboard the colt for the only time in a workout Tuesday.

"There's not much difference between the horses right now," said Turcotte who had his choice of mounts. "I think Secretariat is the better horse. Riva Ridge has an edge in training."

The two jockeys, with the permission of Laurin, will split their share of whatever they earn.

Charlie Whittingham has the same problem with Cougar II and Kennedy Road, each owned by different persons. Willie Shoemaker rides Cougar for Mrs. Mary F. Jones with Don Pierce on Kennedy Road for Mrs. Arthur Stollery.

"Both jockeys have ridden these horses before and they know them," he said, adding, "besides jockeys don't pay any attention to what you tell them anyway."

Braulio Baeza, who knows Key to the Mint well, rides that colt for the Rockeby Stable, with Angel Cordero on Annihilate 'Em and Jorge Velasquez on Onion.

Billie Jean's blood disease tests postponed

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI)—Billie Jean King plans today to undergo a delayed series of tests that could show whether she is suffering from hypoglycemia, a blood disease that could stop her tennis match next week with Bobby Riggs.

Billie Jean had planned to have the tests Thursday but Anna Lee, her secretary, said Billie Jean's doctor wanted her to exercise prior to the tests.

Mrs. King plans to remain here until the weekend when she is scheduled to fly to Houston for a tournament prior to her Astrodome match with Riggs, billed as another tennis battle of the sexes.

She arrived last Sunday to tape a series of matches for television still suffering from influenza contracted during the U.S. Open tennis championships and began taking blood tests Monday.

Billie Jean had a mild bout with hypoglycemia, which is too little sugar in the blood, about three years ago, and doctors apparently have feared that she might have a recurrence.

She and her husband, Larry, have insisted the Riggs match will be played as scheduled unless the tests turn up "something drastic."

Injury fails to darken Kessler's bright future

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

HOUSTON — The Cincinnati Reds have a habit of bringing up rookies to help out in their pennant drives.

One of these years, Claremont's Brad Kessler may have his chance with the Big Red Machine.

That's the opinion of Ron Plaza, who managed Kessler this summer on the Reds' rookie club at Bradenton, Florida.

"I was quite pleased with Brad's development," Plaza said about the Reds' top choice in the June free agent draft.

"He did very well for a young boy of 17 just out of high school."

In fact, Kessler did so well at Bradenton, he was promoted to the Reds, farm club at Seattle, Washington in the Northwest League, first step up the ladder.

Unfortunately, Kessler's season at Seattle lasted only three innings. He returned to Claremont early with an ankle injury.

"We were hoping Brad could play winter ball but at the last report from Doctor Frank Jobe of the Dodgers indicated he isn't ready because of the swelling," Plaza said.

"We'll just have to wait and see."

Kessler played all three outfield positions for Plaza but he was best in right field.

"He seemed more comfortable in right," Plaza explained. "I also wanted to take advantage of his strong arm. "It got stronger throughout the season and he is accurate."

According to Plaza, Kessler's biggest asset is his strength.

"He has the type of bat any organization likes to have," Plaza added. "He is aggressive at the plate and can hit to all fields."

The Bradenton skipper was also impressed with Kessler's attitude. "He accepted everything very well," Plaza said. "It's tough starting out in pro ball expecially that far way from home. He's timid and shy off the field but aggressive in the game. It's like going to school again."

Pete Rose better watch out. Brad Kessler may be going after his job in a few years.

USC ready to open title defense

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — University of Southern California, a magnificent football machine that ripped through 12 opponents last season, opens defense of its national championship Saturday night and the No. I rated Trojans are three-touchdown favorites against Arkansas.

"I don't think these odds are in line," said USC coach John McKay, whose team whipped the Razorbacks 31-10 in its first game last year at Little Rock.

"I know Frank Broyles has a young team but I also know that Frank Broyles isn't in the habit of recruiting bad athletes. I expect a tough game."

McKay, 50, will find it hard to top 1972, a season his Trojans climaxed by smashing Woody Hayes and Ohio State into the ground 42-17 in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day.

Nebraska served notice last weekend that it wants to take away USC's national title by trouncing a highly regarded UCLA team 40-13 at Lincoln. The Bruins are expected to come in second to USC in the Pacific-8 race.

"To win the national title," McKay said, "you have to have the right people, have the right schedule, have people knocked off you don't play and be a little lucky.

"We have the age old worry about guys who played well as sophomores and juniors realizing that the reason they played well is because they worked hard.

"They can't stand still. They have to get better. We won't go too long with a player who's done it before and isn't doing it now. Complacency ruins football teams."

McKay's teams have won three national crowns in the past 11 seasons and the Trojans do have the nucleus of their 1972 squad back, including two second team All-Americas as sophomores —tailback Anthony Davis and linebacker Richard Wood.

In McKay's I formation, the tailback is practically the whole offense and Davis, a Heisman Trophy candidate, compares with two of USC's great runners of the recent past — O.J. Simpson and Mike Garrett, who were Heisman winners. He gained 1,191 yards and scored 17 touchdowns rushing as a sophomore, the first Trojan sophomore to hit the magic 1,000-yard mark.

Also in the backfield is Lynn Swann, a flanker who grabbed 27 passes for 543 yards and three touchdowns last season. Swann, a senior, is a Heisman Trophy candidate.

Pat Haden, who played behind the departed Mike Rae at quarterback last fall, takes over at quarterback for the Trojans and McKay calls him "the best passer, college or pro, I've ever seen."

In Wood, the Trojans think they have the best collegiate linebacker in the country. Wood called the defensive signals as a sophomore and led USC in tackles with 129, 30 more than any other player on the team. He also intercepted five passes and returned one for a touchdown.

"Richard will be improved this year, too," said McKay flatly.

For the first time in more than a decade, Arkansas isn't considered a championship threat in the Southwest Conference, a league which Texas is expected to take apart.

The Razorbacks are coming off a 6-5 season and their top returnee is all-SWC halfback Dickey Morton, who was the league's most productive rusher last year with 1,188 yards. Morton is only one of three returning starters.

"We have so many young players," said Broyles, the Arkansas coach, "that on the experience level we just barely rank above a junior college team."

Yaz pulls for Hank

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) —He describes himself as "an angry 72 year old" in his letter, and what he's so fired up angry about, he says, is all this "partiality" Hank Aaron is being shown over Babe Ruth.

He's writing from Ashland, Ohio, but that in itself isn't significant, he might just as easily be doing so from Friendship, Tenn., Drumright, Okla., San Anselmo, Calif., or Baraboo, Wis.

The senior citizens around the country feel Babe Ruth is getting the short end of the bat and that nobody really is speaking up for him with Hank Aaron bearing down on his all-time home run record.

"Babe Ruth hit his 714 home runs in 8,399 at bats and Aaron has 710 in 11,247 times up, how can you even compare them?" asks the Ashland letter-writer.

"Ruth did it without helmets; without livelier balls; without better bats and without the longer season."

True enough, but if this isn't a private fight, Carl Yastrzemski would like to get a couple of words in.

Right up front he says he's a Hank Aaron man first and foremost

"If he breaks Ruth's record, and it looks as if he will, I say it has to be the greatest accomplishment in the entire history of sports," says Boston's sweet-swinging 10-time all-star.

"Ruth never had to play night ball. He never had to contend with the slider either. It's so difficult to pick up a good hard slider under the lights. The ball is just a blur. In the daytime though, you can pick up the spin on the ball, and if you don't think that makes a tremendous difference, go ask someone like Stan Musial. I think Musial said it all when he explained how the entire game has changed from the time when he broke in. Stan said all he used to see when he first came up was fast ball, curve. That was all he used to look for. But when the pitchers added the slider, he said there was a whole different concept. It made hitting the ball all that harder."

Yastrzemski comes into the Aaron-Ruth debate with some credentials of his own.

Since reporting to the Red Sox 12 years ago, he has belted 284 home runs of his own to put him 15th on the list among active players and 41st on the all-time list.

"Night baseball more than makes up for any advantage people say Aaron has over Ruth," says Yaz. "In my opinion anyway How many day games has Aaron played the past few years? Not very many. Ballplayers from the old days say riding the trains was much rougher than riding the planes we do today.

I don't know about that, and I've ridden some trains, too. I know a lot of players who don't like riding airplanes. I'm not that crazy about them either, but I know I have to do it. I think that makes for a little added pressure.

"I never saw Babe Ruth," adds the Red Sox 34-year-old superstar. "The only way I've gotten to know anything about him is through Mr. Yawkey (Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey). He told me what a great ballplayer he was and how he had a heart as big as a clubhouse. When I was supposed to go to the All-Star Game before I got hurt a little while back, Mr. Yawkey gave me a message to deliver to Hank Aaron, though.

"He wanted to make sure Hank got it personally, and since he knows most of the mail sent him ends up with his personal secretary, he asked me if I'd hand-carry the message. I said sure, but because of the injury, I never got to go to Kansas City. Mr Yawkey wanted me to wish Hank all the luck in the world and tell him he was pulling for him to break the record. I feel the same way. I check out Hank every day to see how he's doing. I hope he makes it this year."

Sports news in brief

LOSANGELES (UPI) —Jim Youngblood, rookie middle linebacker, was sidelined Thursday during the Los Angeles Rams' practice because of a pulled hamstring.

Youngblood, who plays behind Jack Reynolds, may not see any action against the Kansas City Chiefs, the Rams' opening opponent Sunday.

MIAMI (UPI)—All-pro defensive end Bill Stanfill was hospitalized Thursday with a recurring stomach ailment that will further deplete the defensive line the Miami Dolphins will field against San Francisco Sunday.

DENVER (UPI) —The Denver Broncos named four rookies and three veterans to the taxi squad Thursday. The club also announced the signing of two more players, leaving only punter Bill Van Heusen yet to approve a contract

SAN DIMAS, Calif. (UPI) — Playing in a drizzle, three pros shot 69s Thursday to tie for the first-round lead in the $25,000 Western Tournament Golf Association event at Via Verde Country Club.

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (UPI)— Although he will have to fly across the Atlantic Ocean twice to do it, Tom Weiskopf said Thursday he will enter the Ohio-Kings Island Open Oct. 4-7 at the Jack Nicklaus Golf Center.

Buckeyes favored by 19 over young, inexperienced Gophers

By United Press International

If Coach Cal Stoll is somewhat worried about his youth movement at the University of Minnesota, you can't really blame him.

After all, how many coaches would look with optimism at the thought of their team—half filled with freshmen and sophomores—opening the season before 86,000 screaming fans at Columbus, Ohio—home of the powerful Ohio State Buckeyes?

It's not a cheery thought and Stoll can be forgiven if he asks for a little patience for his youth program at this juncture of the season. "It's an uneasy feeling not knowing how your rookies will react before 86,000 wildly partisan fans in Columbus,' Stoll says.

"But," he adds bravely, "I believe our young men will react well. It's not the first time they've played before packed houses—although never 86,000."

The oddsmakers like Ohio State by better than 19 points— and that's without senior quarterback Greg Hare who is sidelined with a leg injury.

Ohio State isn't the only top-rated power picked to breeze by the experts in the first full week of college action. Defending national champion Southern California is a 25-point favorite over Arkansas, Alabama is rated 22 over California, Tennessee is 19 over Duke, Auburn is tabbed 20 over Oregon State, Michigan is a 16-point pick over Iowa and Oklahoma is rated 13½ better than Baylor.

Once again, Woody Hayes, that marvelous and congenial friend of all, has assembled a squad chock full of All-American candidates. Whether or not the Buckeyes can get past Michigan at season's end remains to be seen, but Stoll's inexperienced Gophers shouldn't pose too many problems for this Saturday

Hare, who quarterbacked last year's Buckeyes to a 9-2 mark, is out with a leg injury. In his place will be sophomore Cornelius Greene, the first black ever to call signals at Ohio State. Hayes is high on Greene, who impressed in spring drills and pre-season, but there's also the matter of Ohio State's devastating running game.

Led by last year's super frosh Archie Griffin (867 yards) and the methodical Champ Henson, who led the NCAA in touchdowns in '72, Minnesota's defensive unit will get a rude and unenviable test in this first encounter of the season.

Ohio State also has the horses on defense, headed by the trio of Randy Gradishar, Vic Koegel and Rick Middleton—perhaps the best linebacking unit in the nation.

With the majority of the nation's elite not expected to run into any obstacles this soon, much of the Saturday focus figures to center around two key intersectional matchups: Colorado-LSU and Penn State-Stanford.

The Colorado-LSU meeting, while maybe resembling a leftover from last New Year's Day, is actually a September rematch of two years ago. The Buffs won that one—also at Baton Rouge—31-21. And although two of the key Colorado performers in that upset are still around—quarterback Ken Johnson and running back Charlie Davis, Coach Eddie Crowder says they'll be on the bench for this one.

Still, the oddsmakers like Colorado by three. Perhaps maybe they've never been to Baton Rouge with a bottle of bourbon on the opening Saturday night of the football season.

Penn State, which looks very similar on paper to Coach Joe Paterno's previous Eastern powers, will go with Tom Shuman in place of the graduated John Hufnagel in the pivotal quarterback position in its nationally-televised game at Stanford.

The cross-country trip and the presence of highly-touted Mike Boryla at quarterback for the Cardinals haven't swayed the experts too far either as Penn State is listed as a touchdown favorite.

49ers have new prospect

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—If confidence counts, then the San Francisco 49ers have got a good prospect in newly-obtained running back Randy Jackson.

Jackson, who survived a plane crash in which 29 out of 40 died while playing at Wichita State, was obtained from Buffalo in a trade that sent defensive tackle Earl Edwards to the Bills for Jackson anda draft pick.

"I think I can run inside or outside and consider myself a good blocker," said Jackson, who figures to see a lot of action Sunday at Miami.

Blancas fires 66 in the rain to lead Heritage by a stroke

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI)—Not even rain could slow Homero Blancas, out front by a stroke going into today's second round of the $150,000 Heritage Open golf classic.

Blancas survived intermittent rain and two delays in play Thursday to post a 5 under par 66 that survived a late charge by big Jim Wiechers and winless John Mahaffey.

His putting gave him seven birds, including the last two with 30-footers, and he credited the plush greens of the 6,655-yard Harbour Town Golf links with soaking up the water and a lot of hazards.

"When you get spike marks and it rains, it washes them out," he said. "Every green has good grass on it. They're putting absolutely great."

Wiechers and Mahaffey, who each had a string of three consecutive birdies, were a stroke ahead of Bert Yancey, the West Point graduate who captured last year's American Golf Classic.

Gary Player, who posted his first victory of the season in last week's Southern Open, headed a group at 2 under 69 that included rookie Ben Crenshaw, Jerry Heard, Hale Irwin, Bob Wynn and Cesar Sanoudo.

Another stroke back were Arnold Palmer, Julius Boros, George Archer, Dewitt Weaver Jr., Forrest Fezler, Grier Jones, Sam Adams and Tom Watson.

Officials twice suspended play as rain and lightning plagued the tight little course that Player calls "the best championship golf course I've every played."

Montview league scrimmage

Gridders prep for openers

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — After two weeks of conditioning and intrasquad practicing the valley prep gridders are anxious to get the new season underway.

The 1973 openers are still one week away for Montview League hopefuls Charter Oak, Nogales and Rowland. But these clubs will get an early indication as to the strengths and weaknesses of their teams Saturday when they engage in scrimmages

Charter Oak will get an early test from Bob Biaz' San Dimas club. The Saints, 5-4 last year and 3-4 in the Hacienda League, have some big holes to fill with the losses of Jeff Nelson, Wayne Moses, Bob Rollins, and Bob Diaz who moved along to the college ranks.

But SD will have 13 letterman returning and a host of players up from an undefeated junior varsity team.

The Lancers, who already know how good a blocker fullback Nick Howard is, will find out how good he is at carrying the ball. Head coach Wayne Fetters has already indicated the potentiality of a 1,000 yard season for Howard.

CO fans will also get a look-see at quarterback Tom Merrill and find out if he's as accurate at throwing a football as he is at throwing a baseball.

The scrum is slated for 7 p.m. at Charter Oak.

Archie Carter's Nogales team is looking forward to this morning workout with Garey, which will begin at 8 a.m. at Nogales, for some time.

"Our practices have been up and down, good and bad," said Carter. "I blame it on the sun. The weather recently has been mostly overcast. And on those days we seem to look real good. But when the sun comes out the kids seem to have bad days. I don't know what the problem is.

"We have been polishing up our offense and defense to where we're looking great against ourselves. Now we need to work against somebody else."

The Nobles will be trying to improve upon a 2-7 mark and have 15 returning lettermen to give the squad some experience.

Rowland will get a good workout at 8:30 this morning from Gladstone on the Gladiator field.

The Raiders, 1-6-2 last year, have a host of young talent and coach Gary Rawls is anxious to see them under fire.

"We have a lot of young kids we're trying to bring around fast," said Rawls.

These scrums will be the last opportunity for the coaches to view their players in game-type situations before the season begins next Friday and Saturday night.

UNK CATCHES ON — Alexander Fernandez finally has lost his Pincay image and has found himself on the California riding circuit.

Fernandez, who is Pincay's uncle, was the hotest reinsmen during the fianl stages of the Del Mar meeting. And horsemen are singing his praises as they prepare to head north for forthcoming action at Oak Tree.

Fernandez was at both the Santa Anita and Hollypark meets without much success. Why the sudden change?

I think it came about when he went north and rode a few on the fair circuit," said agent Pete Wilson. "He's a different rider now. He's not trying to follow Laffit's style or anyone elses. And he'll prove to be one of the best around, too," the former pro baseballer says with confidence.

49ers challenge Dolphins in NFL's feature opener Sunday

By United Press International

The San Francisco 49ers will be trying to do a little blackout lifting of their own Sunday.

The National Football League was forced by the government to withdraw its blackout policy on sold-out home games Thursday but the blackout the 49ers are most concerned with is the one the Miami Dolphins have thrown against opponents on the field.

The Dolphins take a 15-game regular season-winning streak against San Francisco in the National Football League season opener at Miami's Orange Bowl and hope to use the 49ers as a stepping stone toward tying the pro record of 17 straight victories the following week against Oakland.

Veteran John Brodie is expected to lead the 49er offense after his annual summer battle with reserve Steve Spurrier. Brodie threw for 611 yards and four touchdowns in pre-season.

San Francisco' running game has been hurting with Vic Washington, its big outside threat, bothered with a knee injury. The 49ers picked up speedy Randy Jackson earlier in the week from Buffalo but he may not have absorbed enough of the offense to get much time.

Miami returns much the same team that carried the Dolphins to a Super Bowl title last season and actually may be even stronger. Quarterback Bob Griese missed most of last season with a broken leg but is back healthy and Marlin Briscoe, a pass reception leader at Buffalo a few years back, is looking to unseat veteran Howard Twilley at wide receiver.

Larry Csonka, Jim Kick and Mercury Morris again will be the running backs.

In other openers, San Diego is at Washington, Oakland at Minnesota, Dallas at Chicago, Detroit at Pittsburgh, Los Angeles at Kansas City, Houston at the New York Giants, Baltimore at Cleveland, Cincinnati at Denver, Atlanta at New Orleans, St. Louis at Philadelphia and Buffalo at New England. The New York Jets meet Green Bay in Milwaukee in the Monday night opener.

George Allen's teams have never lost an opener—winning seven in a row—and the Redskins are favored to keep that string alive against San Diego. The running game is improved with the addition of Duane Thomas. Bill Kilmer will be the quarterback for Washington, having beaten out veteran Sonny Jurgensen, while 40-year-old John Unitas makes his first regular season appearance in a San Diego uniform at quarterback.

Oakland meets a strong Minnesota team that handed the Raiders their only preseason loss, a 34-10 drubbing. Both clubs are favored in their divisions and many say this could be a Super Bowl preview.

Joger Staubach will be the quarterback for Dallas against the Bears while Pittsburgh hopes to have star running back Franco Harris ready for Detroit. John Hadl makes his regular season debut at quarterback for Los Angeles against Kansas City while the Giants, unbeaten in pre-season play, try to keep their winning habits against a Houston team that won only once last season.

Rookie Bert Jones makes his first official start at quarterback for Baltimore against Cleveland.

Major league roundup

Pirates finally make their move

By United Press International

The Pittsburgh Pirates may be making their move—finally.

The Pirates, kingpins in the shaky NL Eastern Division and pre-season favorites, won their third game of a four-game series with the Chicago Cubs 6-1 Thursday as Willie Stargell provided the punch, driving in two runs.

The win gave the Pirates a one-game lead over idle St. Louis and shoved the Cubs back into fifth place, 4½ games behind.

"Coming here and taking three out of four was the thing to do," said Stargell, who upped his National League leading RBI total to 107 when he doubled home two runs in the first inning.

"Even though it's great to be in first place, we still can't take anything for granted. We'll see what happens, but when you're in first place the other clubs have to catch you," added Stargell.

The Pirates are not about to claim anything yet, especially since the Montreal Expos are only 1 ½ games behind and the New York Mets, who topped Philadelphia 4-2 in 12 innings to get in the running, are 2 ½ out.

In other sparse major league action, Los Angeles topped Houston 9-6 and San Francisco downed San Diego 8-6 in the NL while in the American League, Baltimore nipped Milwaukee in 10 8-7, New York edged Boston 2-1 in 12 and Kansas City nipped California 5-4.

Taking advantage of three Cub errors in the first inning, the Pirates scored three runs. Bob Moose and Ramon Hernandez combined to handcuff Chicago on just six hits. Moose posted his fourth shutout, yielding five hits before Hernandez took over in the eighth.

"I didn't consider it any kind of a pressure game," said Pirates' Manager Danny Murtaugh as his club earned its' fifth victory in seven games since he replaced Bill Virdon Sept. 6.

Pinch-hitter Steve Ontiveros rapped a two-run homer, the rookie's first in the majors, in the top of the ninth inning to rally San Francisco over San Diego before a crowd of only 2,586.

Pinch-hitter Wayne Garrett singled home Lute Barnes to snap a 2-2 tie and help the Mets beat the Phils. Tom Seaver won his 17th and struck out 12, increasing his NL leading total to 237.

Bill Russell drove in three runs with a two-run double and a sacrifice fly and Dave Lopes and Ron Cey each drove in two runs to lift the Dodgers over Houston.

In the AL East, Baltimore is threatening to make a shambles of any pennant race. The Orioles upped their lead to seven games by beating Milwaukee

Rookie Doug DeCinces, who singled home the winning run, took high honors in the Orioles' "Kiddie Corps." Baltimore had eight rookies in its lineup and with the win, reduced their title-clinching magic number to 10 games.

Thurman Munson, who drove in New York's first run in the eighth, came through again with one out in the 12th to drive home Horace Clarke with the winning run against Boston and snap a four-game Yankee losing streak.

John Mayberry singled home two unearned runs in the fifth inning and pinch-hitter Lou Piniella knocked in a pair in the eighth as the Royals defeated California. The win put KC 4½ games behind the Western Division leading Oakland. The Royals have 16 games left while the A's have 17.

Robby belts HR No. 26

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Frank Robinson's 26th homer didn't produce enough to win for the California Angels but it brought him a club record and other statistics.

He beat Ken Hunt's old mark of 25 homers for a

angels

right-handed batter set when the Angels played in tiny Wrigley Field in 1961.

Robinson also tied Cap Anson, who played for the Chicago White Sox before the turn of the century, for 15th place on the all-time list of runs scored with 1,712. In total bases, he tied Mel Ott of the old New York Giants with 5,041.

Robinson's homer could have tied the game but the Kansas City Royals won it 5-4. They are second in the American League West 4 ½ games behind Oakland.

In the eighth inning, Mickey Rivers singled in a run, then went to second on Ken Berry's grounder but thought he was out. Umpire Bill Haller called him safe but Rivers had walked off the bag. He then bolted for third but was caught in a rundown. As a result Robinson's homer was good only for two runs.

An error by shortstop Rudy Meoli set the stage for two unearned Royal runs in the fifth. John Mayberry singled them home to run his RBI total to 96.

The Royals got three more runs to make it 5-0 in the eighth on singles by pinch-hitter Lou Piniella and Cookie Rojas. Al Fitzmorris, 7-2, got the victory with help from Doug Bird.

Rich Hand, 5-6, took the loss. He had to leave in the seventh because of a stiff shoulder.

In the second game of a four-game series, Steve Busby, 14-13, faces rookie Frank Tanana, 0-1, tonight.

History of gardening is Cal Poly coed's interest

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Cal Poly coed Mary Lynne Olson has prepared a series of articles for the California Association of Nurserymen, distributed throughout the state, about the interesting facts of garden, ancient and modern. A North Hollywood resident, she has been enrolled at Cal Poly in horticultural education following history studies at Cal State Los Angeles.

Her articles, beginning today, will appear for six weeks on the P-B's Home and Garden page. The material is the result of her own freelance studies into the subject, since no college courses are offered on the history of gardening and garden practices.)

By MARY LYNNE ALSON

"Garden are the link between men and the world in which they live for men in every age have felt the need to reconcile themselves with their surroundings and have created gardens to satisfy their ideals and aspirations."

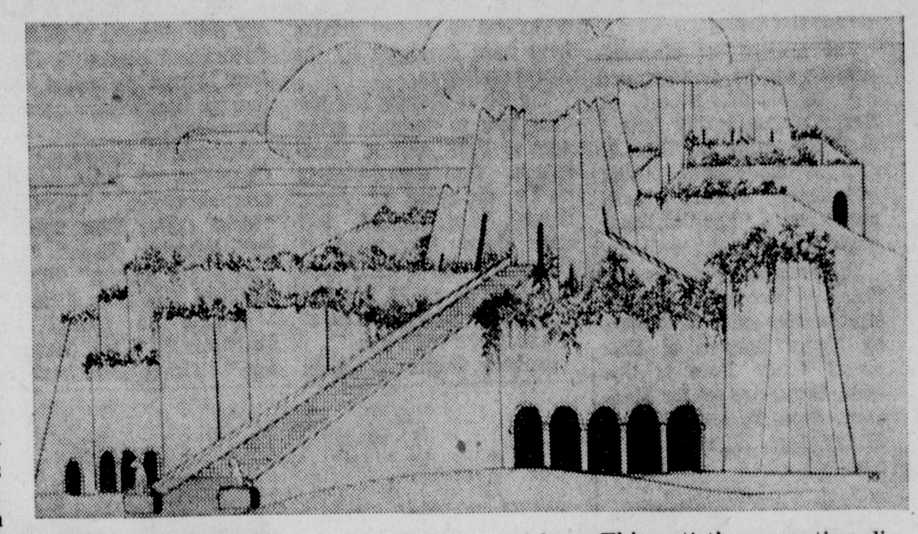
Silvia Crowe

GARDEN DESIGN

There are many interesting and romantic stories behind many of the famous gardens of history. The fabulous Hanging Gardens of Babylon, for instance, were built by King Nebuchadnezzar for his young wife who was homesick for the green hills of her home. And there was the Chinese Emporer Ginseng who carpeted the stepping stones of his royal gardens with lotus flowers so the feet of his Beloved need never touch the earth.

Kings, Queens, famous and wealthy people indulged their love of gardening on the grandest scale, often without a thought of the expense or the work involved. Emporer Kublai Khan (the fellow visited by famous explorer Marco Polo) had the most fabulous pleasure garden in the world of his day at a place called Xanadu. Louis XIV of France employed some 36,000 workmen to remodel the gardens at Versailles — the very same gardens that visitors see today. Emperor Justinian of Constantionople tore down a church to make room for a fountain in his garden. And one of the Biblicat kings—Ahasuerus—was so proud of his garden that he gave a garden party that last 180 days!

NEXT: How did all this garden-making business got started?



ANCIENT WONDER — Classified as one of the seven wonders of the ancient world, the legendary hanging gardens of Babylon were an act of love. This artist's conception displays the grand scale in which the temple-like gardens were made, for a king's wife.

A practical guide to best plants

Every gardener who plants a packet of seeds expects results. There's a group that helps insure that varieties perform as they should. They originated consumer protection in the horticultural field.

Every year for 40 years the All America Selections have been made. It takes long years to develop improved varieties of flowers and vegetables. Winners of the top honors must show high marks in beauty, yield, hardiness, adaptability and performance.

Here's how these selections are made and why they benefit home gardeners across America.

Trial gardens are operated in 56 locations. In addition, demonstration gardens are open to the public in 65 more locations. These test plots are in areas of all soil types, climate and geographical regions.

Every year, plant breeders from private, commercial and governmental organizations submit new seed for trial. Each new entry is evaluated alongside a comparison representing the closest equivalent existing variety.

Judges visit plots regularly. They evaluate new varieties according to their performance in comparison to the best present types. Scores are tallied and reported to the selection board.

Only the smallest percentage that are proved superior by dozens of judges that know flowers and vegetables receive awards. Medals are few.

A bronze medal is given for a definitely different and more desirable type. A silver medal is awarded for truly outstanding and superior type. The gold medal goes to new varieties that are distinctly different and vastly superior to anything available

Depend on it---nice color through winter

To list all the benefits of gardening in the Golden State would take volumes, for sure. A chief asset is the garden color to be enjoyed in the dead of winter. While an easterner dreams of it, California gardeners depend on it.

Perhaps this contrast is most sharply drawn in the ability of Californians to grow early flowering sweet peas and be cutting masses of fragrant, colorful bouquets for the Christmas holidays. This can be done almost invariably in mild winter areas. Given good fall weather, it is often possible to enjoy this color treat even in California climes where winters are less mild.

The first thing to know about growing Sweet Peas for winter is that you should plant them now, without delay. Wait much longer and an early cold weather spell could slow down or stop your color show for several weeks, or months.

The second thing to know is that you must plant early flowering sweet peas. Your nurseryman can steer you clear here; be sure to ask.

Next, the normal cultural rules apply. Sweet peas like a free and easy root run, says the California Association of Nurserymen, so the ground should be well prepared. This can be assured by creating a trench of 12 inches deep, or more, and a shovel's width at least. This requires little time compared to the rewards it pays.

In the trench, layer a liberal thickness of organic material or aged manure on the bottom — six inches is not too much. Then add about three inches of soil and sow the seed. By this time, the trench will still be some three to six inches deep — depending upon the original depth. As the plants sprout and grow, fill in around them with topsoil until the trench is nearly at ground level. This encourages sturdy, deep roots.

Chicken wire makes a good trellis for the plants to climb.

Some plants turn tables on insects

Every gardener knows that insects eat plants. But how many realize that a number of plants turn the tables and actually eat insects?

True enough. Insectivorous plants do lure, catch and digest live insects. They're basically bog plants, in sand or mossy soil with few nutrients. They need the insects to thrive.

Venus's Fly Traps are probably the best known among carnivorous plants. They attract insects to sweet-smelling traps. Once the bug or fly trips a trigger hair, the trap snaps shut and digests its dinner.

Others, like the sticky sundew, lie glistening in the morning light. Gnats, fruit flies, mosquitoes that alight on the plant are ensnared by tiny yet powerful tendrils. Butterworts have flypaper-like leaf surfaces to tangle the feet of insects walking across them.

The Purple Pitcher plant has a different approach. Its spine-lined mouth leads downward to a liquid-filled, hollow base. Insects enter easily, but few climb out again.

According to the Plant Oddities Club in Basking Ridge, N.J., there are dozens of such botanical wonders. Most are easily grown and popular with students for science study.

The Cobra Lily has a particularly strange growth habit. It has a flared hood, small mouth and forked, reddish, tongue-like appendage near the mouth.

Translucent spots cover the hood. Insects that venture inside fly toward the light, soon tire and fall into the soup inside the hollow stem.

CAL POLY AUTHOR — Mary Lynne Olson, before garden she cared for during summer at the 16-acre Harlod Lloyd Estate in Beverly Hills.

Gardener's checklist

1. Hurry to plant winter sweet peas.
2. As soon as the cool season annuals become available in nurseries, set-out the transplants into the garden. The flowers will provide a continuous color show into spring and early summer.
3. Bulbs have arrived in local nurseries; shop while the selections are at their best. Ranunculus and anemones will provide early spring bloom.
4. Feed lawns regularly to keep them green, healthy and disease resistent. Maintain a regular, thorough watering schedule.
5. Keep roses well watered and keep cutting faded blooms. A feeding is in order if it has been 30 days since the last time. Remember, Roses in late fall depend on the care the plants receive now.

Circus featured as fair attraction

For generations the circus has drawn fans of all ages, and still offers a spellbinding variety of acts today.

Starting tonight, and running through Sept. 26, the Los Angeles County Fair is featuring Polack Bros. Circus in the grandstand, free nightly at 8 p.m.; and on Sunday at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

The Polack Bros. Circus, which carries 20 acts representative of countries everywhere, presents clowns, fighting lions, trapeze and high wire performers, trained chimpanzees, and performing elephants. Donald Northdorft, announcer and ringmaster, directs the acts.

From Germany, Erik Acadis, a unicycle artist, displays a unique balancing talent.

A comic combination of clowning chimpanzees performing feats on motorcycles and in mid-air are the Erik Adams Comedy Chimps Act.

The Aleiandros, an act of two teen-agers, have perfected difficult balancing feats while juggling atop the slack wire.

The Arturo Twins offer an original high trapeze act, without the safety of nets.

Man vs. jungle beast is the theme of Bianco's nine fighting lions act. This Italian trainer induces kitten-like tricks from his lions, who are touring the United States for the first time.

Bill Brickle's poodle fantasy features 19 parading poodles in a mock Miss Universe Pageant. These poodles display expensive costumes with lady-like polish.

Riding a mortocycle high above the ground, the Dresler Brothers and Hedy spin and swing.

The Famous Esqueda Troupe from Mexico is a family balancing act. Brothers form a tower with a unicycle as their base.

Miss Francesca gives an aerial gymnastic performance on a single trapeze.

Also on the trapeze, the Flying Gibons perform stunts and routines classic to trapeze artistry.

The circus' performing elephants have a new star. "Mike," an 18 months old elephant is duplicating tricks he learned from "Opal," an established star, who appeared for Ed Sullivan 17 times. The herd, including "Kae," "Louie," as well as "Mike" and "Opal", is presented by Tom Donoho and his wife, Pompom.

From Paris, Danielle and wife, Michalene, present an aerial trapeze act, unassisted by nets in the Raymills act. the finale of their gymnastic exposition is titled "Dive of Death."

Ringmaster Donald Northdorft offers a ringmaster's magic act.

Mid-air gymnastics is the specialty of Miss Sarazochil.

From Spain, the Great Arturo Segura holds a world reputation on the bounding rope. His double somersault has never been duplicated.

The Tabaks, a husband-wife combo from Hungary perform stunts on a pole which rotates from a base.

The Amazing Les Weldons trio perform on their original pedestral ladder. Walking on their hands, one carries a lady wrapped around his body.

Three clown antics add comedy to the circus. These acts are The Three Andersons, Artemis John Conrad), and The Two Bills.

NEW YORK (UPI) —Next to price, nutrition is the most important food-buying consideration, according to a study conducted for Hoffman-La Roche, Inc., vitamin producers. The research, based on panel discussions with women of widely varied ages, education and income, also indicated they believed breakfast is the most important meal and the one that most needs nutritional improvement.

Cranston urges 90,000 troops be cut abroad

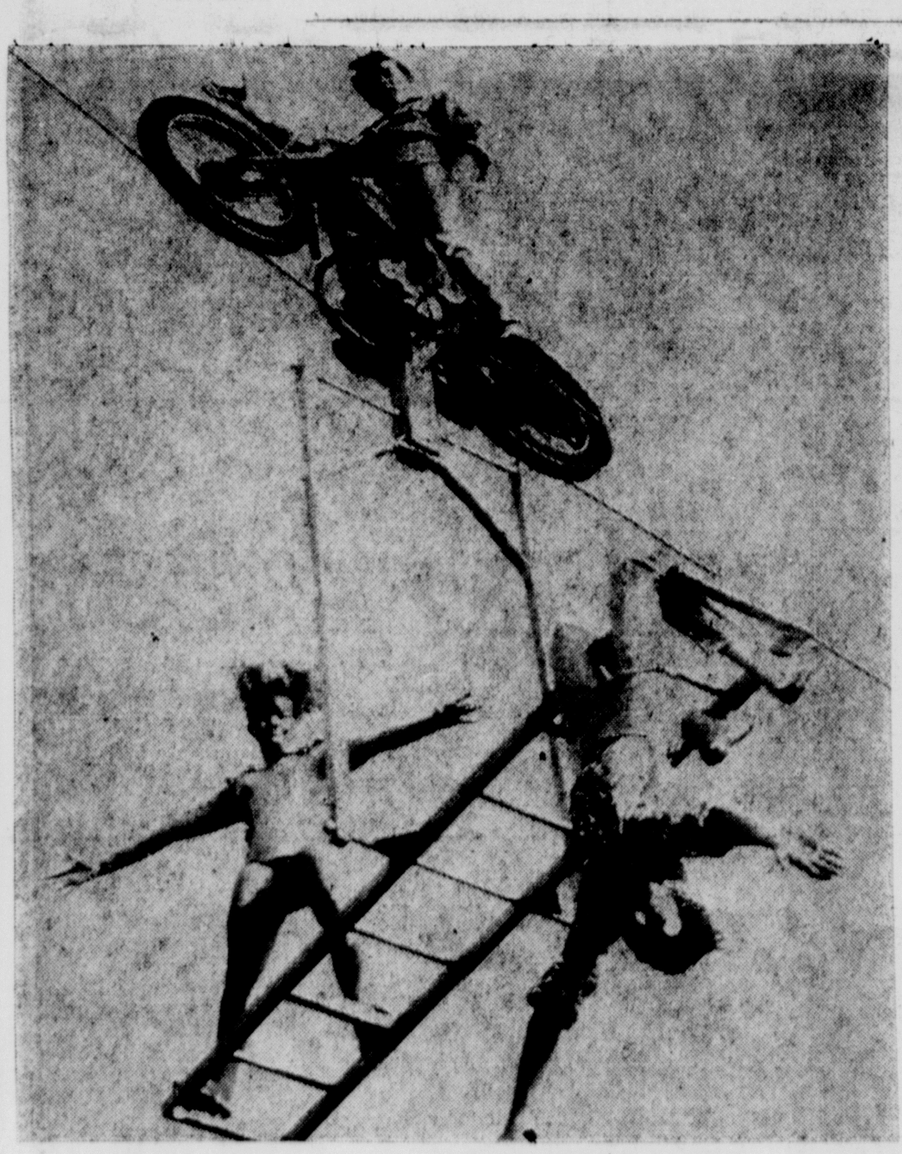
WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., believes U.S. forces abroad could be cut by at least 90,000 men without imperilling the defense of the United States and its allies.

Cranston, testifying recently before a Senate armed services subcommitee, said Congress should order a cut in such overseas spending despite threats of a veto by President Nixon.

The overseas cut proposed by Cranston would be within a total 156,000 deduction already recommended by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The California Democrat said it would save $923 million a year "without in any way imperilling our defense or the defense of our allies."

"In fact, it will strengthen our economy and hence strengthen our defense posture," he said. "Keeping that money at home will help fight inflation through stabilizing the dollar and by reducing our balance of payments deficit.



HIGH RIDERS — The Fesler Brothers and their sister Hedy, show their skill and daring as they spin and swing in a unique motorized high-wire act, " Motorcycle in the Sky," just one of some 20 featured acts of the 12-day run of the Polack Bros. Circus.

More varieties of rabbits and calves than ever before will be vying for top prizes at the 46th Los Angeles County Fair.

The doors to the largest rabbit and cavy show will open on Wednesday, Sept. 26, with the event running through Sept. 30 in Building 8.

Of special interest will be an extensive exhibit of Netherland Dwarfs, which weigh a mere two pounds at maturity. In contrast, the Checker Giants and Flemish Giants, weighing up to 17 pounds will also be shown.

The long-haired Angoras, famous for their furs will be displayed as well as the velevety short-haired Rex.

A panel of four judges, reputed for their ability to determine awards in the leading national shows will begin to judge the many entries on Thursday, Sept. 27. Judges will include Fred Cremer of Bakersfield, Don E. Lovejoy of Pomona, Joe S. Lutes of Garden Grove, and Orlan Onkst of Downey.

Fair special awards will be given for best display, second best and third best display. A trophy will be given for the Outstanding Exhibitor's Award. Premiums in first through fifth place will be offered in several classifications.

Cavies will be graded by first through fifth place premiums in several classifications, also best display, second best and third best display awards will be presented by Judge William G. Opie of Golden, Colo.

Many facets

Fair much more than exposition

The Los Angeles County Fair is much more than just a fair. It is a exposition of international scope, attracting visitors and exhibitors from all parts of the country and the world, a city within a city, and, during its annual 17-day run, one of the largest businesses in the area.

With an annual average attendance of more than one million, it is the largest county fair in the world and the fourth largest of all fairs in the nation.

The first fair, held in 1922, attracted 49,461 people. An all-time attendance record was set last year with 1,268,446 visitors clicking through the turnstiles. This beat the previous record of $1,265,195 set in 1967.

This year's 46th presentation, is expected to attract at least 1.25 million patrons.

Attesting to its international scope, the fair regularly attracts from 20 to 30 foreign countries which send well over 200 exhibits featuring their cultures and products. In addition, many of the 2,000 photographic entries bear foreign postmarks.

During its 17-day run, the fair maintains all the facilities needed to operate a city of 75,000 population: police force, fire department, branch bank, post office, electric sub-station, telephone exchange with 25 main truck lines and 240 stations, first aid facility, nursery and playground, picnic areas, sanitation department, trailer park, garage and maintenance shop.

The fair's commissary supplies food for both employes and visitors, serving more than 40 tons of hot dogs, 36 tons of hamburger, and 1.2 million corn tortillas, not to mention innumerable snacks and beverages.

The fairgrounds cover 487 acres, landscaped with more than 5,000 trees, thousands of plants and flowers and acres of grass. All exhibit areas and walkways are blacktopped. Paved parking areas accommodate 45,000 vehicles. There are over 200 permanent buildings with a combined floor space of more than 1.5 million square feet. The entire facility is valuued in excess of $25 million.

With an annual budget of more than $4 million, the fair contributes heavily to the local economy. Nearly half the sum goes for ewages and salaries with the rest going for materials, services and cash premium awards. Nearly 6,000 people are employed during the fair period with more than 1,900 on the staff alone. The rest are employed by exhibitors, concessionaires and racing interests.

Any revenues above the cost of operation is used by non-profit fair association to maintain, expand and improve the facilities and pro grams.

And finally, the fair is perhaps one of the best entertainment bargains anywhere with admissions at a low $1.50 for adults; 50 cents for children under 12.

After 26 years

Fair career ends for Mrs. Saari

For Janet Saari, the 46th Los Angeles county Fair will be her last.

Mrs. Saari, currently fair office administrator, will wind up her 26-year career that ranged from office girl to what one co-worker describes as "chief troubleshooter for everything that goes on."

But she is much more modest about her work, pointing out that it's "nothing that anybody can't do."

Besides her daily supervision of an office staff of 100, Mrs. Saari is responsible for producing the nine-volume set of premium books that are the Bible of fair exhibitors.

Some 10,000 copies are sent out each year to give potential exhibitors the latest information on entry fees and requirements, details of judging procedures and scorings, amount and types of prizes awarded, and a complete run-down on what may entered in each division of the 15 competitive areas which include apiary, aquarium, cavies, dairy products, feature exhibits and agricultre, flower and garden show, gem and mineral show, home arts, junior fair, livestock, natural resources, photography, pigeons, poultry, rabbits and wine.

Mrs. Saari sees the project through from beginning to end each year writing letters to judges and various organizations to line up experts and update competitive requirements, coordinating and preparing the copy, doing the actual layout of the books and working closely with printers on the finished product.

And once an edition is completed, it's time to begin working on next year's book. So the project is really a year-round task, that she says is "the big thing" of he job.

As each entry comes in, she also scans the entry forms to see that all the appropriate information is included and in its proper place, and that the proper amount of entry fees is also included

When opening day of the fair rolls around, she sees to it that visiting judges are assured living accommodations, and also supervises the maintaining of judging records and scores in all the competitive events.

The first 10 days of the fair are always busy, she says, but after that, "Then you think of seeing the fair."

Her own perennial favorite exhibits include the flower show, the home arts exhibits and the livestock exhibits.

Her interest in livestock is only a natural extension of the years she spent growing up on her grandfather's farm in North Dakota. The experience, she says, proved helpful in her work at the fair.

Despite a certain wistfulness at leaving her many friends at the fair, she is excited about her retirement.

It's going to give her the opportunity to indulge in another favorite pastime: travel.

After the close of the fair this year, she'll depart her Montclair home for Mexico. After that she has plans to visit Japan, Scandinavia and some of those as-yet-unseen parts of the United States, notably Alaska.

L.A.-to-fair bus service during run

Non-stop bus service to the fair from Los Angeles will again be offered by Southern California Rapid Transit District buses throughout the fair's 17-day run.

Special line 40 Freeway Flyers will depart the downtown Los Angeles RTD station weekdays between 8:40 a.m. and 1:15 p.m., with return trips between 3:30 and 10:30 p.m. More frequent service is available on weekends.

Connecting serice to the fairgrounds will also be available from other points throughout the district.

Bill outlaws coin-tossing at ring events

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation outlawing fans from throwing money or anything else at the ring during a boxing match has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The bill (AB469) by Assemblyman Alex P. Garcia, D-Los Angeles, also provides for warning signs to be posted in English and Spanish at all boxing events. Conviction of the crime would carry a misdemeanor penalty.

Garcia said he introduced the bill because of the "extremely dangerous practice" of fans throwing coins at fighters for a good performance. "The last fight I was at I got hit in the head with a silver dollar," Garcia said.

Amateur wine tasters able to vie with pros

Amateur wine tasters will have an opportunity to match their palates and taste buds against those of recognized experts by sampling some 180 award-winning wines on display in the fair's Wine Cellar.

After sampling 452 wines, the 17-member judging panel awarded 61 gold medals, 70 silver and 59 bronze medals, with honorable mention going to 33 other top wines.

This year, Brookside Vineyard Co. of Guasti swept the field with 10 gold medals, 9 silver and 12 bronze awards.

Gold medalists among the company's bottling include Angelica, Black Velvet, Dry Vermouth, Guasti Chocolate, Guasti Mint, Muscatel, Rose Suave, Vino Rosso, Vin de Biane Fres Flor Sherry Creme and Vache Marsala Crema.

Silver medalists on exhibit at the fair are Guasti Cream, Tokay, Ruby Port, White Port, Vino Rosado; and the Assumption Abbey brand Cream Muscat, Sherry de Oro, Sherry Palido and Vache Pink Chablis.

Brookside's President Philo P. Biane attributed the sweep to the family's fourth and fifth-generation vineyardists and winemakers, and the varietal mine grapes from the 141-year-old firm's young vineyards in the Rancho California-Temecula district and from their long-established Cucamonga district vineyards.

The fair's annual wine-tasting event is now the only major open wine juding in the state. Competition has been held regularly in mid-August since 1935.

Heading the panel of judges for the seventh year was Nathan L. Chromon of Beverly Hills. Other experts, many of them recognized internationally as wine judges included:

Special events to mark Mexico independence

The anniversary of Mexico's independence will be celebrated Sunday with a series of special events in the fair's Mexican Village.

The entertainment program begins at 10 a.m. and runs almost continuously until 10 p.m.

Mariachi Infantil de Monterey, Mexico, directed by Carlos Alvarez, will appear in programs every two hours starting at 1 Sunday afternoon.

Also appearing throughout the afternoon and evening will be popular comedian Jose Gonzalez Gonzlaez.

Folklorico Mexicano de Colton will appear at 10 a.m. Alma Chiapaneca marimba band, directed by Gilbert Melgar, will be on at 11 a.m. Alfonzo Bermudez, will present Fiesta de Danza at two-hour intervals starting at noon through 10 p.m.

Vance Graham is master-of-ceremonies for Mexican Village entertainment.

There is entertainment in the village daily throughout the fair's run through Sept. 30.

Mexican Village is a plaza lined with several Mexican food booths, curio, crafts and clothing shops.

Pan Am buys shorter 747s

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Pan American World Airways has ordered 10 of the Boeing Company's shorter but faster long-range 747s at a cost of $280 million, it was announced Monday.

The new plane, 747SP (Special Performance), will be manufactured at Boeing's 747 plant in Everett, Wash.

Boeing officials said the Pan American version would have a capacity of 280 passengers and would be used for the line's very long range, medium density routes.

Pan American was the first airline to order the 747SP which has a range of 6,900 miles. The airline also took an option on 15 more 747SPs.

Days of yore

Displays of antique farm machinery and equipment will invoke many memories for viewers of the exhibit at the Los Angeles County Fair, through Sept. 30. Several pieces of equipment date back to the 1870's, and others show the progress throughout the years.

CATHY BOYD

Cathy Boyd wants to work with retarded

Obtaining a master's degree in social work to enable her to counsel or work with mentally retarded children is the challenging goal of 20-year-old Cathy Boyd of Fresno, representing Azusa Pacific College in the fair queen contest.

A senior psychology major at Azusa Pacific, Cathy maintains a 3.9 grade point average despite her hectic schedule of activities. She has been active as a cheerleader for two years, a member of Alpha Chi, an honor club; and as a staff member of the school yearbook. In addition, she will serve as a resident assistant in the college dormitory next year.

And added to the social events, she works as a waitress at Holiday Inn restaurant in West Covina. Both her school and work activities give Cathy her desired opportunity to meet many interesting people.

Tennis, biking, skiing, reading, traveling, going to the beach, and working for the Christian organization, Young Life, also keep her busy year round. The mountains and the beach are favorite relaxing spots for Cathy, who rarely gets a moment to rest from her busy schedule.

"I like working with youth," says Cathy, who has worked at Pacific State Hospital and at an elementary school for children with problems in learning. Both jobs have allowed the Azusa Pacific senior to gain experience and knowledge in her chosen field.

Her philosophy, she says, is one of trying to bring happiness to other people's lives. "I'm a Christian, so I should spread my happiness that God gave me to others," she believes.

Cathy's position on the women's liberation movement is that women deserve equal pay for equal jobs, but "a girl should still be treated like a girl. I want my cake and still want to eat it!"

KATHY GROTHE

I'm what people made me, says Kathy Grothe

"Friendship, contacts and involvements with other people made me what I am. Everyone is a conglomeration of other people," says fair princess Kathy Grothe of Claremont, a 21-year-old Cal Poly student.

Kathy's involvements have led her into a very busy, active lifestyle. At Cal Poly she sings in the concert choir and is vice president of Sigma Phi Delta sorority.

Queen contests are nothing new to her: she has been a Poly Vue princess and queen's pageant chairman at school. She stays active in school and community activities through her sorority, while maintaining a 3.3 grade point average.

Spare time activities usually involve sewing, playing guitar and singing.

A liberal studies senior, she plans to go on to graduate studies at UCLA or San Diego State. She'd like to teach elementary school and hopes to eventually become a principal.

Occasionally she contemplates going into merchandising for a career as a buyer. She has already spent four years working at Buffums', now working in bridal, furs and fine clothes.

Other goals in this ambitious young woman's life include marriage and a family. She wants to remain active, and raise a strong family-oriented family. "The most important feeling in a family is the constant giving of the self. A family willing to give is close."

Although she agrees with some Women's Lib philosophies, such as equal pay for equal jobs, she says "I enjoy being a woman and want to be treated as a woman." She views marriage as teamwork, but adds that she's home-oriented and would want to stay home with her children.

She entered the fair queen contest because the idea of being active in the community and the fair appealed to her as being rewarding. She enjoys public speaking and meeting people, and would like to be queen to represent the fair all year. She feels she's learned a lot about human nature by working with the other girls on the fair court.

Optimism is her philosophy. She tries to look at the bright side of life.

"You have to make your own happiness. Don't dwell on the bad. Work hard and reach for happiness. It means a lot to be able to give happiness to someone else."

A BIT OF FRISCO — An original cable car from San Francisco's Sutter Street Railroad Co. will be a featured display at the fair in honor of the centennial anniversary of the railway.

Cable car anniversary

The centennial anniversary of San Francisco's famed cable cars will be celebrated at the fair with an exhibit of historic photographs and an authentic cable car from the Sutter Street Railroad Co.

The old car, normally stored in the cable car museum in San Francisco, was used on the city's second line from 1877 to 1929.

Because of the centennial celebration, it has been on tour in two Northern California county fairs and the State Fair at Sacramento.

Its last appearance will be at the Pomona fairgrounds.

The Sutter Street Railroad began operating on Jan. 27, 1877, and at its heyday in 1891, the company operated almost six miles of cable routes. The 1906 earthquake and fire saw all but the Pacific Avenue segment converted to electricity and the Pacific Avenue cars ran for the last time on Nov. 29, 1929.

The Sutter Street car is on permanent loan to the City of San Francisco from the Railway and Locomotive Historical Society.

Goods from four corners of world will be available to fair shoppers

How would you like to shop for four corners of the world without really leaving home? The fair's International Mart provides this luxury at no charge.

Some 20 countries will bring their goods to market for fairgoers to buy during the fair's 17-day run.

French perfume, English cookware, Chinese pearls, wigs and art, and items from Africa, Yugoslavia, Scandinavia to Mexico, Malaysia to Jamaica will be on sale. Ecuador, Iran, Greece and India are just a few more flavors of foreign flare which blend into the international market place, here for its 13th year.

Panama will join the International Mart with a government tourist bureau. Unicef and "Action" of Peace Corps also have booths in the mart.

Student exhibits will be displayed

Geared for action with folk dancing, tumbling, choral groups, chees, art, and sculpture demonstrations and thousands of student project displays is the fair's Public Schools Exhibit, featuring the theme "Education Geared for Tomorrow."

More than 1,400 students from some 45 school districts in Southern California have submitted 3,400 items for display in the exhibit. Art work, ceramics, wood, wire, and nail sculpture, macrame, novelty weaving, models, murals, and batiks will be included in the non-competitive attractions.

Projects include work from kindergarten through adult education and all articles displayed receive a merit of award sticker.

In keeping with the theme of the exhibit, a bi-lingual kindergarten class will demonstrate new teaching techniques involved with youngsters in a bi-lingual classroom situation. Niemes School kindergarteners of Artesia, Bloomfield, and Cerritos (ABC) Unified School District will show how they translate words from one language to the other under the leadership of Vickie Lopez, teacher.

The exhibit offers teachers and students an opportunity to gain inspiration and new ideas for use in area public schools, in addition to showing fair visitors what and how students are now learning.

Explosive used to create fire breaks

LAKE ELSINORE (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service Thursday demonstrated a cord-like military explosive that will be used to cut fire breaks in Southern California mountain areas prior to the next fire season.

The nonflammable cord can be laid and exploded to cut breaks three to 10 feet wide eight times faster than hand crews can do the job. It can be laid in sections ranging from a quarter-mile to a mile long, the Forest Service said.

He gave shirt off back to pay taxes

LONG EATON, England (UPI) —City taxes were so high, thought Barry Thompson, that his local council might as well be asking for the shirt off his back—so he sent it to them.

Written on it was a check for $175. A bank spokesman said they were bound to accept it and cited a precedent—in 1970, someone cashed a check written on a cow at another branch.

Unruh gets post with hospitals

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Pacific Coast Medical Enterprises named former Assembly Speaker Jess Unruh an executive vice president performing liaison functions in community affairs Thursday.

PCME owns Community Hospital in San Diego, Bella Vista Community Hospital in East Los Angeles, Community Hospital of Los Angeles, Century City Hospital of Beverly Hills, pharmacies and other subsidiaries.

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI) — Rebelious students are no more creative than their classmates, say Dr. Russell Chimento, principal of the American Legion High School in Sacramento after a study of 11th and 12th graders. Chimento made his finding after a year of research at the University of the Pacific in trying to develop new programs to help continuation students.

CHRIS JENNINGS

Chris Jennings hopes to be a stewardess

"I am but a traveler beteen many worlds . . . Yes, I will continue on my travels to destinies unknown" is a line from a poem written by and lived by, fair princess Christine Jennings.

Chris, an 18-year old Citrus College sophomore majoring in liberal arts, hopes to work as an airline stewardess and maybe later enroll in a university. "I'm just taking things as they come," she notes. "I'm enjoying what I'm doing now, but I still don't know what I want to really do."

Snow skiing, swimming, water coloring, arts and crafts and cooking are just a few of many activities she enjoys. This summer, she is helping maintain her home while her parents are at work. Chris enjoys doing housework and cooking. She loves to cook Italian food and many other dishes with her sister, Keily. "I experiment a lot with my cooking," she says.

Chris feels some of today's trends are "really fun." She says, "I don't criticize people for what they do."

She gives people who are really dedicated to their causes a lot of credit. "I respect them for that, if that's what they believe in."

However, she feels that many times original causes get buried. "It's kind of sad in that respect," she muses.

She is an active participant in student government at Citrus as activties chairman for Homecoming Week fall semester and commissioner of communications on the executive board spring semester. She now holds the position of corresponding secretary of the executive board.

Chris, a Glendora resident, feels that parents should start treating their children as adults at an early age because fewer problems would mount and youths would finally be aware that they really are adults. "You whole mental attitude and process changes" when you are treated as an adult," "Chris says. "Adults would be suprised."

A Libra, Chris is interested in astrology and would like to study it seriously. "I think it has possibilities," she says.

ANN HANAWALT

Ann Hanawalt looks toward seeing people

"I've never done anything like this before — it's exciting!" says 21-year-old fair princess Ann Hanawalt.

Ann, representing La Verne College, is looking forward to meeting people during her royal activities.

"It's gotten me over my shyness a lot," the La Verne resident says of her experiences so far.

Ann is currently studying biology at La Verne, hoping to teach science at the junior high level upon graduation. She has traveled the southern European countries on an independent study program, which she felt gave her an opportunity to be herself and to be creative.

Ann works as a forum secretary at the college, answering phones, typing, and doing publicity work for the student association. In addition, she does general office work for the college's physical education and science departments.

All outdoor sports, especially bicycling, swimming, and body surfing, interest the busy coed.

"I've always been really active in sports. I love the outdoors and camping," Ann says. The mountains, desert, and beach are all favorite camping spots for the southland beauty, who often camps with her friends.

Ann likes to knit, sew, hook rugs, decoupage, and travel. "I make all my own clothes," she says. Many of her creative efforts are used for gifts.

"I try to have a good time wherever I go," is Ann's philosophy. "Life has a lot to offer. I don't see the bad (in things) unless it's forced on me. I have an optimistic outlook."

PATTI ERICKSON

Patti Erickson plans to be a veterinarian

"Take each day as it comes. I do things in relation to what I've done before, and what I'm going to do in the future."

This is the philosophy of their princess Patti Jo Erickson of Brea.

An easygoing 19-year-old, Patti says she doesn't look too far into the future. She's a pre-veterinary major at Cal Poly and wants to go on to veterinary school. Her goals are to get through school successfully, surpass obstacles in her way and succeed in whatever she does. She doesn't look toward marriage for quite a while because "I want to be a good vet and a good wife and mother at the same time."

She would agree with many women's Libbers regarding employment practices—she's very concerned with the discrimination against women in the field of medicine. However, she doesn't approve of the movement's methods of instigating change. "We need gradual change—most women are expecting a total revelation of ideas. A better way of doing it is to get women into predominantly male institutions."

Not really a competitive person, Patti likes to "do things for the sake of doing them". She's performed in many horse shows for several years, but no longer has the time. She enjoys it because "it's just getting out there doing something; it's me out there alone. If the horse does something wrong it's because I haven't taught him."

She still belongs to the Fullerton Recreation Riders and gives four students riding lessons twice a week.

Patti feels that being on the fair court has been an enriching experience for her. "It's gotten me to people. Before, horses were my whole life." She things that as queen she would meet more people, but feels that the princesses get just as involved in fair activities. She sees her role on the fair court as "a great way to get involved in the fair," which she's loved to attend for years.

During the summer, she worked full time at the Commercial National Bank in Fullerton, running credit checks and working on insurance and loan applications.

MIRNA MEYER

Mirna Meijer says she likes to be with people

"I have to be with people. If I'm not with people, it's drabby," says 20-year-old fair princess Mirna Meijer of La Puente.

As a salesgirl at Fabrics Galore in La Puente, Mirna gets a chance to come into contact with lots of people. "I love working with people," she says. And her job has caused her to become enthralled with sewing her own wardrobe now.

A sophomore office clerical major, Mirna will represent Mt. San Antonio College in the queen contest. After graduation, she would like to become an airline stewardess and later work in an office. Her plans then include settling down and raising a family.

Outgoing, vivacious, and enthusiastic are just a few key words that describe the petite beauty, who holds a second job as a football secretary for the college. Mirna really enjoys the job, which entails putting the football roster together and taking down statistics during games. "It's so much fun," says Mirna, an avid football fan who calls herself "tomboyish."

Weightlifting, soccer, football, house cleaning, playing the piano, and dancng are just a few more activities that keep her on the run most of the time. "I dance at least five hours a week. "It keeps me in shape." She loves to dance everything from the tango to modern rock.

Glen Miller, Artie Shaw, and Tommy Dorsey are among her favorite recording artists, with Perry Como topping the list as her favorite male singer. Hawaiian music and big band music also excite the perky coed.

Beauty contest aren't anything new for this beauty, who has reigned as a 1972 MSAC Relays princess, a 1971 Miss La Puente princess, and a finalist in the Miss Pomona Valley Pageant. "People in general—that's why I go into pageants," she explains.

Born in Arnhem, Netherlands, Mirna recalls that the greatest thing that ever happened to her was seeing the Statue of Liberty at the age of 4, when she first came to the United States.

Court of the Redwoods will celebrate 20th anniversary

California's smallest redwood park—the Court of the Redwoods—will celebrate its 20th aniversary this year at the fair.

Court of the Redwoods, located between the Fine Arts and Home Arts buildings on the fairgrounds, has living trees from California's giant redwood forests. The live trees, contributed by the 17 California counties in which the trees grow, have been planted in a setting simulating their native locale. Both the Sequoia Sempervirens and Sequoia Gigantea are represented.

A 16-foot diameter cross-section of one redwood, estimated to be 2,000 years old, is marked with the dates of historical events that occurred during its life. This section was contributed by Tulare County.

An 8 by 20 foot log from a 510-year old tree from Humboldt County is on exhibit. This log was sent on a 25,000 mile tour of the nation before being presented to the fair by the Georgia-Pacific Lumber Co.

The permanent exhibit censters around a huge statue of "The Ranchero" sculpted from a single redwood log by John Svenson of Green Valley.

The master behind the creation was the late Tevis Paine, former director of public relations for the fair for 14 years.

Paine was the "court planner" who spent many hours in bringing to fruition a living tribute to the mighty Sequoias. The court now serves as a living memorial to California's great redwoods and the man who matched them

The area, enjoyed by tens of thousands of fair patrons and interim viesitors, is bathed in a cooling mist by special fogproducing nozzles to provide the life-giving fog of the coast and the mists of the Sierras.

The Court of the Redwoods, with its trees, shurbs, flora, and ground cover, has now blended into a natural appearing forest since its beginnings in 1953. The trees are healthy and robust, some gaining as much as four feet in height a year.

Armed Forces Day at fair

The annual Armed Forces Day at the Los Angeles County Fair, a salute to all the nation's military, will be Sunday it has been announced by Phil D. Shepherd, general manager.

On that day, all military personnel in uniform will be admitted free to the fairgrounds.

Highlighting the day's activities will be a concert by the 15th Air Force Band from March Field, annual twins contest, performances of Polack Bros. Circus at 2 and 7:30 p.m. and a parade featuring the fair queen and her court.

Food program to be broadcast

The Mike Roy Food News on radio station KNX will be broadcast from the fairgrounds today and Monday at 11:06 a.m. until noon

Program co-host Denis Bracken will remain at the KNX studios to handle phone inquiries from the program's listeners.

Old fashioned family picnics are encouraged by Los Angeles County Fair officials during the 17-day run of the huge exposition, Sept. 14 through 30. Ten secluded, tree-shaded areas provide ideal spots for family picnic basket lunches or suppers.

SONDRA SCHOENBERGER

Sondra Schoenberger wants to pilot jetliners

Sondra is a commerical airline pilot major at Mt. San Antonio College. She already has her private pilot's license, but wants to fly commercial liners "to have a different, exciting job. I like the idea of the responsibility and control."

"Life is a journey, not a destination," is a favorite life philosophy of 18-year old fair princess Sondra Schoenberger of Baldwin Park.

This busy coed's lifestyle certainly reflects her philosophy, for she never seems to stop, and keeps adding more activities to her list of accomplishments.

She has acquired more flight time as a member of the MSAC flying team. She is bombardier for the group during competitions with other schools. She is responsible for dropping water or chalk balloon "bombs" on ground targets, and estimate how altitude, wind and direction will affect where the bombs will land.

Outside of school, she keeps busy with numerous activities. She says she'd rather cook than do anything else, and especially likes preparing German and Italian foods. She makes all her own clothes and jewelry.

She loves sailing, water and snow skiing and does some surfing. An avid scuba diver, she'd like to dive in Tahiti sometime soon. She also enjoys some camping and backpacking.

In addition she holds down two jobs She is employed as a bridal consultant at Genice of West Covina, planning weddings, color schemes, flowers and advising on wedding etiquette.

Her second job is somewhat surprising: Sondra does electrical work on large machine units—her specialty is rewiring motors. She started receiving on-the-job training at 15, and continued for two years. "I'm the only girl," she says, "when I wire something and it works people look at me like 'You're kidding!.' "

Because of her unusal job, she says, "People think I'm for Women's Lib, but I'm not." She is, in fact, rather vehement in her anti-lib views: "I think women were put on earth to serve men, that's their purpose and that's what they should do." She says women should live their own lives, but continue to serve men.

Her goals include being a pilot for perhaps 10 years, marrying and raising a family. She wants to raise her family on a farm or ranch in the country, where the quietness would teach them to "appreciate nature better and understand their self and their worth."

Still thinking in active terms for her future, Sondra wants a beach house and a mountain home for skiing. "I want to live happily ever after" says the real-life fair princess.

"If I'm satisfied with my life and what I've accomplished, that's the most important part."

Just a coincidence

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Police report that for four hours and 55 minutes on a recent day they received no calls reporting crimes or accidents. A spokesman said that on a normal day an average of 20 calls are received from 9:15 a.m. to 2:10 p.m. when the lull occurred. He attributed the dry spell to "mere coincidence."

Tennis coach candidate for fair queen

Tennis, drama and music are three key activities in the life of Marsha Miller, 20-year-old La Verne College coed and fair princess.

A tennis instructor for the Pomona Parks and Recreation Department this summer, she teaches some 45 students in her sessions. The La Verne junior just placed first in women's singles in a weekend La Verne Parks and recreation Department tournament.

Palying tennis for only a year and a half and hoping to join the varsity team her senior year at La Verne, she attributes most of her improvement to Jim Pascal, her college tennis coach.

Working with children plays a soft part in Marsha's heart, as in addition to teaching tennis, she serves as a recreation leader for the Pomona Recreation Department. She works with underprivileged children in the new Sports Addict program at Washington Park in Pomona.

Marsha, who resides in West Covina, is optimistic about young people, feeling that there is a definite trend toward individuality, allowing youth "to find out who they are and what they can and can not do." She believes young people are free thinkers and don't have the hangups that older people have. "You can relate to them more easily because they are more open," she says.

She has set her sights on becoming a professional singer. Contemporary music excites the pretty brunette, who sings at weddings and belongs to the Chamber Singers at her college. After graduation, she plans to join a professional singing group as a start to her career.

"I'm happiest when I'm singing and performing and traveling," she notes.

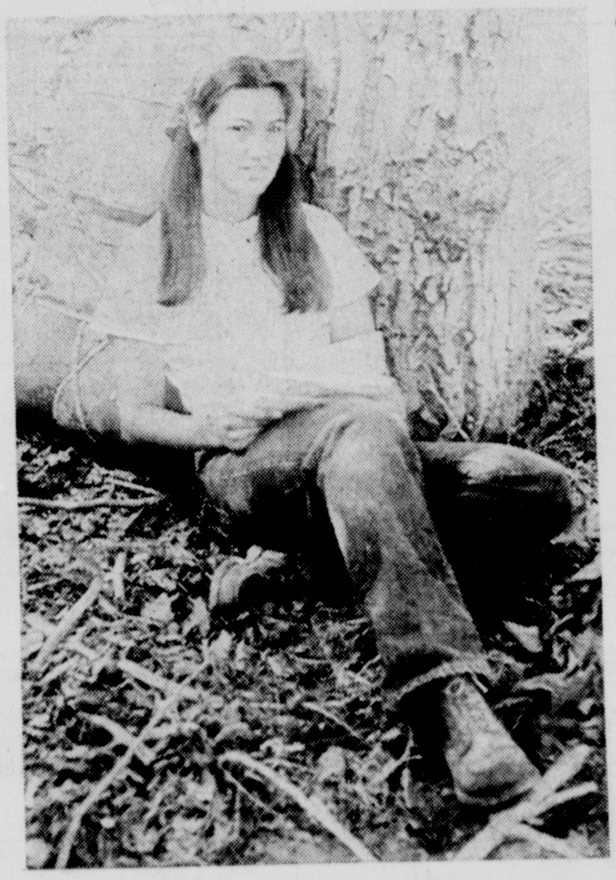
Her love for music rings through when she talks of her favorite composers. She has patterned her own musical compositions after her favorite contemporary composer, Vincent Persichetti.

Drama also plays a major role in her life. She has the lead role in Alber Camus' "State of Seige" and parts in "Man of La Mancha" and Dark of the Moon" at La Verne. She is an active member of Alpha Psi Omega, the La Verne professional drama group.

Modern dance is another favorite activity.

Macrame, cooking, antiques and animals are addltional interests of the outspoken coed, whose philosphy is "try to be the best you can be. Be all that you can be; don't just limit yourself."

MARSHA MILLER



LORI ROBINSON

Lori Robinson wants to travel, see Europe

"I just want to travel so I can see something" is the wish of Lori Robinson of El Monte, 19-year-old coed representing Citrus College in the Fair queen contest.

Lori's wish is to tour England, France and Germany, in addition to the New England states. "I don't know why," she says. "They just appeal to me."

Her love of the outdoors has lead her to one of her favorite pastimes, backpacking. She thoroughly enjoys her new hobby, which she took up only last summer. And her summer job as a counselor and unit assistant at the Singing Pines Girl Scout Camp gives her an excellent opportunity to indulge in the activity.

She enjoys working with young people as a camp counselor she supervises some 25 girls at a time during the summer. "It's neat," Lori says of her job at Singing Pines.

She plans to become a dental assistant after her traveling stint. She believes such a profession helps her meet people and in addition is also helping other people.

"I always keep on striving," Lori says. "I'm not content with what I have all the time." Her philosophy is to "keep me and the people around me pretty much happy. I don't ever want to be bored. I want to be able to find a rewarding profession."

Sewing, cooking, gardening, tennis, swimming, camping, reading and watching baseball, volleyball, and track keep her on a very active schedule and far from being bored.

The Citrus College sophomore maintains a 3.2 grade point average during the school year and hopes to continue her education through perhaps a liberal arts program in later years. "I like to keep on learning things."

72 owners sue developer over cracking homes

SAN JOSE (UPI) —The owners of 72 homes in a three-year-old subdivision have filed a $7.2 million damage suit against the developer, charging that the houses are falling apart.

The suit was filed recently in Santa Clara Superior Court by attorney Jeffrey Marshall on behalf of homeowners in the Hidden Glen subdivision.

Defendants ae the Arcadia Development Company and Jesse Stacey, a vice president of Arcadia.

In a 100-page complaint and 200 pages of exhibits, the homeowners say their houses are unsafe because of numerous defects, including walls that are cracking and soil which is shifting. They asked for $3.6 million in general damages and an equal amount in punitive damages.

Picnic days

Old fashioned family picnics (hopefully minus the ants!) are encouraged by Los Angeles CountyFair officials during the 17-day run of the huge exposition through Sept. 30. Ten secluded, tree-shaded areas provide ideal spots for family picnic basket lunches or suppers.

JULIE CHRISTINSON

Julie Christinson finds lost time frustrating

"Time escapes and it can be very frustrating," says fair princess Julie Christinson of Riverside.

An active 19-year-old Azusa Pacific coed, Julie finds that after working full time in the summer, she doesn't have too much time left for recreation activities. She worked in the service bank of the Riverside County welfare department for a student aid program. Although enjoying her duties, she says she thinks she'd rather "work 10 hours a day, four days a week . . . then every weekend would be a three-day weekend."

Work and her fair duties aren't the only claims on her time, however. She began planning in February for a junior high camp for which she is now assistant director.

She feels that experiences such as this, and previous camp counseling that she's done are good for her as she'd like to become a program coordinator for large camps.

Julie's experience recently landed her a new job: in the fall she will be a "peer counselor" at school. She will receive a scholarship for acting as counselor to a group of fellow students in the dorms. She's "expected to be a good listener," and says the program is just as much for the counselor's benefit as for her peers—"You're getting to know yourself as well as other people."

Julie has attended Azusa Pacific for just one semester, but feels "It's just the place for me—good people, teachers and friends."

She chose the school for its fine programs in both psychology and religion—despite conflicts she's encountered between the spiritual and scientific natures of the subjects—and because it's a good Christian school.

Religion is an important part of her life; it's something she centers goals around. "I want to learn more about myself, continue to grow as a person and to grow spiritually, and to grow in my relationship with God." A good spiritual relationship is "beneficial to you for your whole life."

She is insistent, however, that nothing should be forced on people, and gave the example of Women's Lib. Julie agrees with most Women's Lib tenets, but feels that it's pushed too hard.

"I like Women's Lib. Woman has been suppressed and has a role to play that's not equal to that of a male." She feels that job discrimination is unfair, and says that part of woman's role is to be a "baby machine", which she doesn't approve of.

Though articulate in her views, Julie says she's not "a card carrying member of Women's Lib," and doesn't believe in roles.

"I play my role as a person involved in the world and not a role as a woman."

Sweet Adelines in Amphitheater performance

The Sweet Adelines of Pomona Valley will appear at the fair's Amphitheater Monday at 7 p.m. as part of the senior citizens program planned for that day.

The group of women barbershop singers has been organized for 12 years and has appeared several times at the fair.

A second Senior Citizens Day will be held Monday, Sept. 24.

Reduced admission prices will be offered to senior citizens both days.

3 bands from valley to play

Three Pomona Valley area bands will be among the hundreds performing at this year's fair.

The Chaffey High School marching band and Tigerettes drill team will appear Tuesday, Sept. 18 at 7 p.m. in the Amphitheatre. The Montclair High School band will be taking part in a grounds parade on Wednesday, Sept. 19, at 5 p.m.

The Pomona Concert Band will appear in concert Sunday, Sept. 23, at 5 p.m. in the Amphitheatre.

Our American Heritage . . . Freedom of the Press!

Men like Benjamin Franklin founded this nation — and they knew that our form of government to succeed, a free press was absolutely vital. That's why they made certain that freedom of the press was written into our Bill of Rights as a part of Article 1: "Congress Shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech or of the press." The right of the people to disseminate and read the news has helped keep this country free . . . it is the right that was won for us with the lives of American patriots — let's preserve our heritage!

Aaron, Hepburn, Streisand set for tube

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Notes to watch television by:

The Headliners: Henry Aaron, closing fast on Babe Ruth's home run record, is the subject of a one-hour prime time NBC-TV documentary Oct. 21 ... Katharine Hepburn will be the sole guest on Dick Cavett's late-night ABC-TV series Oct. 2 and 3 ... Jane Fonda stars on the same network this season in a movie version of Ibsen's famous drama "A Doll's House" ... Barbra Streisand's upcoming one-hour CBS-TV musical special is reported set for Nov. 2.

CBS-TV says Marshal Matt Dillon of "Gunsmoke" (James Arness) gets "his first screen kiss in 19 seasons on television' in the Sept. 24 episode .. Applying the smooch is Miss Michael Learned, who is seen regularly as the mother of the many children in the CBS-TV series "The Waltons" and, in the "Gunsmoke" episode, portrays "a self-reliant widow who falls in love with Matt" .. Title of the tale: "Matt's Love Story" ... And what ever happened to good old Kitty?

Ellen Corby, who plays the grandmother in "The Waltons," wrote the story for the which her on-screen husband (Will Geer) is accused by her of flirting with a couple of elderly sisters, and leaves home ... The script for the episode was written by Richard Carr ... Elizabeth Montgomery, headliner of the old video comedy series "Bewitched," will star on NBC-TV this season in a two-hour teleplay entitled "A Case of Rape," portraying a middle-class assault victim "who finds her problems compounded by a law enforcement and judicial system that humiliates and dehumanizes her."

Non-commercial television's eight-program series "The Men Who Made the Movies," featuring eight veteran Hollywood directors-Frank Capra, George Cukor, Alfred Hitchcock, Howard Hawks, Vincent Minelli, Raoul Walsh, King Vidor and William Wellman—bows in Nov. 4 coast-to-coast .. Jack Paar, who has decided to close out his one-week-a-month ABC-TV talk show, is scheduled to have his final broadcast in the series air on Nov. 16 ... Arlo Guthrie, originally announced as host of NBC-TV's Sept. 29 "Midnight Special" outing, will be a guest on the program instead, with Seals and Crofts taking over as emcees.

Jackie Gleason has long been associated with CBS-TV, but his Oct. 11 one-hour variety special is his first major outing on that network in some time—and now he is casting his lot with NBCTV ... The agreement with NBC-TV is that he would star in the 1974-75 season in a 90-minute or two-hour filmed drama that would be aimed at being a forerunner for his appearance "in a continuing dramatic vehicle, such as a mini-series or series," says the network ... Gleason has been an outstanding dramatic actor in such motion pictures as "The Hustler," "Gigot" and "Requiem for a Heavyweight."

The Programs: "Shaft," a periodic 90-minute video series based on the hit movie of the same name, and starring Richard Roundtree in the title role of the flamboyant private eye he created in the film, debuts on CBS-TV Oct 9 ... ABC-TV is reported considering the possibility of a series based on the acclaimed movie "Sounder" ... ABC-TV is also reported thinking of possible regular-season airing of two of its summer comedy series that did well with audiences: "Love Thy Neighbor," which concerns a white couple and a black couple who live next door to each other, and "The Corner Bar," about the goings-on at a New York City tavern ... The non-commercial network's planned hour special that will use entertainment forms to offer information about the elderly is set for an Oct. 29 broadcast date.

Reviews of movies

By SARAH SMILEY

Thirties and 40s nostalgia seems to be all the rage lately. "Bonnie and Clyde" helped it all get started a few years ago, along with the hippes (both real and simulated) and their resurrection of those buried, nearly forgotten Greta Garbo hats, fox furs, platform shoes and draped jersey dresses from the depths of various thrift stores and mothers' old trunks. More recently, we've been beset by a whole new rash of period movies like "Summer of '42," "Class of '44," "Paper Moon" and "American Grafitti." And now "Dillinger."

"Dillinger" has all the currently expected gimmicks of the period piece. A score composed mostly of original recordings from the early 30s. Titles superimposed on photographs of breadlinesn gangsters, G men, and F.D.R. The right clothes. The right haircuts. The right magazines and billboards. All expertly photographed.

Trouble is, about all that is right about this movie, which, aside from solid performances by two old pros, Warrent Oates (Dillinger) and Ben Johnson (Melvin Purvis, the G man hot on his trail), is mostly a dissapointingly empty exercise in technical expertise. None of the characters is developed past even a one-dimensional stage because far too much time is spent lingeringly photographing all those "right" props and on repetitive machine gun shootouts and getaways in picturesque old cars. As Dillinger's girl friend, Michelle Phillips has little to do but adjust her stockings and scream bloody murder during gunfights (shades of Estelle Parsons in "Bonnie and Clyde"), the infamous Pretty Boy Floyd and Baby Face Nelson are reduced to comic strip characters, and the most insightful look we ever get at Dillinger is in the revealing line, "I'm John Dillinger and I'm immortal." Not enough of a hook to hang a couple of hours on. At Cinema II, Montclair Plaza.

NUN FUN — Debbie Reynolds' effigy from "The Singing Nun" waves to passerby at the Movieland Wax Museum in Buena Park, as she rides her motorbike down a forest path. More than 125 film stars are portrayed in wax in scenes from their important movies. The museum and the adjacent Palace of Living Art are open from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily.

'Hot 1' star dies in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Actress Margaret Linn, 39, who played Jackie in "The Hot 1 Baltimore," now in its final week at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center, died of a cerebral hemorrhage at Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital Wednesday.

Born Mary Margaret Linn, Aug. 21, 1934, in Richmond, Ind., she was a graduate of Northwestern University. She had appeared on Broadway in Peter Ustinov's "Half Way Up the Tree," "Ring Around the Bathtub," and "How's the World Treating You?" Her off-Broadway credits included the role of the deaf starlet in "The House of Blue Leaves," and roles in "The Disintegration of James Cherry," "Billy Liar," "Pale Horse, Pale Rider," and "Huui Huui." Her Shakespearean roles include Katherine in "Love's Labour's Lost" for the New York Shakespeare Festival and Viola in "Twelfth Night" for the Arena Stage.

Last summer, Miss Linn costarred with Julie Harris in "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little" and opposite Tom Poston in "Lovers and Other Strangers." Her motion pictures included "Puzzle of a Downfall Child" and "Klute." On television, Miss Linn was featured in the video version of "Hogan's Goat," the NET production "Hard Travelin'," and on the series, The Doctors, among others.
